Camo ammo...

Under the newly renovated grand stand at Davis Field, Doug Donatelli [12] and Andrew Dickun [12] chant loudly to root on the hometown football team. Dickun said, "I tend to get a little out of control at football games. Still, all of my good looks were there just to support the players." For each home and away game, CLC adviser Mr. Williamson devised fashion themes to show school unity.

Consider these...

Your first rough draft of your senior research paper is due tomorrow. After putting it off as long as possible, you rush to the library the morning of to ask Mr. Swanson to help you find that one quote that can end the paper with a punch. After googling your topic, you finally find the site that will lead you to writing greatness. Then, that devastatingly familiar message pops up, and guess what?

you were blocked.

After yet another huge argument with dad the night before about your repeated tardiness to school, and your continued promises that you would make it on time, you still didn't hear the alarm and woke up late. You roll out of bed into your clothes from Monday, skip breakfast, and do your best to arrive at the back parking lot by 7:45. As you speed up route 66 toward school, it happens. Bus 22 exits the busing garage right in front of you. Only today, driver Larry had called in sick and a substitute is now on his way to pick up the elementary school kiddos. Guess what?

you were really blocked.

It was the first playoff game of the season against your rival, and after double overtime, the score was still tied at 0-0. The game goes into a shoot out; the pressure is on. You gain the upper hand stopping their fourth shot. Now leading four to three, North Allegheny's final shooter is up. You force him to shoot left and you leap, hands stretched out. You hit the ground with the ball in your arms. Guess what?

your block sent the team into round two of playoffs.

Breaking through... Just prior to the game versus Connellsville, Ricky Carter [12] rips through the spirit banner. Carter said, "Since playing the Falcons was our first home game, we weren't going to let anything block us from a big win."

Along with his fellow percussion members, Tyler Lewis [12] performs the opener from the band's show Prima Donna. Lewis said, "Nothing blocked the band from giving it their all this year. We had a great showing at Towson when we won our class." Lewis played snare drum for the regiment.

With smart phones and favorite tunes playing in their ears, teenagers texted their friends or significant others to making plans to see the latest blockbuster movie on Friday night. Weekend plans, boyfriends, girlfriends, smart phones, music, and so much more comprised all the basic building blocks of the life for today's high school students. Even on weekends, for some, sports took up a large portion of students' lives. From Saturday practices to away tournaments on the weekend, many athletes passed the time in their cars and buses between games and matches listening to music.

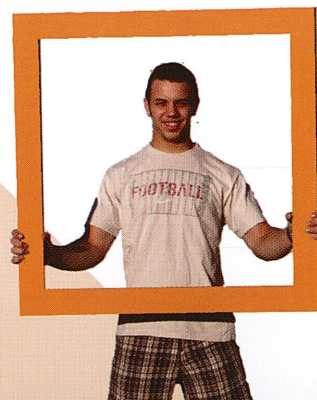

"I have basketball practice most of the time. Otherwise, I spend a lot of my time driving my brothers and mom around now that I have my license. I wouldn't be able to play chauffeur every weekend without jamming to my music to pass the time," James Roundtree [11] said.

For students with more free time, new smart phone apps provided hours of entertainment. The popularity of Snapchat, a picture sharing app, became a fast favorite. "Shout out to my Snapchat friends, Gracie, Lexie, and Cody, who break up hours of boredom at Winterguard competitions," Austin Feydt [11] said.

How much does spirit really affect the school environment?

"I think that school spirit has a huge effect. Even when the football team lost, we all still supported them."
Katie Dunnivan [12]

"I think that spirit plays a big role in the school. At different sporting events, everyone comes together."
Dalton Swank [9]

"Spirit in the school plays a big part. If nobody inspires the athletes, they will not perform as well."
Kaycee Orris [11]

"I feel that school spirit really helps to bring everyone together because they all feel like they belong."
Andy Carson [11]

"School spirit is important because it gets the athletes pumped up for their games, no matter what sport."
Becca Van Why [12]

"I think that school spirit has really improved at Kiski. It definitely brings the students closer together."
Ms. Walt [fac.]

"I think it makes a difference in how people treat each other. It really depends on the individual school though."
Todd Toth [9]

"At my old school, Highlands, the students seemed to be more involved in supporting all of the sports teams."
Brandi Cramer [12]

"I think that spirit matters to some people and doesn't matter to others. It kind of matters to me."

What a rush...

Under the new grandstand at Davis Field, fans dressed in their beach gear to root on the football team in the game versus Connellsville. Jordan Kiebler [12] said, "The themed nights definitely brought everyone together more because everyone could participate." The home team won the game by a score of 22-14 and in reaction, the student section rushed the field at the end to congratulate the players.

Now, that's a wrap...

At the Fall Sports Pep Assembly on September 14, Nate Kiebler [11] wraps Miss DePanics [fac.] in toilet tissue. Kiebler said, "It was a lot of fun wrapping her up and it allowed me to experience things with the soccer team that I would have never done outside of school." Kiebler used the entire roll to wrap DePanics.

What about the cookouts will you forever remember?

"It was definitely the Silly String that brought the cookouts to life. I had them at every one."
Regan Wallace [10]

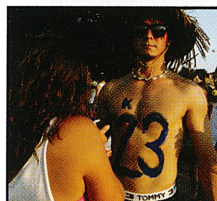

"I'll never forget how Rachel seemed to always get the paint in my eye."
Kaylie Dilts [12]

"The Cookouts just provided a great opportunity for all Cavaliers to get together before games for a meal."

stumbling blocks

Joe Munda [10]

The hardest thing I ever had to do was to watch the movie Napoleon Dynamite because it was terrible. Everyone always said it was hilarious, but I watched and I could not figure out why everyone said it was so funny. The main character was just awkward, not funny; there's a difference. A few parts were mildly amusing at best. I still just can't understand. People always talk about it like it's Forrest Gump or something. There was no plot at all. It mostly revolved around a couple weird kids running for class president or something.

Chelsea Murphy [10]

The hardest time in my life was when I made a bad decision in eighth grade. I made the choice to not do any of my school work because I was going through some rough times. I kept this up until I met a role model, a science teacher at the junior high. He helped me get through everything. I know I can always go to him for help or for anything I need. He helped me with all my school work; science work or not, he could do it all. I didn't think I would pass that year, but here I am in tenth grade now thanks to him. I regret it very much, so my advice is to do your work.

Through many of the winter evenings, fans of the team painted faces and aimed their cheers and chants down upon the court. One player expressed her appreciation.

Marina Stascak [10]

Zack Fisher [12]

three students pack up to visit different parts of the world

Interesting and exciting places around the world enticed thousands of people to visit them regularly.

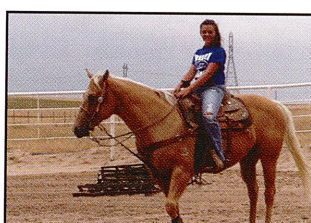

From the ice covered summit of Mount Everest to the black sand beaches on Oahu, Hawaii, travelers continued to explore the earth. Many preferred going to warm locations with a sandy beach, but some opted for cold conditions and a snowy landscape to view.

Traveling offered the voyagers an escape from their everyday lives, as well as time to explore unique cultures and scenes. For three students, the summer vacation months seemed the best time to travel.

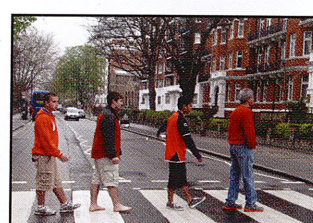

Bol Jing & Shanghai

In 2009, Mariah Singerman [11] ventured to China, where their remarkably different culture surprised her. With such a long history, China's culture possessed a richness not seen in America. Not used to seeing anyone who looks so different, many natives even wanted to get a picture with her.

Colorado

Last summer, Maddy Costanza [11] traveled to Colorado. She went to the hot springs and to her first rodeo. She also took a lazy river ride through the mountains on an actual river surrounded by nature's scenery. 10 days there did not satisfy her, and she could not wait to go back.

Amsterdam, London, & Paris

Andrew Brock [12] flew to Europe with his soccer team, seeing Amsterdam, London, and Paris. In addition to sight-seeing, he played a game in each city. He saw Anne Frank's house in Amsterdam, the Louvre in Paris, and watched a Chelsea soccer game while in London.

"I drive to school most of the time. Because I have cheering after school a lot and I also have a job, the school gave me a driving pass."
Morgan Leasure [12]

"I walked to school a few times because I didn't have a ride. I live on the Serpentine Road and it took me a half hour to walk it."
Troy Glendenning [12]

"Theresa or Louisa Gibson usually picks me up in the morning. Sometimes we stop at McDonald's for coffee."
Brianna Black [12]

"My mom or my step-dad usually takes me to school. Since I live in Moreland Manor, it takes only about three minutes."
Tiffany Wilson [11]

"I live in Avonmore so the bus ride is about 35 minutes long. It's basically a chance to catch more sleep before school."
Nick Sharek [12]

"I ride bus 19 and live in Washington Acres. I catch the bus at around 6:50 and it takes like 40 minutes to get to school."
Nate Blankenbicker [9]

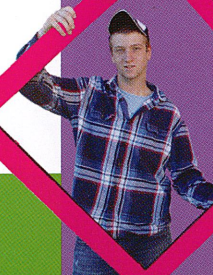

"Because I wrestle and we have practice after school, I got a driving pass from the office. It takes me 10 minutes to get there."
Andrew McDonald [11]

The hardest decision I have ever had to make was when I went out to eat. I was at Kings. The waitress, Kathy, had been working for about seven hours and was impatient. She repeatedly asked me but I just couldn't decide. Eventually, I chose soup. My reasoning behind my decision was that it was a cold winter day, and soup is always good on days like that. To this very day, I lie awake at night contemplating whether I should have gotten salad. It is a mystery. Maybe I will ask MythBusters to figure it out for me.

The hardest thing I have ever had to deal with was finding out my "father" wasn't really my father. He never let me see my actual father's family, even though they wanted to see me. Then, I lost my brother Chad in 2006. Because of my "father," I was never able to be very close with Chad before. He didn't even let me go to Chad's funeral. Shortly after that, I ran away to be with my mom, where I was able to see the other side of my family. They helped me through a lot and helped me get to know Chad, even though he isn't here.

While growing up, I had always dreamed of driving a race car. I always told myself that someday I would be behind the wheel of one of those cars and it didn't matter when or how. Little did I know what it took to make such a dream come true. I was faced with doubts and full of questions. How does a 16 year old obtain such a substantial amount of money, wealth of knowledge about racing, and the time to devote to it? The honest answer to that question is, you really don't. However, if you strive for your goals, you will accomplish them.

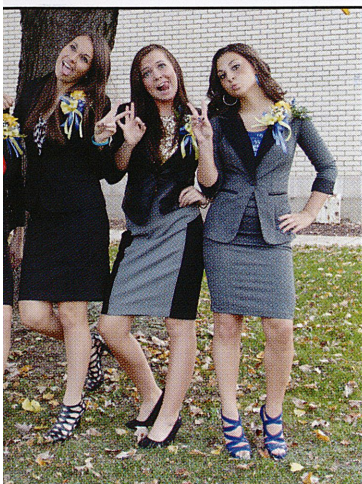

Cole Bauman [12]

The biggest obstacle I had to overcome in life is school. School isn't very hard, but in order to overcome school you need to work. School is important in life because it is what sets you up for the real world. In school, you make friends. Having friends is what pushes me not to quit on school. You will have some people you don't like at school; ignore the ones that you don't like. Befriend the ones that are worth it. College isn't needed for everything in life, but if you don't graduate high school, it is hard to get a well paying job.

"I'm definitely a dog person. I have a dog named Savage and he picks up scents for me when I go hunting."

stumbling blocks

Alex Parker [10]

A difficult time in my life was when I had my shoulder injury. I felt so helpless and was afraid I wouldn't be able to swim my best ever again. It took long, continuous months of therapy to get back to being able to swim again. It was really tough at times, because all I wanted to do was to get back in the water and compete in the meets. It was really hard having to sit on the sidelines and root on my teammates when I wanted to help them out in the water. I wouldn't have overcome this without the help of my family, doctors, and friends. Their support meant the world to me and made a difference in my recovery. I may never swim as well as I used to, but like my good friend told me... just keep swimming.

Jared Burk [9]

One day, I was chasing my dog around the house. It is one of the only ways we can exercise him. We gave him something that he thought he was not allowed to have, and then we chased him. So, anyway, I was chasing him and he ran down the stairs. Now I know what you're thinking... but you're wrong. Don't get ahead of me here. So, I chased him down the stairs and he ran around the stairs. Then, he ran back up the stairs. Our steps are designed weirdly and they have an overhang which can often trip you up. So, I ran up the stairs, I tripped, and then I went flying into the wall.

musicians discuss passion for music

Musicians have entertained audiences for hundreds of years, each with their own unique style and sound. Popular music changed each year as the audience, with all their likes and dislikes, changed. Music in general intrigued millions each day and for good reason. A style of music and a certain song existed for every mood. Whether to further elevate happiness or soothe anger, music's superpower lied in its ability to affect emotions and feelings. One did not have to be famous to become a musician, either. Whether part of a garage band, a school ensemble, or a solo artist, each had talents to share with the whole world.

"I prefer country because it's the best kind of music and gives you that down-home feeling. The lyrics are always relevant to my life."
Katie Clever [12]

"Country music has a soft beat to it that I like. I really like Carrie Underwood, Reba McEntire, Eric Church, Blake Shelton, and Lee Brice."
Savannah Jones [10]

"It always calms me down. The words also bring back a lot of memories from my past that I like to remember. It's just the best music around."
Cory Clark [10]

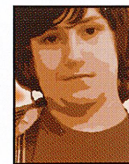

"I like how the meaning of the words is always relatable. I also grew up with country music, so it's just all that I have ever listened to."
Rosita Webster [10]

"I love country music because it's a lot of fun and really easy to sing along to. I like Lady Antebellum and The Band Perry."
Alexis Briggs [10]

"Country music is best in the summer, because when I'm shaking it for Luke Bryan, it's a lot of fun. I'm such a redneck."
Mikayla Rupp [9]

"I like that it's catchy. I like the country accent that most artists sing with. I like listening to John Denver the most."

One time, my friend, Lauren and I were at a hockey game. We were having an amazing time, running around and watching some great hockey played by our boys. We both wore our blue Winter Classic jerseys, signed by our favorite players. During intermission, Lauren and I ran up to get a snack of nachos and cheese. The messy eater I am, I spilled the cheese all over my jersey, right on my prized signature. I was having a major freak out, so Lauren took me to the bathroom and cleaned me up. We got most of the cheese out. But, to this day, there is still an unattractive yellow tint around the signature, and it makes me mad.

Mike DePancis [10]

I've had some difficult things to deal with in my life, but none more nerve-racking than what happened in baseball. Picture the bases loaded in the last inning with nobody out. I'm the pitcher. This was by far one of the hardest things that I've ever had to deal with because the whole success or failure of the game was totally riding on my shoulders. I knew that the team had worked so hard throughout the game to get a lead, and it was up to me to have us all keep it. It made me so nervous because at that moment, everyone was counting on me to get the job done. I ended up getting out of the inning, and we won the game.

Zach Schaefer [12]

The most difficult time in my life was when my pap died. I knew he was in a better place, but at the time, I was more confused than depressed. Death never affected me like this before, and I often wondered why God didn't heal him through all of the sleepless nights that I prayed for him. Still, this experience brought me closer to God. The moment that I accepted Jesus Christ as my Savior, I found peace in my life. I realized that just because a loved one dies doesn't mean you are alone. The rest of my family and friends truly encouraged me to step on with my life. I'm so grateful for their help in such a difficult time and now know that everything is possible with God's help and the encouragement of family and friends.

Sonica Nagji [10]

The hardest thing I've ever had to deal with was life itself and the people in it. I've had to overcome all the struggles that you sometime get from trusting people too much. You can never be too careful with what you say. The discouraging words that people have shot at me have always stressed me out. I've learned that the only person you should have your full faith in is yourself. I'm very thankful for the people who have remained so close to me, and they have showed me how to keep my head up and how to love. Throughout time, you see the truth/lies in people that you thought you once knew. Sometimes, that's the hardest lesson to learn of all.

Have to hear every word...
Careful to hear every word, Nicole Pearce [12], Jade Festa [12], Cassie Thompson [12], and James Farley [10] discuss how sophisticated Meg has become since moving to New York. Pearce said, "The play had a really great turnout and a lot of people were excited to see us perform." Ask Any Girl represented Pearce's acting debut at the school.

Jessica Ray/Manno [9]

One of the hardest times of my life was moving to a place I had never even heard of, Vandergrift, PA. I had to leave everything I knew; but, that wasn't the worst thing. On our move, my best friend since second grade died, my dog Roscoe. That made everything much worse. It was hard to adjust to a new home without my chubby beagle with me. Although I'm okay now, it still brings me to tears looking at pictures of him. So you suppose I'm dramatic much? I love animals, so it was hard to lose my puppy. It's hard to be attached to something and then lose it. I guess some times are just better than others.

Zach Chatter [10]

The hardest thing in my life would have to be what I am going through right now. Right now, my parents are going through a divorce. Even though I have already decided whom I want to live with, my dad is pushing for joint custody. I suspect he wants joint custody so he doesn't have to pay as much money to my mom. I want to live with my mom because she has always been at my sporting events and band concerts. She has been the main person to take care of me in every situation. Still, with all of this going on, I've found it really hard to stay focused on schoolwork and friends. I'll get through it, because you just have no choice in the matter.

Time to showcase talents

After a dress rehearsal the night before, elementary, intermediate school, and high school students from all over the district gathered on January 18, 2013 to display their talents to an awaiting audience.

The elementary division featured eight acts, the intermediate featured 10, and the high school saw eight acts perform.

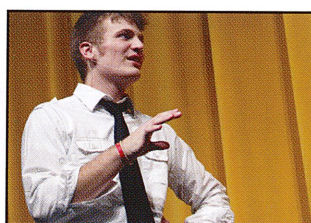

Key Club sponsor Mrs. Haney [fac.] said, "The annual talent show is one of the club's biggest events of the year. It's nice to have representation from all three levels of education in the district. It's also a great opportunity for everyone to witness some great talent in our schools."

preparing

For weeks beforehand, members of Key Club labored to schedule, rehearse, and prepare the stage for all the acts.

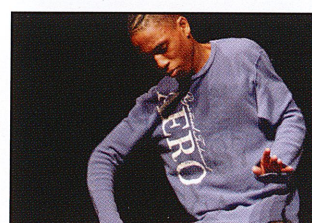

Coordinator Kaylee Hansberry [12] said, "It was quite a daunting and exhausting task to make it all happen. I'm glad it's over."

hosting

To keep the flow moving, Kaylee Hansberry [12], Zach Mszyco [11], Noah Kennedy [11], and Marisa Kish [12] emceed the event.

Kennedy said, "The hardest part was coming up with spur-of-the-moment improvised comments while hundreds of people were watching."

From a magic show performance to mimicking Tom Cruise's Risky Business dance, the talent featured a variety of acts.

Past winner and animation dancer Trey Gibson [10] said, "The show was a great opportunity for people to perform in front of a crowd."

One time, I fell in the hallway, and I was so embarrassed. Luckily, I was with my best friends, Maggie and Leah, so they fell, too, and I was not embarrassed anymore. We all laughed it off, but ended up getting in trouble for sitting in the middle of the hallway. When I mess up in front of people, I usually get upset because I get so embarrassed. My friends all help me to get over it and encourage me not to care what other people think. We always laugh off our silly mistakes, and I am so lucky to have them in my life for support. The next time I happen to slip in the hallway, hopefully, I'm with my friends, Leah and Mags.

The most difficult thing that I have had to do was help my dad open our family business. I helped him a lot. But, that wasn't why it was so hard. My dad was working over 100 hours per week. For three months, my family was so disordered. We were spending all of our time at the store helping out. It took roughly one year for the store to get up and running smoothly. Now, the store is running fine, and we have been in operation for over three years successfully. This was an extremely difficult time for me and my family. Still, with all the hard work and dedication that we put in, we now can enjoy the benefits of owning our own business and not have to worry any more.

Having to deal with my great grandmother dying from blood on the brain was very difficult. She was my closest grandma. When I was little, we would make waffle cookies together. When she passed, I was devastated. She gave me a cross necklace a couple of weeks before she died and I take it with me everywhere. I always make waffle cookies when I miss her. I still don't know the special ingredient she used, but every time I make them, I try something new to find it. She was my best friend and I miss her tons. I do always know that she is here with me and that makes me feel so much better.

One of my most embarrassing moments was when I fell flat on my face in front of really cute guys. I was walking into an ice rink for my hockey practice and I started for the lockerroom. Before I fell, I noticed a group of really good-looking boys watching us. When I sat up from falling, I saw that all of my friends and the boys were laughing at me. It was a moment that, unfortunately, I'll never forget.

Emma Cox [10]

The most difficult time in my life was when my best friend Emma left my old school. Emma was the friendliest person I ever knew, and she never once doubted our friendship. Still, I did, and it ended when she left the school. It was my fault, and I knew that. It made me feel worse than I have ever felt in my whole life. Emma told me that it was not my fault, and through all that I put her through, she still called me a good friend. I might have hit a hard block with her, but she taught me that one of the most important lessons that you have to learn in life is to just be yourself. I'll never forget how close we were, and she'll always be dear to my heart.

My parents randomly found out one day because they called our doctor and he gave them instructions with what to do for me. They set me on the floor and pulled my head up a little bit. I screamed so the doctor told my parents to bring me in to the hospital as soon as possible. I barely had a chance to live, but I still did. Now, every year I have to get all the vaccinations available since I will always be at a high risk for getting it again. You just have to do everything you can to survive with what you're given in this life.

Outdoor activities serve as a way of life for some

With 20 state forests and numerous rivers, lakes, and creeks, Pennsylvania offered a wide variety of opportunities for those who loved the outdoors. Additionally, students had families with camps that sat in different parts of the state. At those camps, traditions sent down from generation to generation stood strong.

Students had fishing boats, quads, motorcycles, hiking gear, tackle boxes, ammunition, licenses, boots, hunting garments, and many other items necessary to become one with nature and the outdoors.

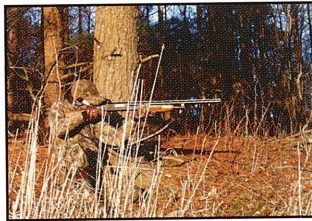

While not all students bought into this type of lifestyle, many others certainly did. For those students, fishing, hunting, and trapping became a common trait.

fishing

From small streams to the Allegheny River, avid fishermen took to the waters in the hopes of reeling in that big one.

On Meadow Run in Ohiopyle, fly fisherman Bobby Irwin [12] said, "Fly fishing is a difficult and intimate approach to fishing. It takes years of practice to master the proper techniques involved."

hunting

Depending on the season, hunters used guns, rifles, and bows and arrows to down their prey.

At her house in Bell Township, Sierra Maher [11] said, "Turkey hunting is one of my hobbies, and it is definitely one of my favorites. I love the adrenaline rush I get before I shoot a beautiful gobbler."

trapping

Rich in wooded forests, western Pennsylvania housed a plethora of wild animals. For one student, trapping became a passion.

Trapper Shane Kuhn [11] said, "Not a lot of people trap any more. I enjoy it as a hobby, and it also gives me the opportunity to earn extra bucks outdoors."

On May 19, 2010, my mom badly and severely burnt her hand. She was cooking pierogies with olive oil and she moved them off the hot eye too fast and it splashed on to her hand. She went to the burn unit at the hospital that night. It was really hard on my sister and I because she is a really important part of our lives. She is always there for us, and we had to be there for her. After months of therapy, she started to feel better. She is now fully recovered and has full range in all of her fingers and thumb. I'm so glad that everything worked out because one of the hardest things to go through is watching people that you love experience hardships.

Jesse Temple [11]

The most difficult time in my life would have to be when my mom had open-heart surgery. Her valves to her heart were slowing down from when she got radiation as a treatment for cancer as a teenager. If she hadn't gotten the surgery, she would have died within six months. The scary part was that my mom had a bad history with anesthesia, along with her insides being weak. We were told there was a high chance that my mom might not wake up. It was the hardest thing to see her in intensive care. I prayed every night for her. She ended up recovering much more quickly than we ever thought possible. I love her more than anyone else on earth.

"The Drowsy Chaperone," under the direction of Mr. Robert Capanna, allowed students to tap into their own creativity to experience the wonder and magic of live theatre. Graduates of the show offered their opinions below.

on live performances...

"After months of practice, the curtain finally opens. Shear nervousness overcomes you for a moment. But, as you preform, all your hard work pays off."
Jesse Scanga [2012 grad.]

on the bonds made...

"I've learned more from musical than anything else in high school. I've learned how to share and how to love. My stage families will always be dear to my heart."
Lauren Whaley [2012 grad.]

on singing...

"Singing in a musical never really made me feel nervous because I have been in so many performances. Having a lead is just like being part of the team."
David Hampshire [2012 grad.]

on stage crew antics...

"The puns made about the building materials, the crazy nicknames we got, and always giving Mr. Jack a hard time provided for a great time."
Casey Dalsass [2012 grad.]

on learning lines...

"Memorizing your lines is very challenging. However, adding details like quirky moves or a fun voice always seems to help them stick."
Jessica Pollick [2012 grad.]

on the magic of theater...

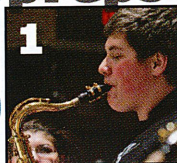

"The feeling on stage is indescribable! The theater world is like no other. No club, sports team, or activity could take its place. I wouldn't trade it for the world!"
Emily Summerville [2012 grad.]

"It was very difficult to stand completely still and not crack up in front of the audience," Bruno said. The Drowsy Chaperone had its actors freezing twice in this scene.

Kasey Stewart [9]

Life is something you have to take day by day because you never know what could happen. One day, when I was in first grade, my teacher received an urgent call to release me from school. At the time, I was young and naive, so I didn't think much of it. Later that evening, I found out that my father had been in a horrific car accident and that his chance of survival was very low. So young, I really didn't know what to think. I spent the following year visiting him in and out of hospitals and rehabilitation centers. No kid should have to go through something like that. Still, it has made me stronger. I'm glad to report that my dad is still alive today.

Maryesa Williams [12]

The most difficult time of my life was in 2009 when my great grandma passed away. I was 13 years old, and it was obviously something that I didn't want to happen. I remember coming home from school and my brother saying, "We need to leave because grandma is sick." She was sick for about a week before she passed on. It was over spring break, so I was able to stay with her and spend her last couple of days with her. I'm so grateful to have that valuable time with her. My grandma was a wonderful lady who would do anything for anyone. I miss her so much and will always cherish the times that we got to spend together.

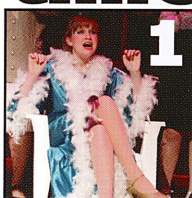

I'll drink to that...

Each day, the ringing of the bell signified not only the end of a class period, but also the beginning of what seemed to become a Chinese fire drill. Utter chaos ensued, and the daily travels of students found rest rooms, hallways, and lockers blocked by the massive student body.

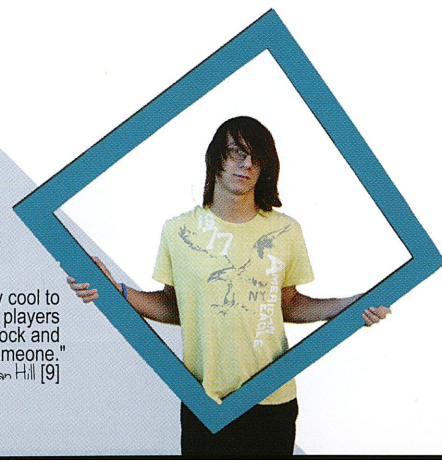

Katie Lewis [9] said, "During the first few weeks of school, I could barely make it to class on time because of the crowded hallways. Eventually, I found quicker routes, but it was a terrifying experience, attempting to weave my way around upperclassmen who were twice my size." Though freshmen in particular struggled to adjust to the hectic hallways, little has changed over the years for students.

Shane Kuhn [11] said, "The hallways are tighter than the backseat of a Volkswagen. For a man of my stature, maneuvering the hallways is a daily problem."

For other students, navigating the hallways became a high-stakes affair. On the much anticipated Krazy Dippers lunch days, Adam Mitcheson [11] said, "Shortly after eating those dippers, I knew that I was going to have to make a bee-line to the little boys room."

For whatever reason, the trek from class to class presented various road blocks. Students had to find their ways around them or deal with the consequences of coming late to class.

Britney Bryon [12]

One of the hardest things I ever went through was in the end of fourth grade. I got an eye injury that could have affected me the rest of my life. I had to lie in bed for three weeks straight. I was not allowed to do anything, even watch television. Being ten years old at the time, that was a big deal. Almost losing your eyesight in one eye forever though was a bigger deal. If it wasn't for my grandma and my mom, along with various other family members waiting on me all the time and taking care of me, I would probably be blind in one eye now.

Kathryn Rockelle [12]

I used to make a lot of bad decisions that lead me into many difficult situations. For a while, I was in the wrong crowd and not the person I wanted to be. I got into a lot of trouble and I was losing friends. Even though I was not the best friend, I still had three people who were my best friends and were like sisters to me. It took me a while, but I got away from the people who brought me down and things got better for me. Lauren, Tiffani, and Caitlyn really helped me and got me out and away from what we now call the black hole that brought me down.

Kyle Bechtel [12]

My aunt has a crazy cat that lurks under there at times amongst the dust bunnies (which she probably eats.)

I have a very specific position. I'm usually half on my stomach and half on my side and I must have my squishy zebra pillow.

Patrick Emricko [12]

Egyptian spider mummies live in my closet, but as far as I know nothing lives under my bed.

I sleep on my side because... well because I do. Enough said.

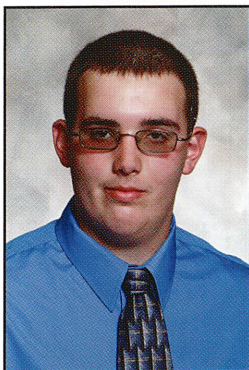

Alayna Korchok [12]

Shoes, just shoes. There's red high heels, work shoes, and flip flops. You can't find anything under there.

My sleeping position is generally on my side. Why? It's the most comfortable, of course.

stumbling blocks

Brett Hackman [12]

My first year of ninth grade was the hardest time of my life. It was a new school and I wasn't used to all the work. So, I didn't really do much of anything except goof off. When the school year was over, they called and said I had failed and had to repeat ninth grade. I was really bummed out. However, I got myself in the mind frame that I was going to pass. When the next school year came around, I was ready. I did all my homework and studied for tests. I passed that year with honors. I did so well, they bumped me back up the grade that I was supposed to be in.

Brandon Kufner [12]

The toughest thing for me was overcoming my shyness. Even now, I'm still a quiet kid. Before, I was even more silent. I never knew why I was and am so shy, but thankfully, as I grew more comfortable with friends, I slowly came out of my shell and began meeting new people. Although I'm still a quiet and shy person, I mostly express myself through music. To me, music is life. I may not be here without it. I love playing and writing music, and I enjoy getting others involved and accepting different types of music.

stumbling blocks

Josh Webster [12]

The hardest time for me to overcome was all the football games I had to play through with torn shoulders. With every hit taken and every movement I made, I could feel the shoulders popping in and out. I had to pop my shoulder in a few times just to continue playing, but I did not want to stop. I actually had to sit out of two games. It was hard to watch the team practice and play, but not be a part of it myself. I had to overcome the pain and also get the mental aspect that I can play with the pain, rather than continuing to sit out at any more practices or games.

Myauna Lawson [12]

In April of 2012, the Kiski Area Winterguard went to Worlds in Dayton, Ohio. During the preliminaries, I dropped my solo five on the box going towards the end of the show. After the show and once we were off the floor, I felt I had let the entire guard down and began bawling my eyes out. My friend, Kara, came up to me because I was crying and said, "It'll be okay, you recovered like a rock star and that will gain you more points than dropping it lost you." This made me feel a lot better. After that, we made semi-finals and I caught every toss.

Lyndsey Weser [12]

During my life, I have had a difficult time finding friends that will not stab me in the back. All the years I have been in this school, I have had one friend to get me through all of the drama. Her name is Brooke Churma and she graduated two years ago. Even though we do not see each other a lot, she has calmed me down and made me smile even when I have made mistakes myself. Most people do not take the time to get to know someone deep down, but instead like to make assumptions based on what they heard in the hallway last period.

Dave Anala [12]

The hardest thing I have had to deal with in my life so far was waking up at five thirty every morning in the summer, working ten to eleven hours a day, and then going home and not being able to do anything because I was too worn out from my ten or eleven hour work day. The money was great, but it was too much for me. I got used to it though. I'm still working the same job, noon to five thirty on school days, and going home and straight to bed. I just wish I was still four or five years old when life was carefree so I would not have to deal with all this.

stumbling blocks

Pat Buck [12]

Everybody wants to be liked and accepted by others, whether you're trying to impress a girl or just get into a new friend group. The hardest thing is when you are afraid to be yourself because you think people will dislike you for who you are. You must be yourself, and you will be accepted by anybody. You don't need to act a certain way around a certain crowd. Then, you're constantly asking yourself every night if you were funny that day or if people liked how you acted. If you just be yourself in every situation life brings you, then you don't have to worry.

Luke Haines [12]

Something hard that I had to overcome was not playing soccer last year. Deciding not to play soccer was one of the few, horrible decisions I have made in my life. The worst part was having to go back out to play again because it meant facing all the teammates and coaches that I had abandoned, in addition to my school. It was the worst feeling, but I overcame it and am now playing, performing, and scoring for my team, coaches, and school. I'd like to thank all those who told me not to give up and encouraged me.

A long time band camp dunk-tank tradition, Jonathan Krish [12] plummets into the water. Krish said, "You could always bank on the younger band members trying their best to send the vets into the tank." With temperatures in the mid-nineties, the event provided for a welcomed relief.

stumbling blocks

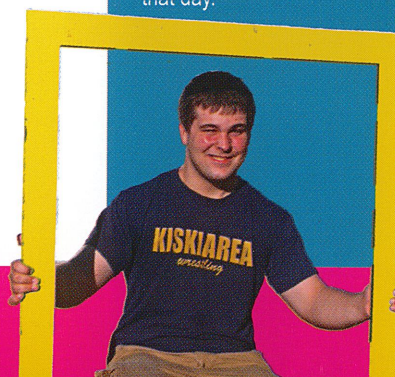

Gabriela Piro [12]

One of the most embarrassing times of my life happened in March in the back of the school when I fell off the loading dock and broke my elbow. I was standing on a piece of plywood and apparently got too close to the edge. My weight sent the plywood up into the air and me down about three feet to the concrete bottom. Luckily, the only person that saw it happen was Nate Cox who graduated in 2012. It didn't hurt much at first, so I kept working with the stage crew. Eventually I went to the hospital and got a cast.

Matt Riggle [12]

One of the hardest things I have ever had to do was about three years ago when we had a huge vacation trip planned for my wake-boarding competition. I was so excited, but about a week before, a family friend, who was very dear to us and close to my family, passed away. It ended up that his funeral and burial was the day after we were supposed to leave for the competition. My dad told me we would still go to my competition, but I couldn't let that happen. He meant too much to my family for us not to attend. I learned my priorities that day.

The first wrestler to ever win a state title for the district, Matt McCutcheon [12] answers questions about his success, training, and plans for the sport.

what first got you interested in wrestling?

"I always watched my brother Mike practice every day at a place called Mat Rats in Vandergrift. Ever since I was four years old, I've wanted to compete in wrestling."

discuss your training regiment.

"After school, I lift and condition on the track for about an hour and a half. I then usually go home and eat and then go back to the school for another practice with Coach Joseph in the wrestling room."

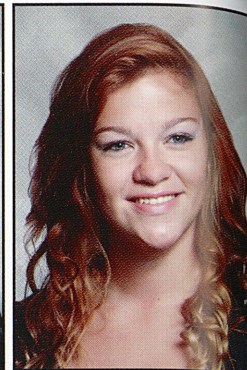

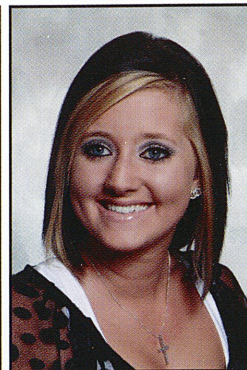

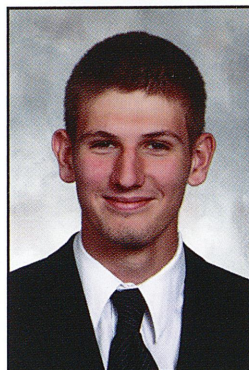

what is your ultimate dream goal for yourself in the sport?

"One day, I would love to be an NCAA National Champion for Penn State. Beyond that, I want to win an Olympic gold medal. These are only possible because Coach Tursky and Coach Heater pushed me every day. They're the best."

Shawn Walsh [12]

The hardest thing I have personally ever had to deal with was moving. I moved back when I was about thirteen and in seventh grade. It was really hard for me because I had a lot of friends back in my old school and I knew making new ones would take time. I wasn't ready to leave and come to Kiski where I would have to start over again, but I had no choice except to overcome my fear. When I came on the first day, I was nervous, but at the same time, I was eager to start making new friends. In the end, it wasn't as hard as I thought.

Ed Jones [12]

One of the hardest times in my life was when I had to get surgery on my shoulder. It was a difficult time because I could do only a very small amount of things on my own. I had to rely on my friends and family a lot everyday just to get through my day. I would try to do things for myself, but no matter how hard I tried, I could not. I would get frustrated very easily during this time at how little I could without someone else's aid, but I had my friends and family to look out for me and give me a hand whenever I needed one.

Sarah Sinclegers [12]

The hardest thing I have ever had to go through was watching my boyfriend of almost two years push me away and act like we had never met. It was pretty hurtful, but Ariel Ware and Katie Clever were always supporting me. I listened to sad songs for a while, but I am a lot happier now. I am not completely over him yet, but you have to start somewhere. Knowing that you're not alone feels really nice. I guess we were never really meant to be. We remain friends, but I know that everything happens for a reason. At least he taught me something.

Tiffany Stewart [12]

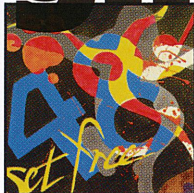

The hardest thing in my life so far was when I got engaged at 17. I was "in love," or more likely, in love with the idea of love. It was a mistake. I hadn't been with the person nearly long enough and we were nowhere near mature or grown up enough to be ready for that type of commitment in a relationship. Unfortunately, it ended badly. I am very thankful that I had my friends around to help me through that time, but most of all, my mom. I could not have done it without them. Thanks Hannah Moore and Momma Bear.

"In this assignment, we had to create a self-portrait that revealed something more than just appearance. I utilized cellophane on the outside to symbolize my transparent nature. The white represents my hobbies and interests. I think it turned out well."

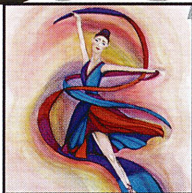

Zach Schafer

"I painted the 48 to reflect when I stayed up for 48 straight hours. I actually recorded every hour and posted it all on youtube. The year before I created this, I had a huge spill of orange paint. Hence, the splatter seen here is to recall those good times. It was a colossal mess."

Tina Magness

"I love nature and waterfalls. I just thought that would make a good subject for a pen and ink drawing. It really worked well with all the reflections of rocks and with the water flowing and crashing downward. The hardest part was the stippling technique."

Kyle Cernicky

"We had to make a piece that demonstrated motion. I thought that a dancer would more graceful than an action-oriented sports painting. I used watercolors, markers, and colored pencils to create the assignment. I wanted the outfit to be very vivid."

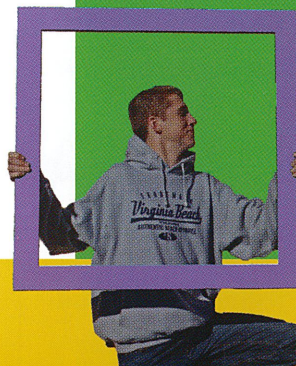

Julianna Jankowski

When I was driving home from a friend's house, the brakes on my car completely stopped working. I had to decide to either try and drive home or find some way to stop. I made the idiotic choice to attempt to drive home brakeless. I ran numerous stop signs and red lights, barely making it through each time. I drove up and down hills like an unstoppable bullet. Luckily, I managed to make it home without wrecking and slowed down enough to park. I timed everything perfectly and made it home without a scratch.

The hardest time of my life was when I got detention in middle school. I talked too much and would always get lunch detentions. In the middle school, once you acquired four of these, you got an after school detention. My parents were furious and gave me a speech about how they never got in trouble in school. I got grounded from everything except going to school for three weeks. I learned my lesson to pay attention and be respectful to my teachers. Since then, I haven't gotten in trouble in school. I hope it stays that way!

Alissa Knacknabe [12]

I will never forget how hard it was to me to make my mark in school. The first day, I remember going into school and nobody would talk to me or even realized that I was there. Eventually, I decided that it was time to try and fix my problem, so I asked my mom what I should do. She said that I needed to come out of my shell a little. Once I heard this, I started to start conversations with people that I did not know. In the end, I got to know everybody by doing this. I am glad and also thankful my mother gave me this advice back in the day.

Marissa Kehn [12]

The hardest thing I ever had to deal with was trying to decide who my friends were and who they were not. It is always a constant battle, because it is hard to see someone you once cared about forget that you even exist. In the end, you have to realize that if you are not worth their time, then they are not worth yours. People change, and you have to be willing to accept that they changed and their lives don't involve you anymore. Maybe someday, they'll remember you. All you can do is enjoy them while you have them and hope one day they come back.

The hardest time in my life so far was when I witnessed my favorite pet dying. I was 12 at the time, so it was a big deal. It was a dog, a nine year old boxer, named Tiger. Tiger died when he was hit by a car. It happened right in front of me and the image stuck in my mind for years. My sisters and I tried to get over it by getting a new puppy. Although we love him, he can never replace Tiger, who was there as I grew up. Our new dog is also a boxer. We named him Max. He is just a playful as Tiger, and just as cute. He did a good job mending our broken hearts.

The hardest thing I have ever had to deal with to date in my life was when I had to accept that my mom and dad are never going to be together again. It was a very difficult thing for me. It took me years to realize that just because they are no longer together does not mean that I will not see both of them. I also thought it was my fault they split up, but they assured me repeatedly that it was not. Eventually, I believed them. I have to thank my mom and my grandma for their support through this process. Without their support, I would have never gotten over it.

Maddy Costanza

"At home, we have a 1970 Ford Fairlane. We got it from a shop in Vandergrift that doesn't even exist any more. Because it has too much horsepower, I'm not allowed to drive it. I really want to, but it's my dad's baby and he just won't give in. Maybe some day, I'll inherit it."

Joe Bruno

"I've driven a 1977 Ford F250 pickup truck since October. That truck is my baby. My father and I completely restored the exterior. It took us about two months to complete it. I hope to fully restore it some day from the frame up. I'll probably keep it for a long time."

Dylan Blair

"At home, I have a 1978 Chevy pickup. It's black now, but I'm going to have it painted silver in a couple of months. It has a 350 stroker in it that's souped up for racing. I've had it since May and I bought it from a guy up the road who had it sitting in a field. Let's go racing."

Dominic Hill

"I have a 1981 Chevy Camaro that I got as an Easter and birthday gift from my father. I try to store it in the winter time, but since my dad uses the garage to repair cars, sometime I have to let it sit outside. It's an automatic with a 350 engine in it. I hope to keep it forever."

Christina Lytle

"My family has a 1957 Chevy Bell Aire and a 1978 Cobra Mustang II. We got the Chevy from an older gentleman who reconstructs old cars. We actually bought the Mustang from a guy named Mike who builds race cars. Of the two, I would much rather drive the Mustang."

The hardest time in my life, while not as drastic as some other hard times, occurs daily, and I mean every single day. My boss at work has an obsession with cheesy pop music. Of course, everyday she insists on turning on the radio. While this could possibly be a good thing, it is not. Why? Because the station she puts on every single day plays nothing but the cheesy pop music she is so fond of. I am not allowed to turn it off or turn it even turn it down. All day, I listen to, "Let me blow your whistle baby," and, "Star ships are meant to fly." This is torture.

Kali Leibert [11]

The hardest time in my life was when for the longest time, I was really insecure about myself. I was insecure about just about everything... how I looked, how I acted, what clothes I wore. This insecurity really started to get the best of me. If it was not for my friends, I would not be where I am today or even who I am today. I am much better about this now, more confident in myself. I truly could not be happier with my life these days. I am really glad and so thankful that I had and still have so many good friends to look out for me and always have my back.

It was a hot, sticky August day. The relentless sun beat down upon my pale skin and my opponent, Tyler Paunovich. Tyler was arguably one of the best tennis players in the WPIAL. Our countless matches over the summer had left me with only one result-defeat. His skill was simply something I could not match, although my heart and desire was far greater. We battled for hours, but neither of us could gain the upper hand. It came down to tie-breaker in the final set. I smoked the ball past him for a game winning ace, and I celebrated my victory for days.

Briana Crabill [11]

I would have to say hardest thing I had to deal with was going from sixth grade to the intermediate school. I lost friends and I gained friends, and the drama really set in. It was a hard time for me because I only knew a few people and did not have many friends. Seventh grade did eventually turn around and I gained a lot of friends. I struggled with a lot of thoughts of just leaving, thinking my life wasn't worth living. If not for my best friend showing me God was always there and all my new friends making me laugh, I may not be here today.

T. Hill [11]

The 2011-2012 school year was my first at Kiski, and it was the hardest time of my life. I had moved to the area during the summer. I had trouble making friends, but my long time friend, Ron, lived close, so I met with him a few times. A boy in eighth grade that lives next to me became my friend, too. When school started, I still didn't know a lot of people, so I was nervous. Sharyn Taylor was my first friend and soon following her, Jess Ban, Sarah Mihelic, and Kyle were all my friends. I want to thank them and all of my wonderful teachers.

Amber Phillips [11]

I am currently overcoming the hardest time I have ever had, and that time is junior year. I signed up for every hard class possible, leaving me with six upcoming midterms and finals and enough homework for a month in the life of the average student. Not only am I drowning in homework, but I have endless yearbook work to do, as well as managing an officer position in Student Council. I was left with no choice but to quit soccer to manage the year's workload, depriving me of something I loved. Thankfully, this will all pay off later in life.

The biggest struggle of my life is my dad's current project of remodeling our kitchen. He is tearing down the walls and ceiling. Everything from the kitchen is now jammed into the dining room, and there is no room to move, let alone to allow five people to get ready to go in the morning. From tearing down the walls, every day, the floor is completely covered in dust from the walls. I have no choice but to walk through the kitchen, and therefore the dust to get to the bus every morning. I practically leave footprints everywhere I go.

Kayla Wadsworth [11]

Life isn't always easy, but the things that make it more difficult also build character and make a person stronger. The hardest thing I've ever had to deal with was the death of my aunt. She was only 26 and died unexpectedly. We were so close in age that she was more like my sister or best friend than aunt. We grew up together, and no matter what, she was always there for me and always had my back. I hate that I never got to say goodbye because it happened out of no where, but I will forever love and hold Aunt Rachel in my heart.

What's your favorite thing about it? Least favorite?

Austin Linder [11]

Wherever my employer takes me... I'm a carpenter in the summer, working for Scott Compton.

I like that I make good money and I don't have to think. I just work. I hate the long hours, though.

Brandon Smail [11]

I'm an umpire in the summer for twelve year old's baseball games, which means working nearly everyday.

My favorite thing is getting paid thirty-five dollars per game. It's the price to pay for getting hit by baseballs.

Davon Thompson [11]

I work at the Dairy Queen right by the school for about twenty-two long hours every single week.

I love getting to eat all of their food on my breaks, but I really hate when I have to do the dishes.

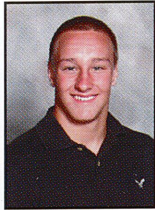

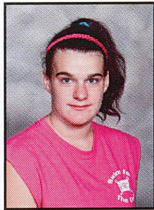

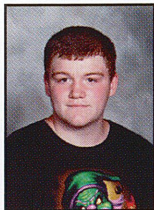

Lauren Bono [11]

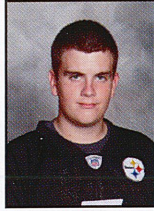

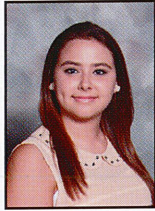

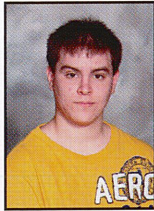

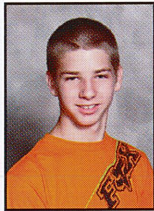

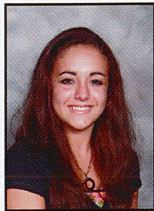

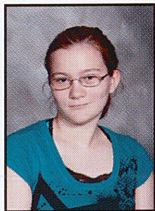

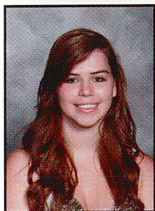

I work in the packaging area at Pounds Turkey Farm, and occasionally, I get to work as a cashier.

My favorite thing is definitely getting money. I hate wearing the gloves though; my hands get so sweaty.

One of the hardest times in my life was when my best friend moved away to Michigan. I first met him when he moved into the house next to mine when I was just five years old. Our families were very good friends. He had two siblings and he was the middle one, just like me. In sixth grade, when I found out that he was moving, I was devastated. He was my best friend. I threw him a party the day before he left. It was a very emotional time for me. It has been three years now and we hardly talk anymore. To this day, I still miss him.

Naomi Richardson [10]

The hardest time of my life was when my older sister Sarah was diagnosed with type one diabetes. Even though it didn't physically effect me, just the thought of Sarah being sick with this disease broke my heart. My whole family, especially Sarah, helped me get through this. Sarah was strong and told me to be strong, too. Sarah's attitude never changed, and she has never felt sorry for herself. For all the people who have family members with a disease or illness, you have to stay strong for them. They will greatly appreciate having you to lean on.

The hardest time of my life was one day at guard practice. I made a mistake and then gave somebody else the wrong directions. That person then got mad at me. The girl did not talk to me and eventually, neither did any of my other friends that were also friends with said girl. I was really upset because they even made me switch lunch tables. Luckily, I had other friends in my lunch, and they helped me get through it. My parents helped me out, too. They taught me that I had to stick with friends who would support me and that I was not alone.

Justin Gregory [10]

The hardest time in my life was when I was striving to get stronger and faster so that I could be better at football. All my friends told me that I would not be able to be a good football player. But, everyday I worked harder and harder to be good. I did track and soccer to help me get faster, and lifted everyday in order to build muscle. Even my gym teacher helped me get better by teaching me more about footwork. After a couple of years of hard work, I was able to start as a wide receiver and score about two touchdowns per game.

Everyone moves. Still, sometimes that movement takes on a more artistic approach. After winning the 2012 Talent Show with Armond Brown [11], one student's dub-stepping talents have even expanded into a new school club.

have you always had dancing talent?

"Whenever I started to dance, I wasn't good at all. Actually, I was awful. I practiced almost every day for hours at home in front of my mirror. I was intent on getting better."

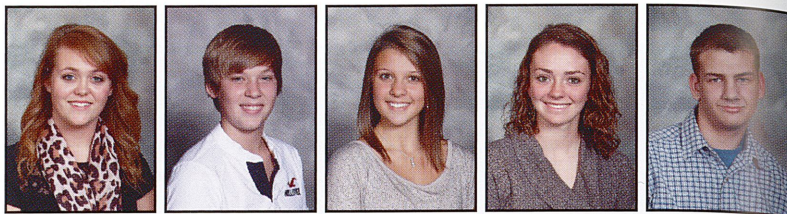

from whom did you get your inspiration?

"I got most of my inspiration from a dance crew in Georgia named Remote Kontrol. My mom was watching So You Think You Can Dance and she had me watch them. I saw them and knew I had to do it."

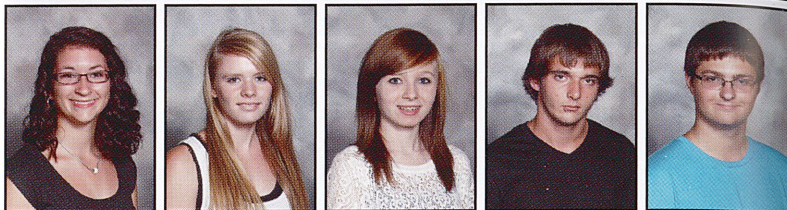

where was your biggest performance?

"Armond Brown and I performed at the Pittsburgh East Church in Plum Boro. We opened up for their guest speaker that night. We performed to a combination of music from James Bond to Skrillex, into the song, Wild Ones."

The most difficult time in my life was when I was in eighth grade and on the verge of getting both of my ankles operated on. After I had recovered from my broken ankle, I was told I needed to get surgery done on both of my ankles. I could not fathom what was to come during the surgery and afterwards. There was a chance I could not play sports ever again. My first day back to school, I had all of my friends there for me. If you think you are going through a tough time, get the support of your friends. They will be there for you and it'll make a huge difference.

Maria Cecchi [10]

One of the hardest things I had to go through was losing my childhood dog, Tiffany. She was to the point where she was sick more often than she was healthy. It was a hard decision to have to make, but we all knew it was the right one. When my parents took her to the vet, my grandparents and our close family friend across the street came and stayed up with us. I definitely took it the hardest. It was hard to sleep for many nights because she would always sleep at my feet. It took six years, but we finally found a new puppy just like her that I love.

Kayla Hayden [10]

The hardest thing that I have ever had to deal with to date is when I had my hip surgery. It was really hard to go through, but I made it because I never gave up. The hip surgery was difficult to go through because it was hard to walk and stand still, but I got through it all with help from my friends and family. I would mostly like to thank my mom because without her, I wouldn't be stable with my hip; so, thanks mom for everything you did for me. Now my hip is healing, but it hurts sometimes. Still, I still have my family and friends to help me with it.

Marina Stascak [10]

At my softball game in Connellsville, we were losing terribly, and we were sure we would lose the game. At the bottom of the sixth, there were two outs and I started a rally. We scored five runs and tied the game. At the top of the seventh, we shut them down completely and it was our time to bat. Our top team players struck out, and with two outs, I came up to bat. I was so nervous I couldn't even hold the bat. Then, Coach called a time out to talk to me. Afterwards, I stepped up and hit the game winning home run!

The hardest thing I've ever had to deal with is preparing for midterms and finals. I took Honors Geometry and Honors English. I prepared and got through them by studying for an hour or two a day for three days straight. The secret is really just being prepared. You have to get enough rest and study the materials the teachers give you. It is always a good idea to just reread the books or text too, or even just go over the stories. Always try your best and don't let little things get in your way. And, study, study, study! Best of luck to you all with finals.

Kaitlin Kunes [10]

When I was five years old, I was bit by a German Shepherd dog on my thigh. The wound was down to the bone. I now have prosthetic skin and a large scar in the shape of the letter "L" on my thigh. I have recently been told that I can get plastic surgery to correct the imperfection, but I denied the opportunity. I used to believe this scar was a bad thing, but now, when asked about it, I say, "I got bit by shark." (I change the story every time.) Then, I tell the real story in order to get a laugh out of them. The injury made me who I am today.

Do you like to sit in the front, back, or middle?

Have you ever gone to a midnight premier? Of what?

Reno Zaffina [10]

I sit in the middle because it is not too close to the screen and not too far away, either.

The only midnight premier I've been to was Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows: Part Two. It was so awesome.

Erin Serena [10]

I like to sit in the way back because it is the best place to sit; you can see everything.

I've never gone to a midnight premier, but I really want to. I'd love to see a scary movie at a midnight premier.

Shane Toth [10]

I sit in the very back so that I can see everything. It makes it feel like it's really happening.

I've never had the chance to go to one because I've never had a ride and I can't drive yet. Poor me.

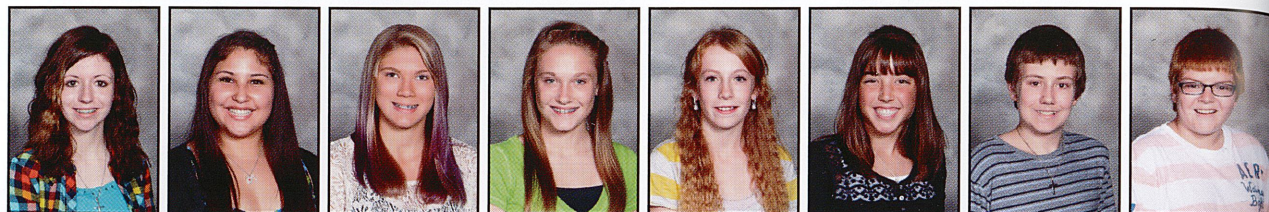

Sara Cline [10]

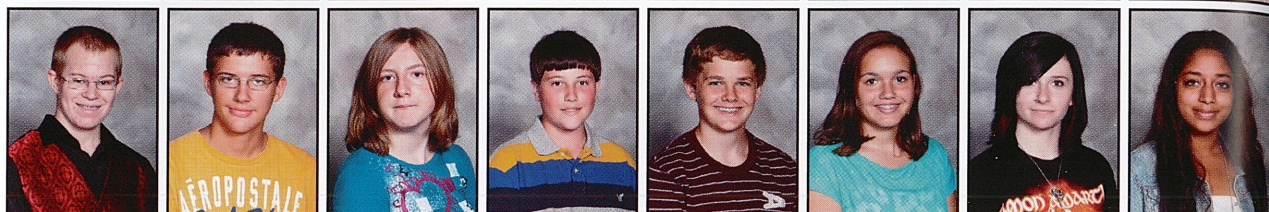

I sit in the back because it makes it easier to see. It doesn't hurt your head the way it does when you're too close.

The Twilight books are my favorite series, so I went to see all those movies at midnight.

stumbling blocks

Bryanna Pearson [9]

I moved here to Kiski from my old school district. I had been going to my old school since I was in kindergarten. I had friends and I was surrounded by people I had known for years. It was just really hard to move, and I was so mad. To tell the truth, I never really felt a part of Kiski. I didn't grow up here or play any sports, so why should I, right? I felt like this for about two years, and then it all changed. I decided to go to my first high school football game, the first one of the season. The school spirit I saw on everyone's faces was amazing...so amazing!

Nick Hauber [9]

The most difficult time in my life was when my mother, my father, and my two aunts passed from this world. My mom died of a heart attack on May 9th, 2012. My father's death was now confirmed as a suicide in May of 2008. My aunt in PA died of a heart attack in her sleep on an unknown date. My other aunt had died of a possible heart attack, also on an unknown date. I would like to thank my friends: Shawn Sarel, Jared Rose, Joshua Jones, and Dennis Barnaby for helping me get through this.

What techie game do you have to play every day?

Julianna Joyce

"I just love to play Draw Something. I get to show my creativity and use my imagination to express how I feel. I normally play with some of my closer friends and my family. I have a hard time beating my brother. He's an amazing drawer and that definitely helps him."

Daniel Hill

"Fruit Ninja makes the time pass quickly and takes everything off of my mind. I've actually made it to beyond 560 pieces in one game. I hate it when why I'm so high up and I hit a bomb by mistake. I like to play it when I'm extremely bored. It's kind of mindless, but that's the point."

Gillian Debick

"I really like the game Where's My Water because it's challenging, but fun at the same time. I hate it when the green slime gets mixed in with the water. It ends the game and you have to start it all over again. I like that it's sort of like a puzzle to solve."

Jenna Trybus

"I find Solitaire very addicting. I can't stop playing it. Of all the types to play, I really like playing the regular one where you have to put red cards on top of black ones and vice versa. I hate it when you get down to about three cards and they're in the wrong order. I could scream."

Katie Perroz

"I'm always playing Coaster Madness. You get to ride in the roller coasters, collect money, and then buy other roller coasters. It's a lot like Temple Run, but with roller coasters. There are breaks in the track and you have to jump over them or you will lose a life."

One of the hardest things that I have faced in my life up to date was dealing with my great grandma's death. Dealing with her death was very hard and I didn't think I could ever overcome it. I was hopeless and I couldn't see myself gaining any hope. Then, I got some closure and hope after talking to my grandma. My grandma told me that even if someone passes on that you loved, they will still have a place in your heart. I learned so much from my great grandmother's passing and it has made me the person I am today.

Lilly Shupe [9]

Once, during first period, I was walking up the stairs in the atrium with hot chocolate in my hands. I had an off-white dress on. I tripped and started to drop the drink. I had to quickly decide whether I wanted my hot cocoa or a clean dress. I spilled it all over the floor. I had to clean it all up. Luckily, for the rest of the day, I looked really nice. I just walked back to the coffee shop and bought some more hot chocolate. It tasted great after all of the hardships that I experienced that day.

What do you hope to make of yourself in life? Do you aspire to make a lot of money? One freshman certainly does. Ty Travaglia has learned from his parents and even started his own business, on the heels of their expertise.

what is the basic nature of your business?

"It is a company based on health and nutrition. They provide products of liquid vitamins. It's a shared business that pays people to drink and share their products."

who or what made you interested?

"My parents have been in the business for two years. I've used the product since then. I realized how much money my parents were making and I figured that I could be doing the same."

in the company, what can you eventually make of yourself?

"Throughout the process of rank advancements, your income increases. The more you share, the more you earn. My goal is to own a BMW by the age of 16."

In 2010, my dad and I were in a serious car accident. We were going up to his camp for the end of deer season. I was doing my math homework and when I looked up, what I saw was about to change my life forever. A truck hit our Explorer. My dad's leg was broken and I was left with memories that changed my life. I am glad that nothing worse happened. The worst part about the crash was that the driver never took responsibility for his actions. (If only I would have taken a few seconds longer to get out of the door.)

Harley Rowe [9]

The most difficult time in my life was when my great grandmother died. We were so close, and her death was hard on me. She always knew what to say when you were upset or in trouble. No matter what, she was always honest. She always had so many stories to tell me, and I loved hearing all of them. My best friend, Alexis Dora, and my boyfriend, Carson, are always here for me. I'm so grateful to have them in my life, or I don't know where I'd be without them. Alexis is the best friend I could have asked for and Carson is the best boyfriend ever.

At first, I thought it would be easy to keep my grades up during marching band season. Let me tell you, it's not. I had to stay up until midnight studying, and right after school, I went home and immediately did my homework. I never had free time. It was really hard to concentrate late at night after practice, but I did it with the help of my dad. He was the one to help me pass my classes. He stayed up with me and quizzed me before tests. He helped me with homework and was always willing to help me, no matter what.

Eric Majorsky [9]

A tough time in my life was so far was seeing my cousin's dog die and having to carry it toward where he was going to be buried. It was so hard to look at that dog, just after playing with him about ten minutes beforehand. My cousin's dog, Max, was killed by a car. The driver didn't even stop after he/she hit him. It was hard to see my cousin's expression when he found the dog lying there on the side of the street. Max wasn't bleeding though, which was pretty weird. He probably had a broken neck, though. Still, I had to get over it.

The most difficult time in my life was when I lost my football position. This was difficult because I really enjoy playing football and it made me upset when I had to stand on the sidelines. I went to football practice the next day and I played my heart out on the field for another position. Still, the following day at practice, I ended up playing offensive tackle. I had my heart set on playing defense. Even after practicing very hard, I still didn't end up on defense. Finally, I started to lift to gain strength. Eventually, coach put me on defense.

Jeff Fenchel [9]

In my life, I have had many tough times. My most difficult time, when I made a bad choice, was when I lost a really good friend. We had actually been dating for three months. Then, one night, I gave her something that one of my exes gave back to me. About a week or two after we had broken up, she found out and our friendship was over. I tried a ton of things to make up for it and get our friendship back, but to this day, it still hasn't changed and it really sucks. Don't reuse old gifts for your boyfriend or girlfriend.

in the fridge

What's the strangest thing you ever ate cold for breakfast?

What drink in your fridge do you go to for a boost?

Jordan Weaver [9]

I have been known to eat spaghetti from the night before for breakfast. I'm too lazy to heat it back up.

When I need a pick up, I usually grab a Red Bull. We always have them in the refrigerator at home.

Jake Satterfield [9]

If we have leftover chicken wings, I'm all over that.

Nothing is better than an ice cold Mountain Dew when you need a boost.

Jared Mountain [9]

I once ate dried cuddlefish that my father brought back from Korea. It was okay and sort of tasted like potato chips.

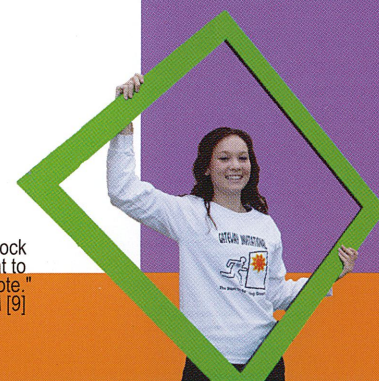

I'm a Pepsi guy. When I need a pick-me-up, I'll grab a Pepsi.

Kyle Orris [9]

I love leftover Potato Patch fries from Kennywood. I usually smother them in cheese first.

I have to have my Monster drink. It always does the trick for me.

with Mr. Voytek

Beyond his teaching talents, one instructor made a commitment long ago to do what he could to improve the lives of others. With the longest hair as a male teacher at the school, Mr. Voytek continually grew his hair for a greater purpose... because he could donate it to others.

where did you go to donate your hair?

"I went to Terry's Place in Delmont. It takes me about two years to grow it to about 10 to 12 inches. This is the fourth time I've done it."

back in the day, did you always sport long hair?

"Yes, it was the style... back in the day. It wasn't just a rocker look or anything. I just have always liked growing my hair long."

why do you continue to support the cause?

"It is such a good cause. I hope to continue to donate for a couple of more years. Also, I really encourage people to donate, as well. The donations provide for free wigs for kids going through chemotherapy and there's no greater feeling than knowing you helped them out in a small way."

The most difficult thing I have had to get over was during my junior year when I got involved with the wrong crowd. It may not seem as bad to some, but for me, it was horrible. There was so much anger and so much hatred. On top of that, there was a lot of drugs and alcohol. I almost lost myself in the mix up and I almost lost my life. But, I saw who I was becoming and had to separate myself from those types of problems. I got out before it was too late. I now know that I'm strong enough to overcome anything that comes my way.

Brandon Smith [12]

A couple of years ago, I decided to try to walk out on the river when it was frozen. I inched my way further away from the land. The next thing I knew, the ice broke and I fell straight down. It was deeper than I thought and the current started to take me. At the last minute, my friend Brett, ran out from the shore and grabbed my arm. He pulled me up and dragged me back up onto the ice. I was safe, but soaking wet and freezing. I went to the closest person's house that I knew. They gave me new clothes to wear.

stumbling blocks

Jacob Korte [12]

When I was about 14 years old, I learned that my dad had a disease called Huntington's Disease. I did not understand what it was at first. Then, as I got older and did some research, I learned a lot. I realized that I had a 50/50 chance of getting it and that has worried me ever since. I'm really scared to get tested for it. I would explain the disease, but there is too much to talk about. Right now, I'm getting through it because I believe in about 15 years, they will have a cure for it. I'm also pulling through from the support of my friends and family.

Jess Shewalter [12]

In my life, I have a difficult time deciding what I want to do and become. If I should join a sport or try a new hobby, nothing seemed to jump out at me. This period really ripped me apart. Finally, hope seemed to come my way. Teachers and instructors of mine really opened up my eyes to the world. I have picked an amazing activity to be a part of and a hobby that I enjoy. I have also chosen a college and a major. The dark days are now over for me. I'm finally at peace with making those hard decisions in my life. Life is so much better now.

I'm not the type to let people in or to spill my guts to strangers. So, I will not say my predicament, but you'll get the gist. We do stupid things and yes, we get caught. Don't ever think that making rash decisions won't come back to bite you. Still, don't get mad when you're banished from seeing that person or for losing phone privileges for a summer. Sometimes, getting caught gives you a reality check and stops you from making stupid mistakes. You should thank that person and your parents for steering you right. Next time, it could end up a whole lot worse.

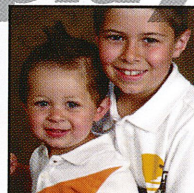

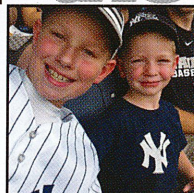

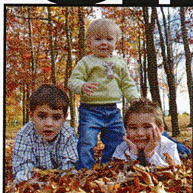

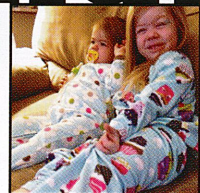

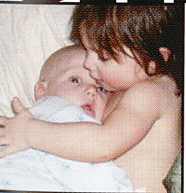

Cady Chambers [12]

The most difficult time in my life was learning that my grandmother was slowly dying. She was moved to a nursing home to have better care during her last part of life. It was hard to know that my grandmother was dying, but, I did overcome it. To overcome it, I had to think about all of the good times that I had with my grandmother and I knew that she was going to end up in a much better place. I also knew that my family did the best that they could to help her out in those last days of her life. I miss her every single day.

Academics

After spending hours staring at a blank screen, with frequent cursory glances through the usual social medias... and after about six typed words that you managed to connect together in a string of brilliance, you definitely needed a break. Still, a few more minutes of that blinking cursor mocking you meant that writer's block had definitely set in to stay.

Bethany Liska [10] said, "When it comes to writing a paper, the hardest part of the paper first and then go back to the introduction afterwards." When it came to beating writer's block, one student had another strategy that didn't involve the prompt.

Jack Emmerling [11] said, "There is one thing, and one thing only, that inspires me to finish a paper: Taylor Swift. Her music is the sole reservoir that I tap into to find motivation to keep pressing buttons on the keyboard."

While some preferred the sweet ballads of Taylor Swift, others chose the bass-driven rhymes of rap to jump start their papers and put an end to writer's block.

Kevin Kunkle [11] said, "I have the same approach for getting pumped for hockey games as I do for beating writer's block: I listen to my throwback rap play list."

Always a problem, students found creative ways to overcome the nasty, common bond of writer's block.

chalk tup marchers leave their marks story by j. herstek [12]

What do a bunch of sweaty marching band members have in common with Mr. Culler's lesson on plotting points on a coordinate plane? The answer is absolutely everything.

Known as the drill, the formations of the band result from successive individual coordinates on the field for each band member, all dependent on crucial timing moments in the music.

Band director Mr. Pityk said, "From set to set, the students use chalk to mark their positions on the field. Those chalk markings help the kids to learn their spots."

While most members just placed an "X" on their spot, others got more creative in moments of inspiration. These represent some of the drawings that we found.

A couple of years ago, I was playing Pokemon on my Gameboy. I was entering the last cave where one of the rarest Pokemon rested. His name was Mewtwo. As I walked up towards this magnificent creature, I knew what I was in store for. I entered the battle. My first Pokemon was the elegant Charizard. My powerful Pokemon weakened him to his last hit point. Then, I had to decide... throw my one and only master ball or throw a great ball. Would I catch him or would he flee? I threw the master ball and ended the game.

Casey Nasdita [11]

The most difficult time in my life was when I lost my grandpa. I was always with him as a kid and he was diagnosed with cancer. There were times when I couldn't see him because he was so sick. One night, my dad told me he had passed away. I was so upset and mad because he was gone. I missed four days of school and cried all the time. My whole family was there for each other. My pap was an amazing man, and he was loved by so many people. It was really hard for me to lose him.

stumbling blocks

Nick McClelland [11]

The hardest event I have ever had to deal with in my life would be the passing of my grandmother. She died about three and a half years ago. I always remembered her being around and was crushed when she passed on. It was even harder since she was living with us at the time of her death. She passed away in my own house. At the time, I didn't know how I was going to deal with her death. I really did not want to talk to anyone and became mad all the time, which was unusual. Eventually, I realized that she had moved on to a better place, and I felt better.

Tanner George [12]

My most difficult time dealt with a class that I had at the high school. For some reason, I suppose I'm just not cut out to speak Spanish. Spanish III was an absolute nightmare for me. It's not like I didn't try. In fact, I did my best at every moment. I studied and studied before each test, but it just seemed like when I thought I did well, I didn't. What I learned is that you have to just keep trying. After all of that hard work, I actually earned a B average for the year. Still, take my advice... Spanish III is definitely no joke, people.

hard at work

In your chosen field, what do you find the most challenging in a good way?

"I think that chiseling is an acquired skill. It's necessary to develop your hand skills. I'm getting better at it."

Tyler Ozarowicz [11]

"Computer technology constantly changes. Sometimes, it's hard to keep up with it all."

Tom Prunty [10]

"I think that electrical circuits are pretty tough. Still, I like a good challenge, so I'm always willing to give it a try."

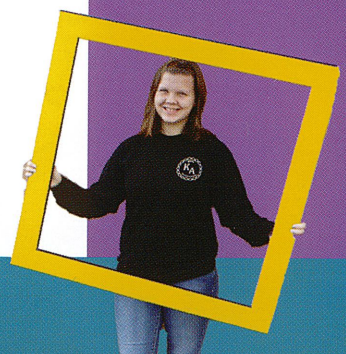

Davis Clever [10]

"It's really hard because you have to be near perfect in everything. One slight mistake, and you're done."

Dillon Cole [10]

"During my second year of marching band, we did basic blocks to learn how to march."

discuss the
you've ever seen

"I cried when I saw Mama; it was utterly terrifying for me."
Cody Delusio [12]

Scary movies came a dime a dozen, yet how many have actually scared the daylight out of you? The latest horror flick always looked good in the previews, but once you watched the movie, you realized the scariest parts reflected the ones you've already seen in the previews.

"I went to see Texas Chainsaw Massacre when I turned 17 because I could finally legally see it. It didn't scare me, but it was the most disgusting movie ever. There was so much blood, and it looked so real," Morgan Kiebler [11] said.

Special effects came a long way since the original Godzilla where viewers saw the strings attached to him. Even though the special effects in modern scary movies have improved, the plots have basically remained the same. Writers repeat the same predictable plot for nearly every movie. As shown by the newest Texas Chainsaw Massacre, some writers went so far as to remake older movies.

Amber Phillips [11] said, "The remakes are no better than the originals, though."

"I couldn't sleep for a week after seeing One Missed Call."

"Factoring is horrible. You have to complete the entire square. It takes a lot of practice and time."
Lexie Chambers [9]

"I do not like factoring because it's confusing, hard, and I'm pretty sure I'll never use it after high school."
Lauren Brosko [10]

"Factoring is like taking everything you learned and forgetting it. You pretty much do everything backwards."
Adam McCann [9]

"I don't really like to do math, and factoring isn't easy. It takes forever to do because I just forget it all."
Zach Kuta [10]

Don't stand out...

At the home football game against Connellsville, Alayna Korchok [12] and Katie Dunnivan [12] await an impact in the opener of the band's show Prima Donna. Pit member Matt Joyce [11] said, "The biggest fear any of us has is playing something big at the wrong time."

Human sculpture...

As an exercise in Miss Filippone's [fac.] Intro to Theater class, students create a fear sculpture. Kaitlyn Gourley [9] said, "We had to envision what scares us most and create levels to display it as a sculpture." The class met for a semester to learn acting basics.

Flaming fingers...

Just after Mrs. Wien [fac.] fills Christina Lytle's hands with bubbles, she lights it on fire. Lytle said, "Ironically, setting our hands on fire was one of the coolest things we did all year." To make the flames, Mrs. Wien used water, dish soap, and methane.

"Putting the working bibliography together was like pulling my fingernails off. There were so many different rules for every situation that I didn't know where to start. I also hated citing everything throughout."

Tiffani Gregory

stumbling blocks

Maria Cecchi [10]

One very hard thing that I had to face in the past year was my multiple concussions. I lost a lot of sleep from them, which is terrible since it's one of my favorite things to do. I also loved cheerleading and working out, which I couldn't do either. I loved being home and everything, but when you actually needed to be home doing nothing, it wasn't fun at all. I would like to thank my sister Gina for staying up with me and amusing me when I wasn't allowed to sleep. I would also like to thank my mom for going with me to all of my doctor appointments.

Rosita Webster [10]

The most difficult time in my life was the passing of my grandfather. I was four years old, and my little sister was still a baby. My grandfather passed of a heart attack. He was really young. He wasn't my blood related granddad, but he was like one. We went to his funeral in Colorado because that's where he was born. It was very hard getting through this because I never met my real granddad, and he was there for everything. I got through it with my family and friends. We all moved over to America from England so we could restart our lives.

Gisela Martinez [12]

"I picked really bright colors because I like to think of my personality as really bright, one that stands out. I especially like the blue and the pink that I used."

Brandi Cramer [12]

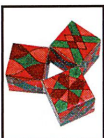

"I picked blue, green, purple, yellow, and orange for my colors. I like water and cool colors, but I wanted just a hint of sunshine thrown in to lighten it up."

Renae Graham [11]

"For the cube project that we did in ACM, I chose earth tone colors. I really like the outdoors and camo colors just reflect my personality."

Dustin Stover [12]

"I went for the hot color tones because I have a sunny personality, and I really like the warm weather and anything that has to do with the summertime."

Madi Pityk [12]

"I totally chose the brightest colors I could find because that's just who I am. I'm not dull; I'm my own person. I like all the seasons, so all colors are represented."

spanish students get crafty

stonyling a philips [11]

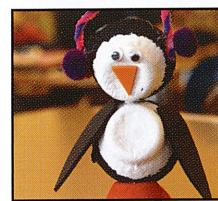

Each year, around the holiday season, Ms. Varano's AP Spanish classes took a break from the topic of Spanish paintings to make crafts for Mrs. Leezer's life skills students, as well as the elementary life skills students.

Each student had to make a craft, with no repeats permitted. Students had to instruct, in Spanish and from memory, the rest of class on how to make their crafts. The rest of the class made the crafts based off the instructions given.

Andrew Yohe [11] said, "I'm not very good at crafts or Spanish, so it was a challenging project for me."

After a few weeks of craft filled classes, workers successfully made and delivered 299 items to both the high school and elementary.

In her fourth period Art III class, Kyle Cernicky [12] paints an abstract interpretation of the front atrium. Cernicky said, "The architects incorporated the sine curve everywhere in their design for the atrium. It's on the railings and in the embellishments." She once designed a lamp shade that utilized melted crayons.

Eleana Cook [10]

One of the toughest things I've ever gone through would be when I moved here from the Poconos. I was going into the sixth grade and was super shy. I didn't know anyone. I made friends and tried hard in school with the support from my family. One of the biggest things that helped me the most was when I joined the swim team after I had been here for a year. This is how I met most of my friends that I'm still extremely close to today. I also gained a lot of confidence. Moving was hard, but I gained many things from it.

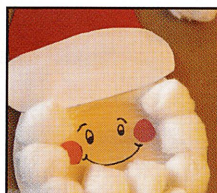

Mandi Phyl [12]

The hardest thing I ever had to deal with was losing my grandma. My grandma was always there to support me, and she taught me a lot. Losing her was like crushing my heart. Instead of tearing my family apart, we all got closer to help each other through this tragedy. My family went through a hard time with that. They are who helped me through this difficult part of my life. My grandma was like the glue that kept my family together.

On the laptop in Mrs. Bono's [fac.] English class, Alex Stadler [12] works on his senior paper. Stadler said, "It took about one week to research, and it took two to three weeks to actually write and type the paper." Stadler discussed the longevity and popularity of the original video game industry.

Austin Morhead [12]

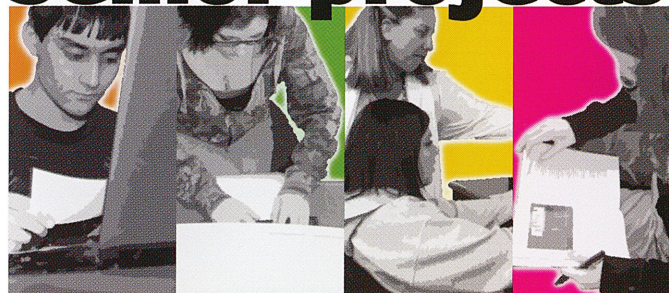

The hardest thing I have ever accomplished in my life was getting over the death of my grandfather who passed after battling lung cancer for about a year. Cancer claimed his life in the winter a little bit before Valentine's Day. Since then, it was very hard to live a normal life after he left us. Ever since then, I worked harder on my grades and worked on my social life, trying to see that I was taking the right path to make him proud for all I have done. He would be so proud for all I have done in my life. That's for you, Pop. Love you.

Morgan Kibler [11]

One hard time I had to deal with was last cross country season when I suffered numerous injuries. I had to stop running for one month, run in the pool, and bike a lot because of my hip. It was hard because I missed the two weeks of mandatory summer practice and the first invitational. Then, later in the season at WPIAL championships, I passed out right before the finish and didn't make states. My mom helped me through the entire experience. Also, the trainers and doctors at UPMC did everything they could to help me get back to running.

teenagers deal with pressure to be perfect

"I'm happy the way I am and love food too much to not eat."

Gracie McDermott [11]

Surrounded by media in today's modern world, teenagers—guys and girls alike—constantly faced the pressure to live up to the social standards of physical perfection.

Magazine covers, television shows, and clothing ads all depicted five foot ten, 110 pound, flawless women. With society's example of what girls should look like, girls found it hard not to feel down at some point about their appearances.

Tricia Kohler [12] said, "I thought people would like me more if I were skinny, so I went on a diet over the summer. I gave up all unhealthy food and I've lost a lot of weight."

Guys also felt pressure to meet the modern standards of physical perfection. Stars like Zac Efron and Channing Tatum, both constantly drooled over by girls, forced guys to try to meet unrealistic expectations.

The pressure of perfection caused self esteem issues, eating disorders, and exercise obsessions, making it harder each day for teenagers to learn to love themselves.

"I always try to work out. I have to have that beach body."

Cameron Lawack [12]

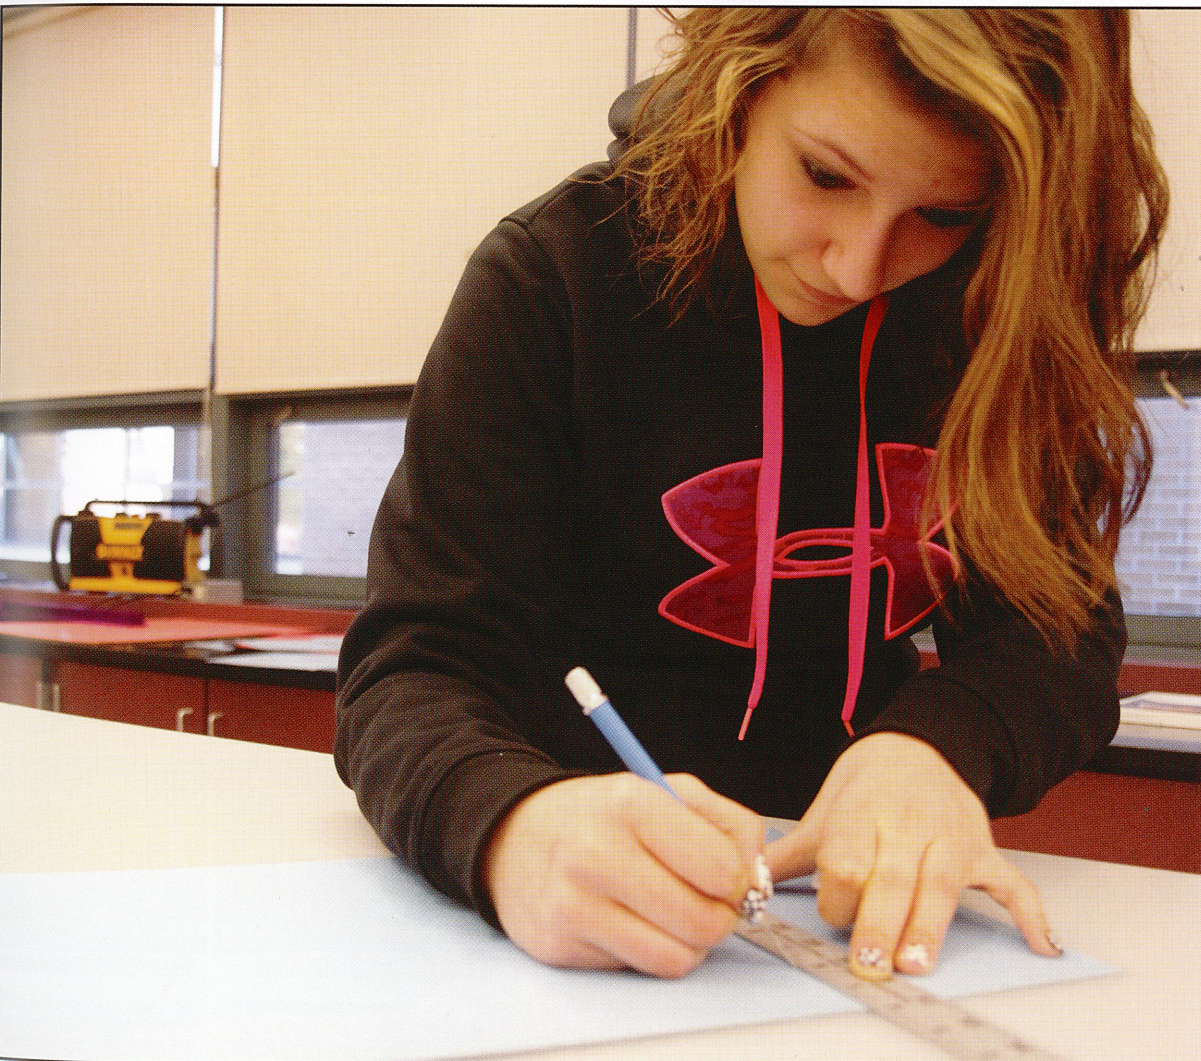

The hardest time I ever faced was when I was about 10 years old. My dad had just lost his job at DeLallo's, so my family was in a tough situation. I was very concerned about how my family was going to make it when our main source of income had been cut off. Everything was fine though. He found a new job in about a week. All I had to do was stay strong, be positive, and be supportive. You have to realize that bad times pass and you forget all about the negative things that happen. That is my story.

Dan Bigeman [12]

Going through school was the hardest thing I've done, since I'm constantly being pushed around and picked on because I'm different. Why does it matter that I like different music, clothes, and other things compared to everyone else? I've had to deal with people constantly calling me names, saying I'm a freak and all that, but I got through it with my friends and family. Thank you mom and gram. Thank you Lauren Bosley and Laura Snyder. Without you, I could not have gotten through it.

Kiana Balda [10]

I had a really hard time in math class. My teacher decided to put all of my work into a folder to keep me organized. That didn't work, and I failed the class. I went to summer school to make it up. If I could go back to ninth grade, I'd offer these tips: do all of your work when it is given. Don't half-heartedly just put in your work. Take an interest in it. The person who tried to help me the most was my dad, and I'd like to thank him for that, especially for math class. I would hope that everyone who reads this would try their best the first time. Just do the work.

Abbey Dallas [10]

The most difficult time in my life involved trying out for winterguard. We had never had to actually try out before, and this caused me so much stress. I was so nervous because it's just something that I really wanted to do. We had to learn about one minute of dance work and flag work. The flag work didn't seem that difficult to me. Honestly, neither was the dance work. Still, there was one toss that I didn't know how to complete. I just decided to perform my heart out and do the best that I possibly could. I ended up doing great and made the squad.

Steve Lawler [13]

About 12 years ago, I had a dog named Mitsey. She was a great dog. She was really friendly and always played with you. She was never loud when you were trying to sleep. About two years ago, we found out that she had cancer on the back of her leg, so we let it go for about a year. Then, one day we woke up and she was not really moving, so we took her to the vet to put her to sleep. That was a hard day on my whole family, and we gave her a proper burial in my backyard.

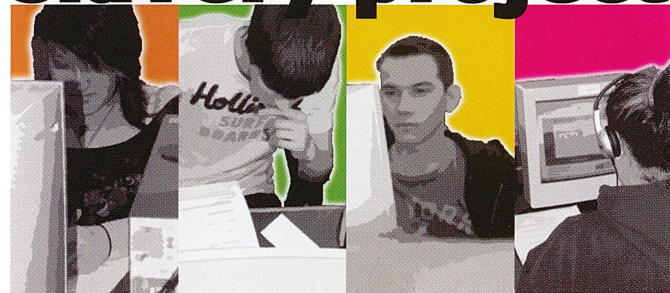

Jocelin Horstak [12]

When you're struck with an obstacle, you have two choices: face it or run away. When I was diagnosed with OCD in 7th grade, I chose to face it. After several years of not knowing what was wrong with me, it finally hit me that I needed help. That's just what I did. I've been through years of counseling to help alleviate the struggles I deal with in my every day life. Everything I have done has made me a stronger person. I had to grow up fast and realize that life hands you blocks, but ultimately, you call the shots.

In 2011, 1.3 million crashes occurred because drivers texted while driving. 34% of teens have admitted to texting and driving, and 52% have admitted to talking on their phone while driving. Even though these teens considered themselves adequate drivers, while texting or using a cell phone, drivers who used their phone spent 10% of their time outside their lane.

Katie Aller [11] said, "I never text and drive unless I have already come to a complete stop at a stop sign or light."

In 2012, lawmakers inside the state of Pennsylvania prohibited the use of cell phones while driving; however, catching a person using his phone while driving certainly posed a much greater challenge for police than catching a driver going 20 miles over the speed limit.

"Even though it's illegal, I would still take the risk and take the time to text a friend back. However, now after realizing this could cost me my life, I stopped checking my phone while behind the wheel," Nicole Caldwell [11] said.

The most difficult time I ever had was the passing of my grandma. She had cancer for the third time, and she struggled. She fought to live until my birthday. She stayed in bed a lot, except on my birthday. That day, she was so full of life; I thought it was a miracle. Instead, she fought to live for that day because the day after my birthday, she died. It took everyone by shock because the day before we thought she was better. It was very difficult to get through, but she stayed alive for me. I still miss her and love her.

Jessy Jube [11]

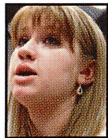

In my freshman track season, I was diagnosed with a precursor to a stress fracture. This means if I would have ran one more day, my bone would have broken. I was forced to wear a boot for eight weeks, along with crutches for a few weeks. I missed the next two seasons of running but continued to attend all practices and meets to support my teammates. Along with my drive, I also had the help of my family, coaches, and numerous people from UPMC. Because of this, I've become stronger and am ready to redeem myself this upcoming season.

Patrick Miller [11]

The most difficult time in my life was when my grandma passed away. I was very close to her, and we had done something almost every week. When I was little, we would go see a movie, or we would go to the Children's Playhouse to see different plays. The one thing that helped me through my loss was looking at some of the pictures of us on one of our adventures. Also, I had running to help me because it gave me something to focus on when things got tough. I miss her all the time though.

Ryan McCready [11]

The hardest thing I had to deal with was waking up for school. One day, I got out of bed and started walking to take a shower; I fell down my steps. After I fell down, I got up and found a dog that was not mine in the house looking at me. I was half asleep and did not really care. The dog growled at me and barked at me. I got up and ran around the house. I did not know where I was going since I was half asleep. Then, I found out it was not my house. I left and got over it.

Careful to get the bubble in the middle, Steven Laufer [12] levels off his cement block wall. Fellow masonry, Dillon Cole [10] said, "You have to make sure that the mortar is spread out evenly between the blocks." Sophomores and juniors attended tech in the mornings, while seniors went in the afternoons.

Staying true to myself and sticking to what I believed in was hard for me. A decision was made, and I did not go along with it because I felt in my heart it was not right. It was hard, and I went through questions by the others who did not agree with me; I went through a lot of tears and sadness. However, I stuck to what I believed in, and I stayed strong. Eventually, others agreed with me. I overcame peer pressure, and now I know I am strong enough to face anything and stay true to myself.

Sadie Laero [12]

It should come as no surprise that the most difficult time for me was the Freshman/Sophomore Dance. I made the horrible mistake of drinking and still suffer from it today. I got through it with the help of my good friends that stayed by me, the amazingly understanding teachers (Mrs. Haney and Miss Strong), the medics, and of course my family. Without those people and because they cared about me so much, who knows if I would still be alive today?

Computer tech offered vo-tech students many opportunities to better more than just their computer skills, both inside and outside the classroom. The computer tech students even had a Skills Club to practice their real world talents.

Jake Hill [11] said, "I'm president of Skills Club so I organized what we did. Being President helped me with my leadership skills and taught me about teamwork. It will also look good when I apply to the Pittsburgh Technical Institute. I want to go there for Computer Aided Drafting."

While still in high school, students had the opportunity to get job experience through co-ops. Co-ops paid the students for their work and gave them job experience for the future.

Darrien Deluca [12] said, "I worked at Finished Appearance one day a week as a receptionist. I will use the skills I've learned later in life to work in another office as a productive worker, probably as some sort of receptionist. I'm also getting certified in everything Microsoft for free."

Dayla Head [9]

When my grandma passed away, it was the most devastating event in my life. Growing up, some of my family missed out on my upbringing. Grandma fought leukemia for three years untreated, and for one year treated. Every day, I had to see her fighting for her life and it ripped me apart. It was so difficult seeing her endure the pain that cancer can bring. I never got over her passing until I prayed to God. Talking to Him, I realized that she's in such a better place. She was so strong and she taught me so much about courage.

Ryan Oliver [10]

In 2011, I experienced a tragedy in my life. It was a cold Friday night in October. The Phillies were facing the Cardinals in game five of the NLDS. The Phillies were favored, going into the series with superior hitting and pitching. I watched the game until the fifth inning and the game was very even. The Cardinals had gotten a leg up and scored what would be the only run of the game. I woke up the next morning and I had a bad feeling about the game. I went to the computer and went on ESPN. To my dismay, they had lost the game 1-0.

Tory Jackson [11]

"For Ski Club, I wear ski goggles when I'm on the slopes. It's really cold on the mountains, so the goggles protect against the snow and keep my eyes from drying out."

Tyler Kost [11]

"Racquetball requires eye protection because my gym class gets pretty intense during the game. Someone could lose an eye."

Kate Myers [11]

"Basically, you wear goggles for swimming so you can see under water. You have to be able to see the walls and stuff."

Letizia Collini [9]

"I don't really wear ski goggles. They are pretty useless and overpriced, to be honest."

Logan Krause [11]

"You have to make sure you wear goggles in chemistry class so that you don't accidentally get any dangerous chemicals in your eyes."

students pick the right spectacles

Usually at the beginning of every year, Nurse Ray [fac.] starts her daunting task of administering vision tests to the entire student body, one by one. Sometimes, a student's vision barely changed.

Brandi Cramer [12] said, "I think that I've had the same vision forever. I've just never needed glasses."

Conversely, some students had changes in their vision that seemed quite bizarre and unique.

Steve Cox [12] said, "I've worn contact lenses for about six months. Because of that, my vision has actually improved after changing from glasses."

Still, those who chose to don glasses picked frames that best reflected their personalities and inherent senses of style.

stumbling blocks

Dan Runyon [13]

I have dealt with some difficult times over the years, but as I reflect on them now, I guess they weren't that bad. The truth is everyone has to overcome certain things, and even though it may be hard at times, people just have to look onward, be optimistic, and be thankful for all the good in their lives. So no, I am not going to talk about specific scenarios of my past because that won't change it. I'd rather give some encouraging words for people. Everyone has made mistakes, everyone has problems, but things will get better with each passing day.

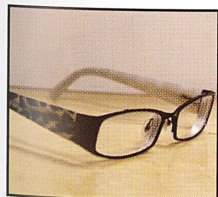

Patrick Enwido [12]

The hardest thing to overcome in life is life itself. There is no telling how long it is going to last or what path must be taken for the best outcome. A single life can be taken away as fast as you can snap your fingers; then it is gone forever. That is why it is important to live life to the fullest and as best as you can. The sky is the limit. Go out and make something of yourself while you still can. Don't let anything stop you from pursuing your dreams, and never let anyone tell you that you don't matter.

Eye of the needle...

In the nursery lab with Mrs. McCluske (fac.) in room 140, Jazmine Lawhorn [11] attempts to thread a needle through its eye. Lawhorn said, "I hate how the hole is always so small. Just when you think you get the thread through, it splits into two shreds. It's so frustrating." At home, Lawhorn had to stitch a chair cushion to keep it from ripping further.

stumbling blocks

Kathryn Clever [12]

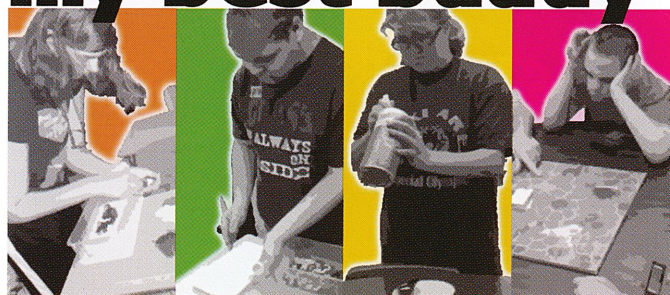

I went through a depression. I was really mad all the time, hated everyone, and truly thought everyone hated me. Because of this, I got in fights all the time. This led me to be put on probation and got me in the hospital because I lost sight in my eye and developed stomach ulcers. After nine months of probation, a year and a half of therapy, and surrounding myself with friends and family, I got better. Now, I love life and smile everyday. I couldn't have ever done it alone though.

Hannah Moore [12]

The hardest thing I had to go through was the death of a family member. It is very hard for anyone to lose someone who is close to them. With the right support from my friends and family, I got through it. They were there to grieve with me. They also talked to me and told me how everything would be okay. Having people who can help you makes it easier because they support you; they also keep your mind off of things. Without my amazing friends there to help me get through the bad times, I do not know where I would be.

Sports

You are ahead by a touchdown, but the other team has the ball. Time keeps winding down, and only one thing stands between your team and a much sought after victory: one crucial block. Such situations transpired in various sports throughout the year.

Jake Seagriff [12] said, "Late in the game, it only becomes more important to make that big block. A big block near the end line could either lead to a game winning rush or a tackle for a point guard drove coast to coast, but I made a clean block that ended the game and preserved a well deserved victory."

The vitality of blocks certainly related to soccer. As the starting goalie of a playoff-bound soccer team, Brandon Smail [11] hoped for nothing but blocked shots.

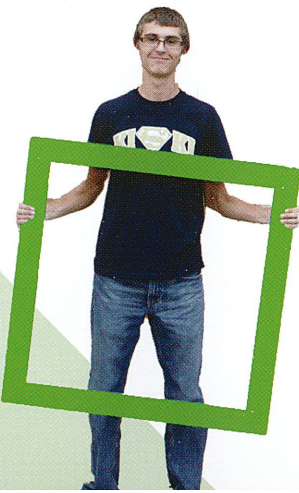

"I blocked shots like it was my sole purpose in life. Still, I did so because blocking shots was my one and only job. Let's face it, I was pretty good at that job," Smail said.

Whether on the five yard line, the court, or the field, blocking remained an integral part in sports; certainly, a great block could change the game.

Why do you think that the Steelers did not make the playoffs this year?

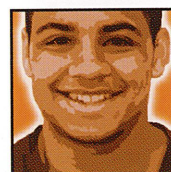

"They had a poor secondary. Also, the o-line was very sloppy. They need to get younger linebackers."

stumbling blocks

AJ Linnert [12]

The hardest thing I had to do was deal with the death of my grandmother and then deal through my depression. Just as I was dealing with my gram's death, many other problems had occurred, and I spiraled into a depression. My gram meant everything to me, and she was a big part of my life. Everyday after school, I would walk to her house and visit with her. As hard as it was to watch her go, we spent a long life together. She is buried within a mile of me, so I can visit her all the time.

Michael Murdock [12]

My grandma passed away a couple years ago. This was hard for me because I was close with her, and it was my first family death experience. The death was hard for my entire family. We all got through it together. Instead of grieving on the fact that she was gone, we remembered the wonderful times we had with her. My family stayed together and got through her death in a healthy way. I know today that my family and I miss her and remember how lovable she was.

What was the craziest moment of the whole season?

"I'd have to say the craziest moment was when I punched a girl in the face and got away with it. What can I say? I'm a scrapper."
Katie Clever [12]

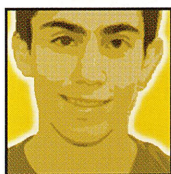

"The craziest moment happened in the first playoff game. Smail saved a few shots that should have been goals. We won the match in a shootout."
Jake Murray [9]

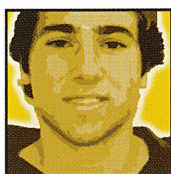

"Our coaches played a bad prank on us. They thought it would be funny to have us run the worst drill ever called the Manchester Run."
Taylor Morlacci [9]

"The craziest moment of the season was when Coach Melisa told us to run the Manchester United Run. We were not happy."
Sierra Shepherd [11]

"I think the craziest moment of the whole season was when Brandon Smail made some great saves in the first playoff game."
Reno Zaffina [10]

"The craziest moment was when we won the first playoff game and everyone rushed the field to tackle our goalie for making some incredible saves."

If you could choose one team's home course to play on for life, which would you pick?

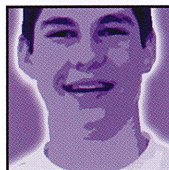

"Oakmont Country Club... because it has exciting greens and the whole course is fantastic."
 Brad Ziegler [12]

"Fox Chapel's Pittsburgh Field Club... because I just feel that classy."
 Chelsea Thompson [12]

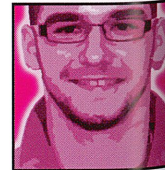

"I love golfing on Fox Chapel's home course, the Pittsburgh Field Club. It is definitely the nicest course I have ever played on."
 Tyler Paunovich [11]

"I would pick Fox Chapel's course because professionals have played there, and it's a really nice course compared to our home course."
 Ryan Sciuillo [12]

"I would choose Fox Chapel's course because it is arguably the best course in the WPIAL. It's also very challenging."
 Jordan Kiebler [12]

"Fox Chapel's course... because it has the best fairways and greens that I've ever played on. I'd also save myself a lot of money."

Ashley Vermeulen [12]

One of the hardest times I've ever had to go through in my life was having to lose both of my grandparents at the same time. I got through it because my family helped me through it, and I did the same for my family. The worst part was having to bury them and say goodbye for the last time ever. It was hard, but my family helped me to understand that they are in a much better place now. Also, it was best that they went at the same time so one didn't have to be without the other.

Keanston Turner [11]

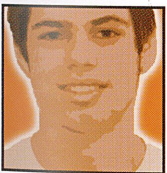

Last year, during tennis season, I hurt my hip during a match. Dumb me, I kept playing even after it happened, and I ended up injuring myself more. I was on crutches for a month; then, I could not do any physical activity for two months after that. Still, I was lucky enough to get out of pool class. It took me a half a year to fully recover. When I overdo it, I still feel a little bit of pain. Still, I'm just glad that I'm allowed to do anything that I want. I suppose that I just have to be careful now.

Which pro player would you love to spend the day with and why?

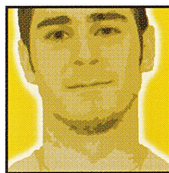

"If I spend one day with one player, I'd pick Andrew McCutcheon because he's my favorite player on the Pirate's team and in all of major league baseball."
Jack Emmerling [11]

"If I could spend the day with one pro player, I would spend it with Chase Utley. I'd choose him because he is my favorite second baseman, what I play."
Jake Satterfield [9]

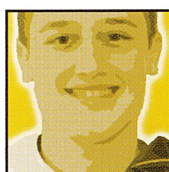

"I would choose Justin Verlander. I'd choose him because he's a team leader and could provide valuable information on the game."
Ian Morrill [9]

"Brian Wilson... he's one of the best closers in the game, probably the most intense person in the game, and has, by far, the best beard in the game."
Doug Donatelli [12]

"I would spend my day with MLB player Joe Mauer. I'd pick him because Joe is the player that I want to become."
Jake Poremski [9]

"I would hang out with Pedro Alvarez. He is one of my favorite players. He's a good hitter and a good fielder."

stumbling blocks

Salma Amer [10]

My most difficult time was when my aunt passed away. She was very close to me, and it hurt really bad when she died. It was really hard for me to get over, but I had my family, and they were there for me. They would always tell me that she is in a better place. I also had my friend Keish by my side through the whole ordeal. My one friend Devon gave me the biggest hug on the day of the funeral, and that lifted my spirits. It's really true when they say that time heals everything. Since then, I've come to realize that my aunt really is in a better place.

Tony Jackson [11]

While I've had many difficult times in my life, the worst was when my best friend was diagnosed with a cancerous tumor at the age of 16. We went through ups and downs with her treatment; she had good times and bad times. Just when we thought she was getting better, things took a turn for the worse, and she ended up losing her battle. The hardest part for me was watching her slowly exit my life. She passed away in the summer of 2007, and I miss her so much.

You have to pick a student in the school (not on the team) as your partner. Whom do you pick?

"I would choose Sydney Hessom. She's really athletic, and I think that she could catch on very quickly. She's also very hand-eye coordinated."
Lily Gongaware [9]

"Mrs. Kubenic would be my partner because she's a very talented gym teacher, and I love her."
Thad Paunovich [12]

"I would pick anyone except Andrew Yohe because we cannot play a game without fighting. He's such a sore loser."
Alexis Satterfield [12]

"I would have to pick Mitch Murdock because he's just a nice guy."
Sean DeCarlo [12]

"I would probably have to choose Kyle Orris because he would make the game very entertaining."
Aimee Pizarchik [9]

"I would choose Matt McCutcheon because he's good at everything."

Why do you think that the high school track team does well year after year?

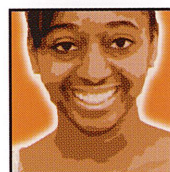

"We succeed because of great coaching and a dedication to excellence. Results reflect efforts, and we have both."
Jake Wilson [12]

"I think it's because of hard training and dedication. Mr. VanHorn and Mr. Cellitti really helped us out a lot, both on and off the track field."
Donivel Evans [12]

"The main influence on our success was our coach, Mr. VanHorn. He was always supportive and truly wanted us all to succeed."
Tatiana Cloud [12]

"The Kiski Track Team does well because we all work hard and push each other to do well. In some way, we are like a weird family."
Mayah Bracy [11]

"Kiski's track team always does well. It's because we all try to build each year and better ourselves to improve in every way."

Mike Carson [10]

The most difficult time was when my grandma passed away. It was my friends and family who helped me to get through the entire thing. I remember being happy that they helped me through it because I didn't know what to do. When my grandma died, I just didn't know how to function correctly; I broke down crying and didn't want to do anything. I didn't want to go anywhere. I've learned that family and friends are the most important thing in your life, and you need them in your life, no matter what.

Tyler Nelson [12]

There I was, walking down the road at midnight and all of a sudden I heard a noise behind me, and I turned around. As I turned around, I saw a half man - half horse running me down, so out of reaction, I drew my sword and jumped on to the nearest deer I could find. I rode right at the beast. The horse-man ran into the bush and looked at me in fear. It had a nest in the bush, so I took its eggs and cooked them in the skillet right in front of it. I slayed the beast, and that is all.

"Without a doubt, Taylor Muffie or I would be the best. We both play hard and have the talent and drive to succeed." Maddie Antone [12]

"Maddie Antone... she has what it takes to be better than any guy. She will kick your butt. Honestly, she would probably make the baseball team better." Montana Churma [10]

"Lexie Steele... because no one messes with her. That's my girl." Jordan King [11]

The most difficult thing that I have had to go through in my life was when my grandpa passed away. It wasn't an ordinary death like the other ones I've gone through, because he committed suicide. Because the whole situation was so tragic, and it only happened a few days before last Christmas, it really had an impact on me. My grandpa's suicide showed me how fragile life is, and it opened my eyes to how quickly life can be taken away from someone. I stayed positive and had to realize how blessed I was to have someone like him in my life.

One of the hardest moments in life I have had to overcome was the loss of my grandmother. Her death was the only death I've ever had to deal with, and it was unbelievable. My mom helped me get through by assuring she is forever in our hearts and watching over us. We looked at pictures a lot and would talk about life and death and how it was just time for my grandmother to go; that was no one's fault. My grandmother is now and will always be my hero who I turn to in my heart when I need help. I know she will help me through everything.

Although I can't decide on the hardest thing I have ever had to deal with, like most kids, I definitely have daily obstacles that I must overcome. This includes school, sports, and just normal teen drama. Sometimes it's just really difficult balancing everything without having one part crash all over the floor. Still, with these obstacles, I must greatly thank my parents, family, and friends for always offering their love and support to keep me going. Having that support system makes all the difference, so thanks, guys.

When I was younger, I was scared of riding roller coasters, and I would never go near one. I think I always wanted to try it, but I could never gain the nerve to do it. One day, my friend forced me on one and I hated it at first. Afterwards, though, I ended up loving the adrenaline rush. Today, I love roller coasters and always love trying new ones. I want to sincerely send out huge thanks to my friend for forcing me the first time. Sometimes, the easiest way to overcome your fears is to jump in with both feet, or climb in and buckle the harness.

So many other teams admire KA wrestling. For those teams, give them advice on how to improve.

"My best advice would be to practice and train just as well as you'd perform in a match. Set your mind and have a good idea for your first move on the mat."
Matt Riggie [12]

"We succeed because we work harder than any other team. We do have awesome coaches, but you just have to work harder than the next guy."
Jordan Laero [9]

"I would tell the coaches to stress that it's about hard work and bonding together as a team with the same goals."
Mitch Nagy [10]

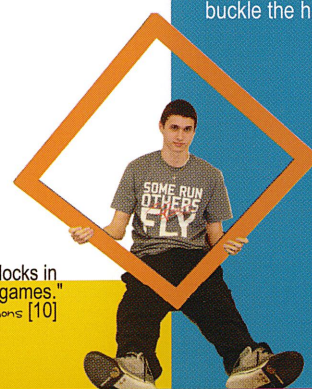

"The wrestlers need to do everything they can not to get into bad situations on the mat and to trust their coaches."
Tucker Insko [10]

"Basically, I would encourage them all to find wrestlers like Matt McCutcheon and Kyle Skelly to join the team."
Tim Conroy [11]

"I would tell the wrestlers to work hard, set goals early in the season, and to bond with the other wrestlers."
Kyle Skelly [12]

What do you typically do on long bus rides to away games?

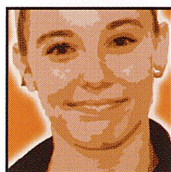

"I usually listen to my iPod. Still, on the way home, our bus driver usually plays the music loud and we all sing."
Sierra Bigley [11]

"All they do is sing. It's like being in a musical. Sometimes it gets on my nerves, but it's mostly entertaining."
Savannah Stroup [12]

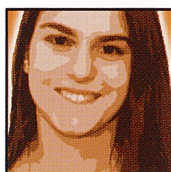

"Normally, the bus driver plays music loudly, and we all sing to get pumped up for each game."

The most difficult time in my life is lunch time. I have to see a certain person sitting at my lunch table everyday. He is very obnoxious and tends to yell all the time. He also took a picture of me on TV at a Pirate game, and he always seems to remind me of it while making fun of me. He always takes my phone, too, and usually runs around the cafeteria with my lunch box. He is a very nice kid and one of my good friends, just not one I like to see all the time. It is depressing seeing him in my day.

In fourth grade, my grandfather passed away. He died from a heart attack in Mexico; it has always bothered me that I never got to say goodbye. My friends and family have helped me to get over this by saying, "I know it hurts, but he's in a better place and he loves you." Even though this hurt, it has helped me to realize that his memory will always live, and he is in a better place. I guess that I really want those who have helped to know that I greatly appreciate it, and I hope that I can help others with similar situations.

When That 70's Show was taken off Netflix, it was a pretty rough time. I was on the fourth season at episode twenty when someone decided to rip the show right from under me. How could they possibly take this incredible show off Netflix? I had nothing new to watch. I finally came across Family Guy and I watched a bunch of episodes to help get over my loss. Luckily, enough people must have complained, because about a month later, That 70's Show was back on Netflix, and I watched all of it.

The hardest thing I have had to deal with in my life is school. It may sound silly, but school is a very difficult thing for young people to get through. The social aspect of school alone can be the most difficult, along with many other pressures: tests, homework, difficult concepts. I got through school by staying organized and not procrastinating. Teachers helped me by going the extra mile and making sure I understood everything. The best way to overcome life is to take nothing personally and just worry about yourself.

Jordyn Felle [10]

The hardest thing that I've had to deal with so far in my life is discovering One Direction. I have had to deal with them looking absolutely perfect. It really takes a toll on me. Then, they go on dates with girls that are gorgeous. I just feel plain when I see this. Their voices are so distracting, so I cannot listen to them while I do homework. They sing like angels. Hence, I decided to just not do any homework. No, I'm just kidding. However, seriously, I have an obsession. A lot of kids are addicted to drugs. I'm just hopelessly addicted to boy bands.

Ashton Pueria [11]

When I was in eighth grade, my brother was in a very serious dirt-biking accident. Because it was so bad, it was extremely difficult on my entire family. He was life-flighted to the hospital and everything was very chaotic. He spent a very long time in the hospital and the whole family visited him every day. We were all so worried about him. It was so difficult going to see him, not knowing if he knew we were there. Thankfully, Jared has made a full recovery and we no longer have to worry about his future. Situations like this let you know what's important in life.

When I was in eighth grade, I was involved in a lot of drama. It got really bad, and honestly, I was mislabeled. It is not like I was doing anything wrong; it's just the people I was friends with would make things up and were not true friends. Something had to change. Even though it was hard because they were my best friends, I had to get away from them. It was hard; the more I tried to stop talking to them, the more they made stuff up about me. As the year went on, summer finally came, and I didn't have to deal with them anymore.

Two years ago, I lost my grandma on November 14th. It was actually two years today, November 14th, 2012. I went riding that day, and I had just got home when the phone rang. My dad told me she was gone. I immediately broke down in tears. The hardest part was when my whole family was together, and we saw each other's reactions. It was one of the worst days of my life to this date. It's just hard to lose a person that you've loved for your whole life. I just think that's the hardest part of growing older.

The most difficult thing that happened to me is when my pap passed away. He was not only my pap, but he was my best friend. We hunted together and we fished together all the time. At one point, he went in to get his gall bladder removed and ended up with a pinched nerve. He had to be on crutches for the rest of his life, but that didn't stop him from doing everything with me. We still went hunting, fishing, and camping. I always had to drag his deer out of the woods, but I gladly did it because it was something I could do for him. Always think positive, like him.

Nick Malagari [11]

The hardest thing I ever had to overcome was a concussion that I suffered from in eighth grade. I received it while playing indoor soccer. I had symptoms for two months following my injury. I was unable to play soccer or return to school. I had to have a tutor come to my home to teach me what I was missing at school. The hardest part was being unable to do anything fun. I was only allowed to lie down or do small things. I want to thank my family and friends because they supported me during this tough time.

At a home game against the Norwin Knights, Matt Dziadosz [11] steals the ball from the mid-fielder. "Norwin has been our biggest rival for the past few years. This year, we beat them twice though," Dziadosz said. In the spring, Dziadosz participated in track.

My most difficult time was when I had to choose to quit football or continue to play it. This was a hard decision to make, due to the fact that I would have to get a job and pay for the stuff. This was a very hard decision, but it ended up turning out well. I have my job now, and it was a good decision to quit football. I am happy as ever now, but it was a very hard choice to make altogether. I am happy that I made this decision and how it affected my life and now I have money to spend on whatever I want.

Laci Miller [12]

I've made bad decisions on the choice of friends I hung out with. They were into partying. That's fine and what not, but drugs are not. I just stuck to what I thought was right and went my own way. They are not good friends if they make you do something you don't want to. There are other people out there. If you are in a situation like that, just stick to your guns. Drugs might seem cool now, but wait until you see their effects twenty years down the road.

Many of us have played together since fourth grade. We just wanted to end our careers happily together, win or lose.

trainers differentiate between different injuries knee

"Knees are a body part that gets injured a lot, especially in football and soccer. We treat the players with physical therapy everyday after school and we do different exercises with them to see how bad the injury is. The exercises also help to regain strength and flexibility in the hurt knee."

Montana Churma [10]

head

"A head injury is the worst injury because the brain is so important. Head injuries happen a lot in football. We make them take an impact test to see if they have a concussion. If they fail, we have to send them to the doctor. A lot of times, players make an effort to hide their head injuries."

Shaylee Dumbaugh [11] training for 4 years

ankle

"Ankle injuries are frequent for soccer players in particular. We first wrap the ankle in ice to treat the injury and to help ease the pain. If the ankle is really swollen and looks broken, we send the player to the doctor for x-rays. After it's broken we help rehabilitate the injured player."

Jess Simmons [11]

shoulder

"You see shoulder injuries all the time in football. If the injury is severe enough, the players aren't able to move their arm at all. First, we wrap ice around the hurt shoulder to reduce the swelling. Then, we stretch it out to ease the pain and help strengthen the muscle."

Nagging injuries...

At Davis Field during the August 31 game versus Connellsville, trainer Catherine Laur [fac.] tends to Josh Wiskeman's [12] ongoing knee problem. Trainer Maddy Shaffer [11] said, "Josh has had that injury for four years." Wiskeman reentered the game two plays later.

That's a wrap...

Careful not to move her leg, Maddy Shaffer [11] wraps Liz Recchia's [10] knee. Shaffer said, "You want to wrap it tight enough so that it won't slide down, but loose enough so that she can still move. Shaffer trained for all three high school years."

Just before a winter basketball game, Tiffany Stewart [12] grabs tape to wrap Maddie Antone's [12] wrist. "As trainers, we always do our best to make sure the athletes are in top shape," Stewart said. She most enjoyed helping the wrestlers.

Jason Anderson [12]

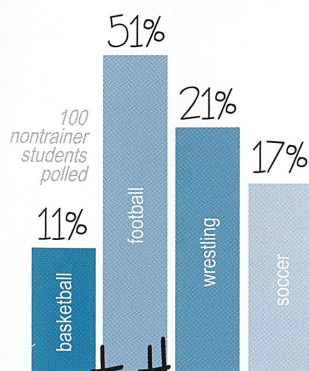

The hardest thing I have ever had to do was to choose which high school to attend. I had the options of Kiski and Pittsburgh Central Catholic. I put much thought into it and chose Kiski. I believe I made a good decision for many reasons. My grades are high, and I have received high honors numerous times. Also, I have been accepted into the National Honor Society. I have made many friends and spend most of my life with them. Also, I have been able to letter in football since my sophomore year. I put myself in an excellent position.

Hannah Furman [12]

The most difficult time in my life was lying to my dad. It was a bad, stupid decision because it changed our relationship between the two of us. We did not talk for a month all because of my stupid lie. I know I have said horrible things to him, but he is still my dad. The lie crushed my dad because he lost all of his trust and felt betrayed. I could tell for the longest time he was hurting and knowing it was all my fault was the worst part. I would like to thank my dad for talking to me again and trusting me. I love you.

Patricia Kohner [12]

Because of things that happened, I thought I had lost my best friend. She and I were fighting because I had made a new friend who I thought was nice, but she really wasn't. At first, I tried to tell my best friend that it didn't matter if they weren't friends with each other, and I could be friends with them both. Then, our friendship started tearing apart. At the same time, I realized that my new friend was not really a friend. I realized I needed my best friend, but I worried that it was too late. I apologized to her and we became great friends again.

Hannah Dicks [10]

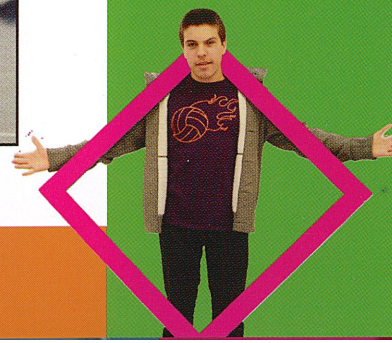

Try pitching in a championship game for a tournament softball team while covered in poison ivy. The fluid-filled bumps were on both hands, between my fingers, and swelled my palms. Because of the friction created by pitching, the bumps burst. Fluid oozed causing a painful burning sensation. The umpire made me bandage the rash to avoid contamination. This made it extremely difficult to achieve the proper spin and rotation necessary for success. I was totally focused on my mechanics. We won! I had overcome adversity.

Gina Barbach [10]

I had a hard time dealing with my grandmother Florence Caruso's passing. She was 97 years old. This woman was a widow for 60 plus years. She had to work three jobs to put both of her boys through college. My gram has always helped everyone that walked through her door. It was very hard because we were so used to her pulling through tough times. However, this time it was her turn to go. I am happy that she is now with her husband, son, and siblings. We will miss her and love her always.

Sydney Hesson [9]

One of the hardest decisions of my life was deciding to quit soccer. Last year, I had to pick between playing soccer and volleyball. I couldn't imagine not playing either of them, but I finally decided that volleyball was where my true passion was, although I still loved soccer. My family and friends all supported my decision, and I thank them for that. I had been playing soccer for eight years, and volleyball for only three. Even though it was a tough decision, I am glad that I made it. I look forward to four more years playing volleyball.

Four years ago, my grandpa passed away. It was one of the saddest times in my whole life. I wasn't sure how to deal with it, because I haven't had someone pass away in my life for a very long time. So many people comforted me during this sad time for me; even my family members from out of state came in and comforted me and the rest of my family. My family members from across the nation stayed for awhile to help us all deal with my grandfather's passing. I couldn't thank them enough than I already had. I love them so much.

Casey Allen [9]

One of the most difficult days I had at school was when, in the dim lighting of my room in the morning, I put on a blue sports bra under a thin white shirt. This was extremely embarrassing. Luckily, my good friend, Kelsey, was there to inform me that I looked like a doofus. Believe me, her comment certainly didn't help me much, but at least I'll never make that same mistake again. I suppose that's what friends are for.

Do you have one swing that you consider your best?

"I think that my backhand is my best swing. This is rather unusual because most people go to their forehand shot. I use the two-handed backhand, which gives me more stability and power."

Who first got you interested in the sport of tennis?

"When I was around twelve years old, my father and I took a beginner's course on how to play the game. I really enjoyed it, and we both decided to continue on with it. I also always loved to watch Roger Federer on television, and he inspired me."

Truthfully, the hardest thing that has happened to me was running a cross country race when I was sick. It was hard to overcome, but I had to help out my team. I didn't do as bad as I thought, but I didn't do as well as I wanted. Running a race when you are sick is really hard when you can't breathe, but knowing that my team needed me, I knew I couldn't let them down. As an end result, the team ended up winning the Westmoreland County Championships. But, next year, I'm going to do my best to make sure I'm healthy and ready to win.

Dan Antoniano [12]

The hardest and most difficult time that I had to deal with in my life was when my grandfather died in 2005. He was the only grandfather that I knew, so that's why it was a tough time for me. Also, I was only 10 at the time, and age matters a lot when a loved one dies. At the funeral, I was awarded and issued his firefighter's badge that he valued so much. It was very hard to go in front of everyone to accept it. I would like to thank my parents and other family members who helped me through such a difficult time.

The hardest time of my life to this date was when my grandfather was going to pass away. My family and I could tell that it was going to happen soon, and it was sad to watch him suffer. He was only in a home four days before he passed. I looked around, and I saw how sad everyone was. I decided not to be upset because he no longer had to suffer. I helped my younger cousins, and I comforted them. I was strong for them, and that helped me get through the hardships of losing my grandpa.

The hardest thing that I have ever had to deal with was when my brother was deployed to Afghanistan. It was so hard knowing that he would be so far away and whether or not he would be okay. Still, after having the chance to speak with him, he reassured me and after spending time conversing with my family, especially my niece, I felt a little better about it. April 18, 2009, was the most shocking day of my entire life. Much to our surprise and horror, my oldest brother, Brandon, passed away in a street bike accident. He was my best friend and my whole inspiration. When it happened, I felt so lost and alone because I always went to him for everything. But, I know that he would tell me, "Stay strong," like he did when we ran together. I know he would want me to live my life to its fullest, just like he did. I live by his morals each and every day and will love him forever.

One of the most difficult times in my life was when my dog, Niko, passed away two summers ago. It was really hard for me because he was a pet that was just like a family member to me. Niko was my first dog I have ever had. However, with the support of my friends and family, I got through this hard time. They helped me overcome the loss of my dog, Niko. I am very fortunate to have such a caring family and friends at a time like this. I know that Niko would have loved to meet so many of my new friends.

At Seton Hill University, members of the girls' cross country team raise their county championship trophy. Lauren Smeltzer [10] said, "It was such a great accomplishment to know that we all worked together as a team." The trophy sat in the Gym A display case.

Competing against the other teams at counties, JD Fahnstock [11], Tyler Snider [12], and Brent Kennedy [11] head toward the front of the pack. "Of all the teams there, we had the hardest time against none of them. We won it pretty handily," Snider said confidently.

Do you have a particular brand of shoes that you like the most?

Stephanie Lednak [10]

"I like a lot of brands. Still, I just like to try on shoes while I'm in the store and go with the ones that fit the best."
Lindsey Caldwell [10]

What's the longest distance you have ever run?

"I once ran 17 miles. We were doing a run-a-thon to raise money for the cross country team. After about eight miles into the trail, we ended up missing the turn around spot and ended up running further than planned."

Does your mind race while you run, or do you just veg out?

"Sometimes, during longer races, you have to really keep yourself focused, or you could zone out. If you're running a 5K, after you start running, you just concentrate so that you keep up pace."

What are your thoughts about running in the rain?

"I actually prefer running in the rain instead of running when it's really humid outside. The rain tends to cool you down. Still, I'd prefer a drizzle over a sideways downpour any day. Anyone would."

Janessa Young [12]

My most difficult time in my life was when my grandpa passed away. When I first heard the news, everything seemed like a blur. I did not know what to do because I was very close to him. My family and I all stuck together and got through the tough time. I also spent time with my friends and played soccer to keep my mind off of everything. To this day, I still miss him more than anything. I think about all of the good memories we had together. Even though it was a tough situation, I stay active to keep my mind off of it to remain happy.

Stephanie Mateos [12]

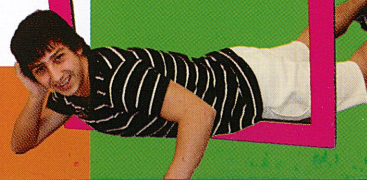

The hardest thing I had to overcome was when my grandpa died. I was very sad at first because I was very close to him. I realized that he was probably in a better place because he had been pretty sick. As time passed, it became much easier to deal with. I am very appreciative that my family helped me through this hard time, and I helped them. It would have been difficult to deal with if I was alone. It has been about four years, and now it doesn't cross my mind as often as it did in the past.

The most difficult time in my life was watching my grandfather die. I can truly say that it was the hardest part of my life and probably for my dad, too. I was young, but I still knew him well. My parents and close family came together as one, and we all made it through this tough time. To this day, I can still remember seeing him, but it hurts to think that he is gone forever. I will always remember him and miss the times we spent together. Hopefully, I will get to see him again one day.

Jade Festa [12]

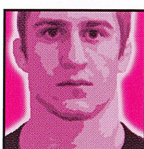

I've always lived with my grandparents. My freshman year, my grandpa had a surgery that went wrong. He was in and out of hospitals and nursing homes for seven months, until his death in June. During those seven months, after school, almost every day I would be home alone because my grandma was visiting him. It was a really stressful time, and I was really upset most of it. My grandpa was like a father to me, so everything was really emotional! I had great friends who were there for me. Katie, Abby, and Jo would cheer me up everyday.

players differentiate between golf terms

par	eagle	bogey	birdie
"Par represents the expected amount of shots for a hole for a golfer. Going into a match, my goal is to score par on every hole. If I don't make par on a particular hole, I know that I have to step it up and do my best to make up for it on the next one. Golf is a math game of coming out negative." Brian Veitch [11] golfing for 6 years	"An eagle is when the golfer gets the ball into the hole in two less shots than par. An eagle is a very hard score to get. Most of the time, this score involves a whole lot of luck. I personally have gotten only a few eagles in my golfing career. Still, every time I do, it's so exciting." Tyler Paunovich [13] golfing for 5 years	"A bogey is when the golfer gets the ball into the hole in one more shot than par. Usually, this score is not a great one to get on any hole. Still, there are some holes that are more difficult to make par than others. On those holes, a bogey is great. Generally, bogies aren't what you want." Ryan Sciuillo [11] golfing for 5 years	"A birdie is when the golfer gets the ball into the hole in one less shot than par. It's a very exciting word for me in golfing. Getting a birdie can enlighten the golf round tremendously. Also, a birdie boosts my confidence so that I can hit better shots to get even more birdies." Adam Robison [12] golfing for 9 years

One of the most difficult times in my life was when I started playing football. My first year was in seventh grade, and I had to remember all of the plays. I also had a hard time keeping up with my schoolwork. While it's worth it when you get out on the field in front of the crowd, nothing is better than hitting someone from the opposing team, knowing you're making a difference for the team. Then, when the game is over, it doesn't matter who wins or loses. It just matters that you went out there and did the best that you could.

Alexia Tkala [9]

The most difficult time of my life was when my great grandpa passed away. This happened when I was in sixth grade. It was also the day of my play, so I got one good thing out of it. He lived in Texas, so we had to fly there. My little cousins were on the plane also, and it was their first time flying. My one cousin asked if we could take a cloud home with us. When it was time to get off the plane, my grandma got up and fell on my cousins. That really cheered me up. We had to make the trip into a good time.

Tatiana Cloud [12]

What motivates you to train at the level that you do?

"I really value my own personal success. Not only that, but the success of the whole team means a lot to me, too. It's great to see how hard work can pay off in the end, even though the road there was a rough one."

Who is your biggest inspiration for running?

"There are a few people who actually motivate me to run. Hannah Neumann is not the fastest, but she has the most positive attitude on the team. Also, I have to give Coach B some credit. Otherwise, he'll have me run mile repeats."

What do you typically think of when running in the rain?

"Actually, I'd much rather run in the rain than have to run in extreme heat. Any adversity I can get just seems to make it more fun. However, I absolutely hate running in the mud. That seems to happen a lot."

How do you foresee your future in running?

"In the immediate future, I'd like to see our team win another section title. Beyond that, I'd like to win a state championship in either track or cross country. After graduating high school, I'll hopefully run in a Division I program."

Life is a road trip with detours, accidents, and false directions. The hardest obstacle on my road was at a soccer tournament in Edinboro. After winning three games, we made it into the playoff game. We tied and had to go into overtime. I was in defense, chasing down a forward who I thought was off sides. I heard a whistle being blown and stopped running. The offensive players took advantage of that and scored a goal. We ended up losing the game. The important lesson here is to never give up, under any circumstance.

Chelsea Thompson [12]

The summer before high school started, I was diagnosed with type one diabetes. The experience was one of the most life-changing aspects I've ever had in every way. I always wondered, "Why does this have to happen to me?" Still, when crises happen, they typically always come with a lesson. The tough times are what made me who I am today. Without the loving support of my friends and family, I just don't know if I would have made it through it. Be grateful for everything and everyone you have in your life.

In sixth grade, I was diagnosed with a stomach illness. It's funny, because it's called 'gastritis.' When I'm symptomatic, I puke, have a fever, and can't move. Because it happens so frequently, I miss a lot of school. I almost failed by attendance in multiple grades, even though I'm an honor student who earns all A's. From seventh to tenth grade, I attended Children's Hospital for a long series of tests. The mediator asked the question. You eagerly buzzed in; you knew this answer. The question went to you, and all eyes turned to your face. You started to give your answer... when all the sudden, your mind went blank...

You were blocked.

Quiz team competitions tested members' speeds at the buzzer as well as their wits. If you rung in first, the team relied on you for the answer, "I feel bad when I get an answer wrong for the team. It happens to everyone though. What I really hate is when I know the answer, but as soon as I buzz in, I just can't remember it," Corbin Neumann [11] said.

What should I have done? Maybe, the last problem could have been factored after all. Math team members did not buzz in to give an answer, but they felt the pressure of time all the same as they attempted to answer too many questions in too little time. Just a few moments with a blocked brain cost kids a perfect score.

"When you're doing the problems, they all seem impossible. You waste so much time just figuring out how to start the problem. At the end of the round, when they give answers and explanations, you realize common sense would have led you to the right answer," Doug Donatelli [12] said.

Thanks to the help of other team members, a blocked mind did not always have to result a lost competition.

why blocked

This year's business staff thought of more creative ways to sell the book. Each year, we strive to sell more books than prior years. We came up with winter coupons for five dollars off the book. Happy holidays from your staff.

Photography is an opportunity to capture a moment in time. A photograph shows emotion and the excitement of the event. Photography is a way to help others experience the memory that will last forever.

We chunked information this year, a technique where rather than writing big long stories, we split it up into mini stories with quotes or even just a topic with many quotes. With some off the wall topics, we hoped to catch the readers' attention.

The show stopper spreads definitely added an element of surprise in the book. When you flip the page, it is a unexpected design that is so different from all the other uniform spreads in the book. They are my favorite.

Although we capture the high school experience in a few hundred pages, it's not all fun and games. Missing classes, eating out of the year book room pantry, and making sure Alexis doesn't accomplish anything is quite exhausting.

Getting a lot of people in the book takes a lot of time and work. It couldn't be done without the cooperation within the staff. The cover allowed for 136 people and the end sheets featured 72 more.

The theme really could pertain to anyone's life here at Kiski. At some point, we have all been blocked. I really liked this idea because it gave everyone a chance to relate to the book.

I really like the colorization and glow that we put on all of the faces this year. We did it on the cover, the endsheets, and every time somebody gave us a quote. It took a lot of time to do them all.

The color choices for this year's book are very bright, especially compared to last year. The 2011-2012 book was mainly white with some navy and gold thrown in. This year, it is all about the neon. I love it.

UV coating is something new that we have featured in this book. It is an approach on texture that adds a varnished, glossy effect to items that we designate. We used it on the cover, opening, dividers, and closing.

Near the end of my junior year, planning began for this book. I knew there was no way that I was going to let this design be boring and colorless. The search began for ideas. I came across the idea of color blocking in the fashion world;

it was an up and coming trend that contrasted against the 2012 book enough that I knew we could make it work. I had my heart set on neon, bright colors. I searched through hundreds of color pallets until I found the six colors that appear in this book. From there, everything became blocked. I wanted blocks of people, color blocks, blocked graphics, blocked font, and every other block possible in our high school life. But, if I see one more block...

Covering the entire student life section of the book was extremely interesting. I got to see what students do when they are outside of school. There are a lot of skateboarders and hunters here. I would have never guessed that if I wasn't assigned to student life.

The whole book link adds a really cool effect to the book. It was a good opportunity to get many peoples' thoughts on the same topic. Even though the spreads are all on different clubs, lives, or sports, the link adds unification.

FAVA is my favorite font that we used in the book this year. It easily correlates with the blocked theme because the letters are similar to block letters. Using this font helped keep the theme consistent throughout the book.

I think it's really cool how the cover has different textures on it. I love that some elements are raised up and others are sunken in. Additionally, I love how the blank color blocks look shiny. That came from a UV coating applied to the areas.

This year, we chose to do something different and utilize cut outs of people in the book. It was a unique change of pace from our past books. My favorite part was photographing the people we used for our page corners.

As part of reporting staff, my favorite aspect of this year's book is the one-on-one sidebars. They show a close up of somebody's face and are completed with just an interesting quote. They're cute and stand out.

I had to extract people holding the green frame from the background. It was often difficult, especially when the person's skin tone or clothing was similar to their backgrounds. Some of the poses in the pictures were quite... unique.

QR Codes are a really cool idea for the book because instead of just including pictures and words, we can also add video and voice. The QR Codes will always be able to be scanned and watched for years down the road.

I've gone to the vo-tech for three years now to take pictures and every year, I learn more about the school and students. It is interesting to see how the students actually enjoy working in their fields of study.

Getting vocal...

During their third period women's choir class with Mrs. Hampshire, Kyjah Peterson [10] and Maria Cecchi [10] sing Go Where I Send Thee. "Women's choir was a really good experience because everyone took it seriously and we made great music," Cecchi said.

Through the keyhole...

At the home winterguard competition, Jessi Showalter [12] cleanly catches her flag after a toss-turn. Showalter said, "This year's show is really intense and different than anything we've ever done before. It's not your typical scholastic A show."

In the morning on December 13, 2012, the KAndescence Show Choir traveled one half mile up the road to entertain the elderly involved in the Silver Sneaker Program at the local YMCA. Selections included Hot Chocolate from The Polar Express and the members gave out cups with hot chocolate in them.

"I loved the smiles on their faces."
Kayla Wadsworth [11]

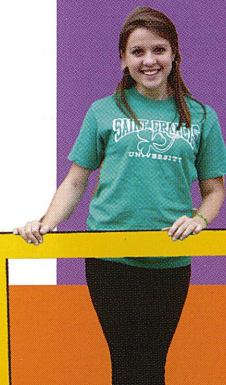

Kayla Wadsworth [11]

In my life, I have had a lot of obstacles to overcome. But, I never realized how precious life is until it is almost taken away from you. In 2006, my little brother had a seizure. I remember how normal the day was before it happened. Then, when it happened, it felt like I was in a dream, or a nightmare. I can't describe my thoughts. Thankfully, he came out of it and was taken to the hospital. Today, he's okay. We think it was caused by a flu shot. I am so thankful for my family and my brother. Never take life for granted.

Kayla Wadsworth [11]

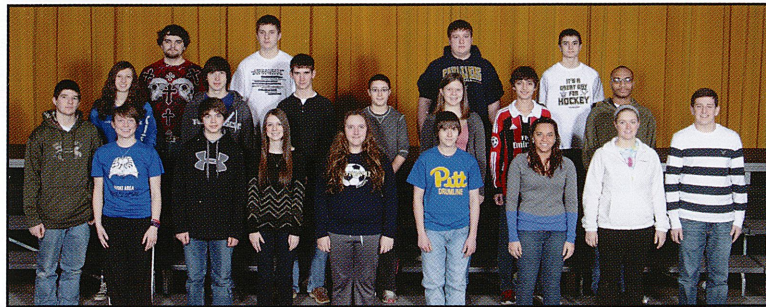

I will never forget when my brother got really sick. It got so bad that he had to go into the hospital and ended up being there for three full months. It really was difficult because at all times, one of my parents was in the hospital with him while the other was at home with my younger sister and me. It was hard because I had to step it up at home to help out and still try to maintain my grades at school. He's okay now and healthy. Still, that ordeal made me realize that if I can get through that, I can get through anything.

"Since I'm so short, I get blocked in the halls a lot. It annoys me immensely."

Westward bound...

During fourth period, members of the saxophone section play West Highlands under Mr. Heiny's direction. Holly Yamber [10] said, "Mr. Heiny is a great director. He knows when we play something wrong." Yamber played the clarinet for the symphonic band.

The hardest thing that I have had to deal with is dealing with other people. Some people are really annoying and hard to work with. This is made worse when you have to work with these people. One way I have dealt with this is by ignoring them. I have found that it helps to make them not associate with you, and they go away. It is a pain when you are expected to work on projects with them, and they do not pull their share of the weight. All in all, it is not a huge deal, just another inconvenience to everyone.

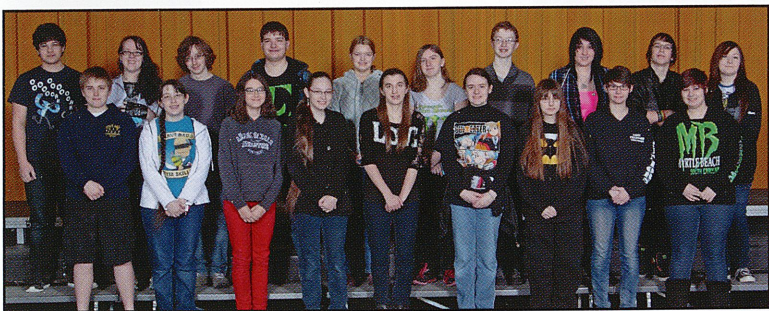

Alex Stader [12]

The hardest thing that I had to do was to get over my grandfather's death. I got through it with my family and friends that I had. Mostly, I got hit the hardest because I was there when he went down. Now I got to help others get back up. I thank my brother, Garrett, and my sister, Samantha, for helping me get through the horrible event. All my family members helped. My best friend, Cole Prager, helped out a lot by being there when I was down. Every twenty-fifth of the month, I pray for my grandfather to help me and the people I love to watch over us.

All tied up...

To celebrate Red Ribbon Week, Alex Seaholm [11] ties a red ribbon on one of the lockers in the 200 building. Seaholm said, "Tying those ribbons took a really long time to complete." The club members also brought in red candy for the elementary kids.

Ready to read...

To prepare for the WIRC competition held at Seton Hill University on March 25, Marissa Wiles [12] reads Divergent by Veronica Roth. Wiles said, "I really love the book. It really keeps me interested." The school took two teams of 12 to the event.

Held in Gym B on January 19, 2013, students and faculty both attended the SADD-sponsored Snow Ball. Organized by Brandi Smith [12] and Danielle Richardson [12], the event lasted from seven to ten in the evening. The crew developed a Fire and Ice theme with flame lanterns and a winter wonderland ice display.

The most difficult time in my life was when my grandma passed away. It was very hard because she was very ill in the hospital with cancer and several other sicknesses. My grandma and I were very close. She was just like a mother to me. When I was a little girl, she used to visit me almost everyday. My friends and my family helped me through it all, especially Loren Mechling. It was just so difficult because she suffered a long time before she passed. She didn't deserve to be that sick. I hope she is healthy in a much better place.

Marissa McCullough [12]

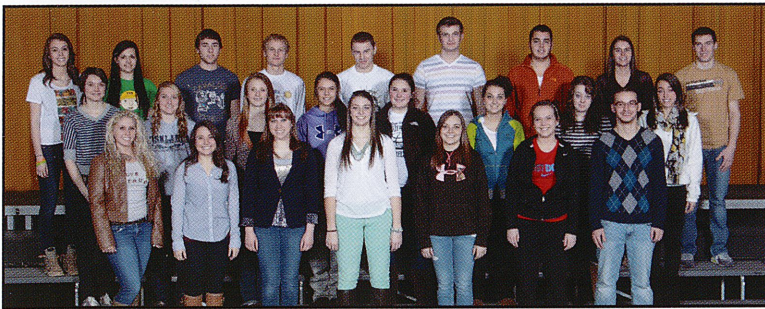

I had to overcome the passing of my gram in October. I always went to her house and played marbles and Skip-Bo. It was really hard when she passed away. I was really sad for awhile, but then I decided I needed to be happy for her because she is no longer struggling. I went to see her at her grave often. It really helped me overcome it when my pap gave me her favorite marbles. I carry them around with me everyday in her memory. It really helped me get through it. The marbles made it so gram is still with me.

Held at Highlands High School in Natrona Heights, the Highlands Rotary Club hosted a festival that welcomed six local schools to join together in song. Each school performed separately, and then they all came together to perform Handel's Hallelujah Chorus as the event's grand finale.

The most difficult time in my life was when my pap died. Everything was going well at his funeral until I saw my grandma. When I saw her crying, it made me upset, and then I started to cry because I realized how lost she was going to be without him. The last thing that my pap wanted to see before he passed away was the new bridge in Apollo when it was done being built. It was only several months before it being completed that he did pass away, and it made me very sad that it was so close to being done, but he couldn't see it.

When I was young, just as most kids do, I was eating cookies and milk. Still, before I even started, something horrible happened. Much to my dismay, the cookie did not fit in the glass of milk. I did not want to break the cookie because that ruins the mood. Just when I was ready to throw my hands up into the air into sad defeat, my dad walked into the room. After much thought, he went into the kitchen and got me a bigger glass of milk. Thank goodness... my problems were solved.

As one of their main goals, Jessica Hornyak [12] from Environmental Club collects the paper for recycling. "I hate when we have to go through the bins and take out trash the people have thrown in," Hornyak said.

Gracious gifts to God...

A few weeks before the December holiday break, Active for Animals set up a tree of ornaments with animals and a wish list on them. Students and faculty could pick an ornament and then purchase the items listed on the back. The purchases benefited homeless animals around the local area.

The most difficult time in my life was the occurrence of a near death situation of a loved one. On that day, I walked up the driveway, instead of running. I looked around the yard, and I saw nature for the first time in a while. I heard the buzz of silence in the house for the first time in a while. I have to sit alone unaware of the situation for the first time in a while. And on that day, all I had was a bowl of soup and a television to lead the way.

Rachel Hallinger [12]

I will be honest and say that there is nothing that I really have had to overcome in my life. I just haven't experienced a situation like that yet, but with that being said, I have seen and known a lot of people who have gone through some hard times. When I see people I know going through this, I try to be one of the people that helps them get through it. I am a friend whenever they need me, and I will try to help them overcome their situations. I really try to help others deal with their hard times whenever I can.

Order in the court...

Just after a competition for Mock Trial, Jessica Ban [11] discusses the event with her teammate, Anna Lloyd [9]. "The Greensburg Courthouse is really beautiful," said Ban. The team argued against Greensburg Salem and fell slightly short of a victory.

The bigger they are...

Eager to capture the ball, Brad Ziegler [12] almost knocks Mr. Guzzie [fac.] off his feet. "I guess that my talents were just too much for Mr. G. The only thing bigger than his fall was his bruised ego." Ziegler played hockey for the varsity team.

The math team traveled to Penn State New Kensington to compete in the annual American Mathematics Competition. Members had an hour and forty-five minutes to answer twenty-five questions on a variety of questions without the aid of a calculator. Students got to tour the campus and then eat pizza at Pizza Hut.

"It's always a great challenge."
Andrew Yohe [11]

Zach Fitzmaurice [12]

When I was younger, I made the terrible mistake of lying to my parents. They were hurt, upset, and felt their trust had been used. That was worse than any punishment. Seeing them like that made me understand what I did was wrong. I told myself I never wanted to see them like that again or put myself through that. It took a lot to gain their trust back and even longer for their respect. I had to make sacrifices and change a part of me, but it benefitted me in the long run. I am a better person for it. I thank them every day for that.

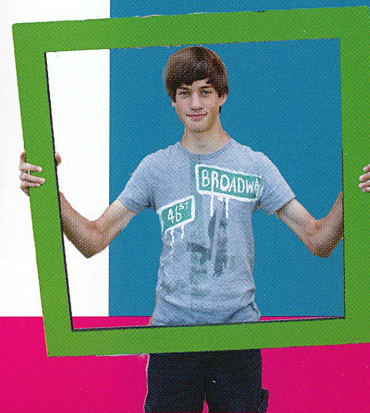

Zach Ferraccio [12]

One of the hardest times of my life was dealing with my grandfather's death. I believe I was seven years old and couldn't grasp what was happening entirely. I faintly remember being at the hospital, not being allowed to see him, as he was dying. That's a really difficult life lesson to deal with at such a young age. Because of that, I will never forget that day or the doctor who forbade me to see him. Still, I'm just glad to realize now that time heals everything.

stumbling blocks

Refreshments anyone?

On the evening of September 11, Matt Emanuelson [12] pours Pepsi into cups for the parents attending Open House. "We had to make sure that the drinks and cookies were always kept filled," Emanuelson said. He actually preferred Pepsi over Coca-Cola.

Don't box me in...

In the yearbook room, Chelsea Thompson [12] helps to distribute empty boxes around the school for students to deposit canned food. "I should have learned how to use scissors better in grade school," Thompson said. Overall, they placed 16 boxes.

Once a year, Key Club sends around 150 kids into the community to aid in various tasks. Students spent the day weeding gardens, painting walls, collecting trash, and other chores in the area. From Habitat to Humanity to the local thrift store, student workers labored for a free lunch and service hours for the club itself.

"It was a valuable day of service."
Hannah Guzolik [12]

Lacy Emerson [12]

The most difficult time in my life is when I lost my grandmother to cancer. It was so hard to fathom not having someone who was so close to me, but I had to move on one way or another. My family was obviously a huge support system. We laughed, and we cried together while remembering a wonderful woman. Also, my friends were extremely supportive, and they eventually helped me to be me once again. My gram was a wonderful person. We were always laughing and carrying on, and she will always be in my heart.

Dean McCroskey [12]

The hardest thing I ever had to do was to watch my grandmother battle cancer. She lived about forty-five minutes away, so anytime I could, I had to drive to see her in the hospital or back at her house. I wish I would have gone to see her more. She passed away in February. It was hard sitting there and keeping her company, especially when she sometimes didn't know who I was. Even when something is hard to do or, you don't want to do it, sometimes you need to dig deep and pull yourself through it.

blood drive - 1/30/13

stumbling blocks

He's on a roll...

In Mrs. Guzzie's room, Ryan Chepkevich [12] ices cinnamon rolls. Buddy Morgan Leasure said, "When Ryan sets his mind to do something, he always does it well." The students made dozens of food types throughout the year.

Ready to save lives...

On January 30, 2013, Hannah Neumann [12] donates her platelets. Neumann said, "It was definitely worth the while to save a life." Her platelets ended up going to two separate cancer patients.

On January 30, 2013, Cavalier Leadership Council held a blood drive in the gym. Tasks at the event included the check-in/registration, escorting students back to class, and supplying donors with food and drink. One student, Hannah Neumann [12], sat for two hours donating her platelets.

"It's nice that kids could donate."
Morgan Kiebler [11]

Jordyn Palla [10]

The hardest thing I have faced would be when my grandma had a stroke. It was devastating to my family. My dad wouldn't come home until the late hours of the night. The worst part was that we were not sure my grandma would make it through this. There was a time when we couldn't even visit her in the hospital. My cousins and I had to stay home alone on Thanksgiving while the others went to the hospital. I would cry myself to sleep every night for a month and pray she would be better. She ended up better and out of the hospital in two months.

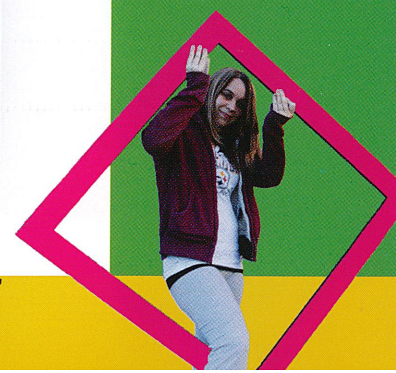

Mike Szozka [10]

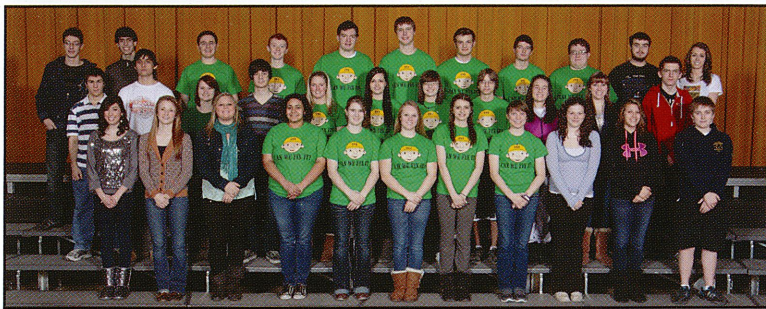

A difficult time for me was one time, when I was in a Kung-Fu battle. The kid I was fighting did a cheap shot. The move broke my leg. I had to focus and remember all of my training. My coach and parents encouraged me to get up, so I did. I rose and stood on one leg. The match started again, and I kicked him in the face. I was in so much pain, but I just kept going. With the help of my family, coach, and friends, I got through it. I won the trophy, and it felt really good. Someone should make a movie about my experience.

telethon - 2nd december week

blocks

Lights, camera, action...

As members of Technology Services Team, Ellie Petro [12] and Noah Kennedy [11] oversee the Telethon broadcast. Kennedy said, "We gave up quite a bit of time getting ready for the event and also many hours after school for the event itself."

Future, past, or present?

To help decorate the front atrium, Casey Allen [9] wraps a gift prop. "During that one period, I must have wrapped five or six gifts," said Allen. She further said, "I'm not that good at wrapping, so I did mess up a couple of them."

The annual Telethon raised money for the Salvation Army and St. Vincent De Paul. Student Council members sold raffle tickets and held a silent auction of gift baskets donated by members and local businesses. Many students also went on television each night for two hours to talk about the holiday season.

"It was a very stressful week."
Theresa Gibson [12]

Nate Kisher [11]

During this soccer season, I fractured my foot and had to wear a boot for two and a half weeks. I missed the end of the season and the playoff games. It was really difficult knowing that I couldn't be out on the field helping my teammates against all the other teams. Still, I went to all of the games to support my teammates, and I got to play in the post-season alumni game. I've never really ever had a sports injury before, and you just have to do everything you can to let your teammates know that you're there for them at every game.

Tariana Chud [12]

As a member of track team, you train all year in the hopes that you will make it to states. When and if that happens, you train even harder so that you can reach your full potential. One of the most difficult times in my life was last year at states. I was placed eleventh, and I could have placed and got a medal. I ended up running a really bad race in the end, and I fell short of the medals. It was a really hot day, and I suppose that the humidity just got the best of me. I was very disappointed.

Sights to see...

Atop the Willis Tower in Chicago, Nick Durkin [11] snaps shots of the view below. Durkin said, "I'm so glad Jazz Band A was invited to perform at the Midwest Clinic. I wish it hadn't been so foggy." The band also visited the Shedd Aquarium.

No peeking...

Just before school on a late September Friday, members of the Drama Club silently vote on officers. Sponsor Mrs. Jacobs said, "Either I'm singing and boring them to death, or we're voting on officers by blindly raising hands."

Considered the most elite concert in the United States, Jazz Band A earned the right to travel to Chicago to perform. In April of 2012, Mr. Pityk sent in a recording, and adjudicators chose the ensemble as one of the nation's best. The band performed nine pieces and got to watch the US Airforce Band perform.

"It was the best band trip ever."

Kara Wilson [12]

The hardest thing that I've ever had to go through was when my little sister was diagnosed with leukemia. It was right around Christmas, and it was really tough for my family. My sister, Mya, is one of the most loving little kids ever. So, it was a shock to everyone since she is loved by so many people. Everyone sent their prayers and support. With everyone caring so much, she was in remission within a month and a half. I'd like to thank everyone who was there for me and everyone who sent their prayers.

Carly Romano [12]

The most difficult time in my life was when my neighbor passed away. It was very difficult for me to get over what happened because he was close with our whole family. He had watched me and my brother grow up and spent a lot of time with us over the years. He was around us often and at every family gathering that I can remember since my childhood. We got through it by getting new neighbors who are just as close to us as we were with him. They can't take his place, but we truly appreciate them so much.

It's just in the jeans...

For one of COP's biggest causes of the year, Taylor Caldwell [10] and Courtney Stinebiser [11] fold donated jeans in room 122. Caldwell said, "It was great to be able to collect so many jeans for Aeropostale." All who donated got a 25% off coupon for a new pair of jeans.

Sunny skies ahead...

Amidst 87 degree sunny weather, Hannah Hohman [12] performs her part in the ballad of Prima Donna. Hohman said, "We got really lucky for band camp. I don't think we had any rain and it was tolerable, for a change." She started playing first trumpet in her sophomore year.

Engineering Club hoped to participate in the Land, Sea, and Air competition. Not just for boys anymore, a team of all girls, in addition to a team of boys, prepared for the battle. Their built robot had to maneuver, without human aide, through a course, knocking over targets and stopping itself once the course ended.

Cancer is a sensitive subject and it is a dreaded diagnosis. A few years ago, my mom was that someone. When I heard the news, my whole world came crashing down; she had breast cancer. She had to go to a weekly chemotherapy session, to which I accompanied her. She got better and better. My mother was always there for me as a child, and now it was my job to take care of her. She's a survivor and I'll always be there for her for whatever blocks life happens to present.

Imagine getting a phone call and hearing that one of your closest friends was in a horrible accident. This is what happened to me when I learned of Marine Corporal Doug Vitale's injuries sustained in Afghanistan. When I learned of this, I was in tears. I could not focus. A man that I looked up to when I was little was hurt. Luckily, he is okay today. I felt so horrible that I donated money and made wristbands to benefit him and his family. I'm so thankful for my family who were all there to support me and get me through it all.

Lots for a buck...

To help raise money for Spanish Club, Mrs. Varano and members held a street fair in the atrium where students could purchase various ethnic items. Megan Paullet [12] said, "I actually bought a maraca key chain and a bracelet. It cost me a dollar."

Broken binding, broken hearted...

On her December 20, 2012 trip to 7-Springs, Brianne Sofaly [10] displays her dismay after breaking a binding on Santa's Beard. Sofaly said, "I attempted to ride the entire way to the bottom of the terrain park with one binding...total fail."

Members of French Club and the Gifted Program spent a late Saturday in January on a field trip to Pittsburgh to see Les Miserables at the Benedum Center. 12 students and four adult chaperones attended the 2 PM show on the frigid afternoon. Each student paid $60 to attend the event.

"It was bitter cold out, but worth it."

stumbling blocks

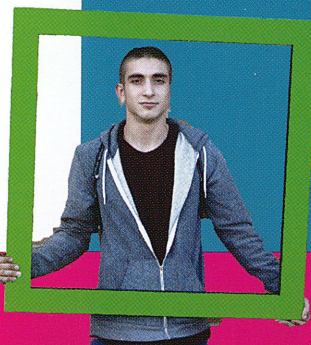

Julianna Jankowski [12]

The passing of my best friend, Stephanie Nicholas, when I was 12 was the most difficult time of my life. As next door neighbors, we grew up together for our whole lives. At the age of 16, Steph passed away from stomach cancer. Stephanie and I, along with three other neighbors, were best friends, and we did absolutely everything together. The passing of one of the most genuine, beautiful, and honest people I have ever met brought the four of us so close together. We got through it, but to this day, Stephanie is still my best friend.

Travis Bittinger [12]

The hardest thing that I can remember having to overcome recently was the passing of my cousin, Elisabeth Carney. I can still remember the day very clearly. During lunch on that November day, my mom texted me, telling me to call her. During seventh period, I called to find her crying, and she told me of the accident that Elisabeth had with her car. The news had apparently gone through much of the school, but I hadn't heard yet. I'd like to thank Mr. Heiny, Mrs. McCluske, and Mr. Duppstadt for being there for me on that tough day.

2) In her hour of fame, Gillian Debeck [9] talks with elementary school kids about their wishes for the holiday season. The annual telethon took place inside the school atrium.

3) Not too far from the school at the local YMCA, Maggie McDermott [10] hands out presents to the elderly citizens during a holiday performance. The McDermott participated in two choirs.

4) Up on the auditorium stage, Ellen Lantelme [12] accepts her Challenge Program award. Lantelme showed excellence in community service in 2012 school year.

community

With high school came greater responsibility. Within the community, students grew and matured, while preparing themselves to face the roadblocks of life, literally.

Driving caused many frustrations, such as construction that completely blocked off roads.

Chelsea Thompson [12] said, "It felt like it took them a decade to fix the bridge by Kunkle Park. I had to drive five minutes out of my way on a daily basis because of that detour."

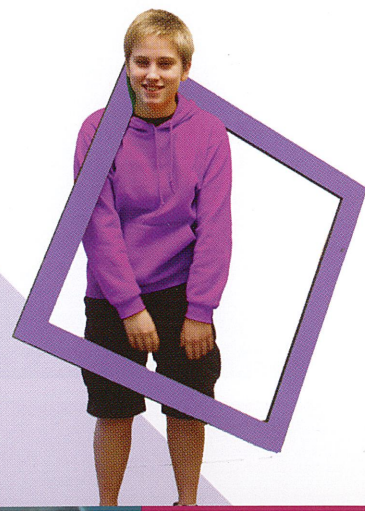

Detours caused by construction were just the tip of the iceberg. Taking a detour five minutes out of the way beat sitting in hours of agonizing traffic every time.

"Although I greatly enjoy the freedom that comes with driving, traffic caused by construction is more irritating than a One Direction song. Actually, if it came down to sitting in traffic or suffering through a One Direction concert, I would choose the traffic," Paul Zanotti [11] said.

Poor boy band music aside, construction remained a serious concern when driving.

Ryan Scullo (11) said, "I can't wait for them to finish the Freeport bridge. Every time I drive there, I swear there's a new set of detours."

Certainly, road blocks remained a staple in driving around the community. Sometimes, an earlier start paid off.

Congratulations!!!!

What joy I've had to watch you take this journey in life—from the first day of kindergarten to the last day of high school. I am so proud of you in all that you have accomplished and all that you will accomplish.

I can't believe how fast the time has flown... now closing on a chapter of your life and opening new ones.

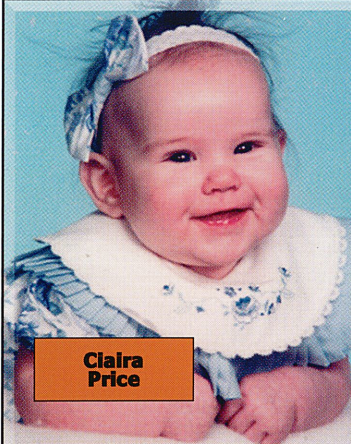

I want you to know that I will ALWAYS be here for you, in good times and in bad ones.

Always remember that life is a banquet table... it is up to you to pick and choose what you put on your plate.

YOU ARE MY BRIGHTEST STAR!
THANKS FOR BEING MY SON!

LOVE YOU INFINITY!

It seems like only yesterday that you were hanging on to our legs, crying and AFRAID OF EVERYTHING!

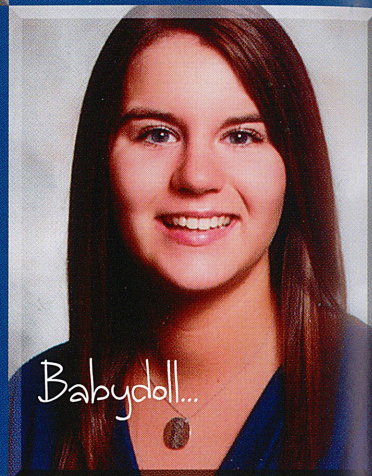

You have gone from a bashful little twinkie to an intelligent, beautiful, funny, and confident young lady!

We are extremely proud of all that you have accomplished! Your positive attitude and ability to find the bright side in all situations will serve you well in the years to come.

You have every opportunity the world has to offer, so make sure you take advantage of it ALL! We will support you in everything you do. We love you with all of our hearts and will ALWAYS be there for you!

Congratulations and Good Luck!

Love Lots,
Mom, Dad, and Ceanne

You have your whole life before you.

In the years to come, what will you do?

We pray that all your dreams come true.

Remember, we are always with you, in all you do.

We love you,
Mom and Dad

We wish you a life full of adventure as you make your mark in the world, along with enough compassion to stop to help others along the way. We wish you the strength to face challenges with confidence, along with the wisdom to choose your battles carefully. We want you to know that many lessons in life come from when you stumble, as long as you find a way to get back up.

Follow your dreams, listen to your heart, take risks carefully, and remember you have the rare ability to find your way out of the woods; you will never truly be lost for long. Never forget that we love you unconditionally for the child you were, the young lady you are, and the amazing woman you are destined to become.

We are so proud of you, baby!

To our beautiful daughter, Maryssa,

We have always felt that in life, we spend far more time as adults than as children. To that, we have always wanted to make sure our children would be equipped with the tools they need to become loving, compassionate, and productive adults.

We can say without any reservation that we know that you will be that kind of adult in this crazy world we live in. You started out as the sweetest and most beautiful person we have ever seen in our lives, and you have grown into the sweetest and most beautiful young lady that we have ever known. We know that you will make your mark in this world and on the people you touch because you have made that mark on everyone and everything up to this point. Your drive and willpower, along with your loving and compassionate ways, will take you to heights that nobody, including yourself, would imagine possible.

We ask you to do the following as you move into this new phase of your life. Stay on the course that you have started. Follow through with the plans that you have made. Live, laugh, and love out loud every day. And know that we will always love you and be with you throughout your lifetime.

Justin,

It's amazing how fast time goes by, and here you are graduating! I remember a kindergartner who latched on to the steering wheel, not wanting to go to orientation. After that first day, look at what you have achieved both in and out of school. We are so proud of you. We look forward to watching you continue in the next phase of life. Always do your best, remember to keep the faith, and you will go far. We will always be here for you.

Walking with Grandma

I like to walk with Grandma; her steps are short, like mine. She doesn't say, "Now hurry up." She always takes her time.

I like to walk with Grandma; her eyes see things like mine do... wee pebbles bright, a funny cloud, half hidden drops of dew.

Most people have to hurry; they do not stop and see. I'm glad that God made Grandma... unrushed, and young, like me.

Alexis Satterfield

Scout,

You are the most amazing person I know. You have grown up to be such an intelligent, beautiful, and independent woman. I have no doubt that you can achieve anything you dream of. So... dream big, follow your heart, and know that I am always there for you... no matter what!

Matthew,

For you, it has always been all about music. Your many experiences in band, percussion, and jazz are your springboard for the future. Your summers with the National Catholic Youth Choir and marching with the Bands of America Honors Band in the Tournament of Roses parade are great accomplishments, and we know that your future will be filled with other opportunities to continue to share your many gifts. We pray your life's journey is filled with joyful melodies, much love, and success.

Megan,

It is a blessing and honor to have you as a daughter and we couldn't be prouder. You are such an inspiration to us with everything that you have accomplished and become. You have always had music in your soul, and we will always cherish the memories from Marching Band, Jazz Ensemble A, Wind Ensemble, Vocal Jazz Choir, and your amazing voice as the Drowsy Chaperone.

Somehow you knew at a very young age that swimming was in your heart, and you were born to swim. Look at you now. We've watched you become a four-time WPIAL Qualifier, team captain, and six-time YMCA National Qualifier. Words cannot express how proud we are of you.

From the minute you were born, we knew that you were so very special and would be destined to do great things. With your adventurous spirit and unfailing kindness, you will enter this new path in your life and discover where your dreams will lead. Always remember that our hearts will be there with you every step of the way. Stay true to who you are, and know that God's hand will always guide you.

Thanks for the awesome memories, and here's looking to many more!

Love,

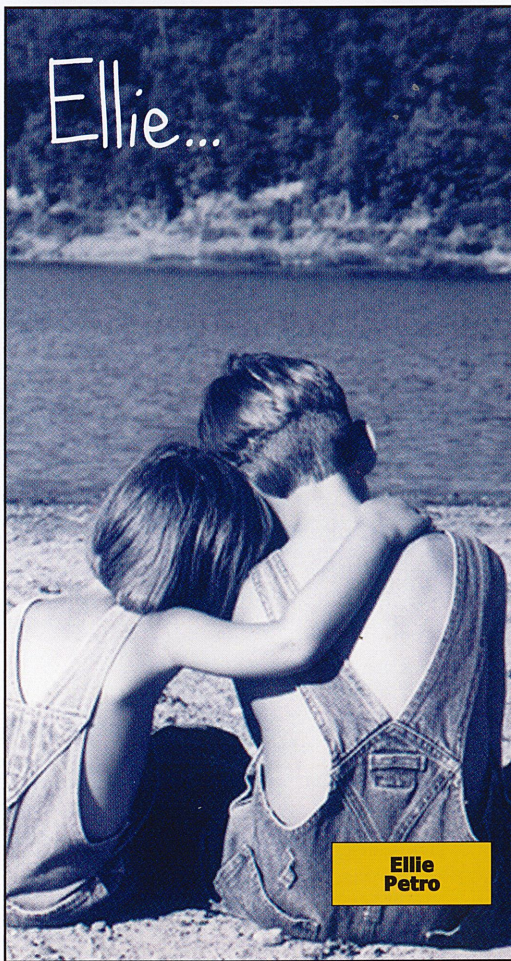

Mom, Dad, Alex, Zach, and Lauren

Since the day you were born, you have always made us proud. We've watched you grow and change so much that it's hard to believe that our funny little boy has grown into such a wonderful young man so quickly. Dear Rachel...

Rachel Weyant

There are so many cherished memories during these last 18 years since you were born. From that time on, we've watched as you followed in the footsteps of your sister and brother, but you were definitely so special in your own way. We'll never forget how you just loved playing house and taking care of your baby dolls! Soon, you were busy with school, Girl Scouts, and sports... and the years flew by.

And now, you have grown up to be an amazing young lady, blessed with so many gifts. As you graduate, your future joys and challenges await. We know you will no longer choose to follow after anyone else, but will create your own road ahead. Your strength and dedication in all that you do will help you reach your goals.

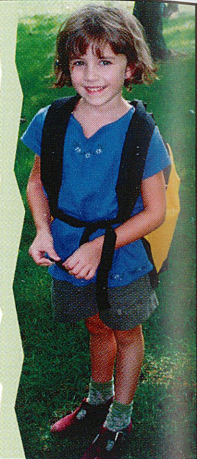

We wish you so much luck as you begin college at Duquesne. Choosing to study to become a Physician's assistant is no surprise; taking care of others is something you were meant to do. Remember to continue to work hard, keep your faith in your heart, and we know you will succeed.

There are no other parents more proud to have a daughter like you!!

We love you, Rachel, and may all your dreams come true!

Mom and Dad

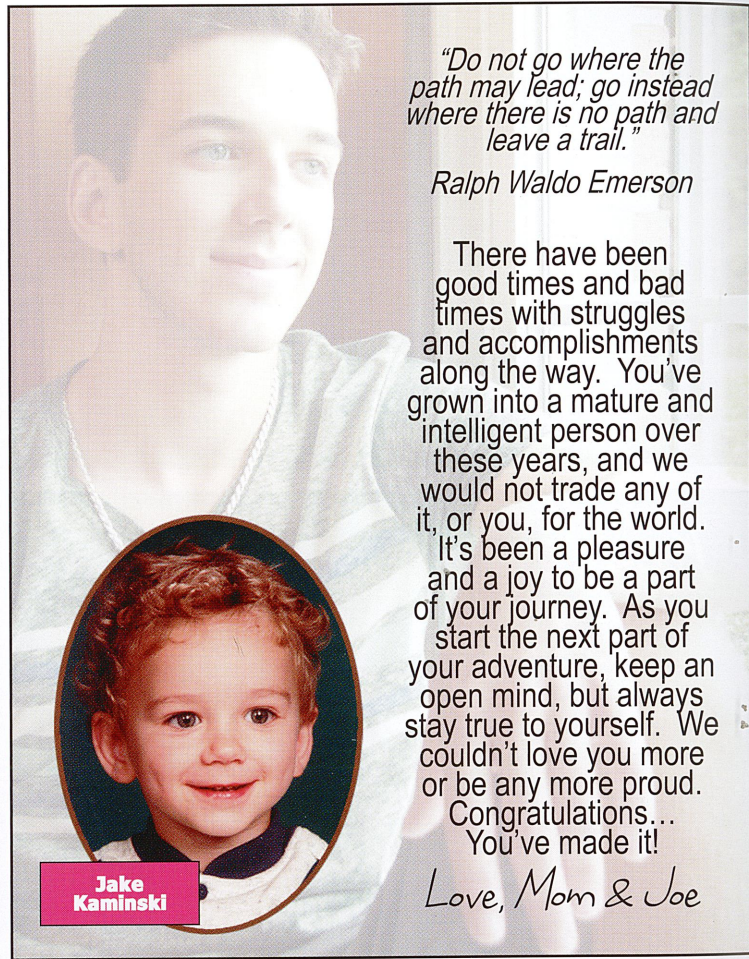

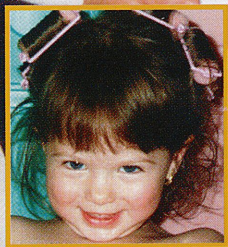

From the moment you came into our lives, you have brought us such joy. We are so proud of the person you are today; you are amazing! Take time to enjoy your new adventure at UPJ and make new memories to last a lifetime. We will always be here to encourage you.

Dear Josh,

We cannot believe our little boy is now a man. Where did the time go? We have wonderful memories of our little boy. These memories bring laughter and tears to our eyes because this chapter of our lives now ends, and a new one begins. Always strive to do your best at everything you do, and you will be successful in life. Successful people sometimes fail, but they never give up. We love you with all our hearts.

Love, Mom, Dad, and Natalie

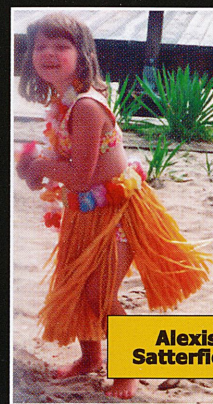

Joshua Clifford

When we remember the day you were born, we smile with love and pride. You have grown into a lovely young woman, full of adventure and a winning personality. May God bless you now and in all your future endeavors. We love you, and our hearts will be with you forever.

Love,

Grandma and Pappy

Alexis Satterfield

To say that we are proud of you would be an understatement! You are truly an amazing daughter with all that you have accomplished. Because of your determination and faith, the path you have chosen thus far has always led to success.

We are confident that your future will be every bit as successful. As you go forward, we encourage you to continue to live and pursue your dreams like there is no tomorrow. Ralph Waldo Emerson said it best when he said, "Do not follow where the path may lead. Go instead where there is no path and leave a trail."

So, whatever trails you create in the years ahead, just remember that we are always here for you and that we love you more than words can say.

Love,
Mom and Dad

Hannah Neumann

Um... excuse me... excuse me... We love you and are so proud of you!

You are bright and beautiful, funny and quirky, sassy and talented, compassionate and well balanced... someone who will never give up her instigating ways. :)

You are the right-most leaf of our family tree and the center of our hearts.

May the bouncy ball and Pi spoon ever be with you.

Love, Mom and Dad

Megan,

There are no words to express how proud we are of you and the woman you've become. You have always stayed true to yourself and your faith, which is a huge accomplishment in high school. We are so excited for you to begin the next chapter in your life at Kent State, and we know that you will do everything you can to follow your dreams of living the life you have always imagined!

Congratulations... you made it!

We love you,

Mom, Dad, and Eric

Ryan,

You're finally in the driver's seat. Roads may curve and change... but no matter what, don't ever stop driving.

When the checkered flag seems out of reach, stay focused and don't give up.

Most importantly, remember to enjoy the ride!

Love ya,
Mom, Dad, and Lindsey

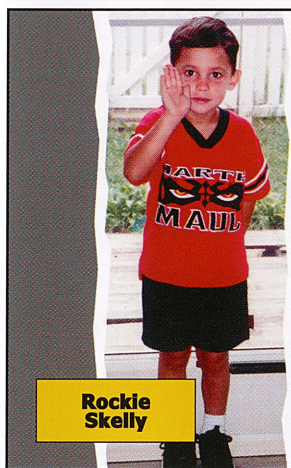

Morgan Orr

Congratulations Morgan (Sissy),

We are so proud of you. Not only do you excel academically and athletically, you are also highly motivated. Set your goals in life high, and know that we are always here for you. We love you. We wish you continued success at Carlow College, my Monsters Inc. Baby!

Mom, Dad, Loren, Terri

Rockie Skelly

Congratulations, Rockie!

We are so proud of you. Best wishes in whatever you decide to do in the future. We will always be here for you!

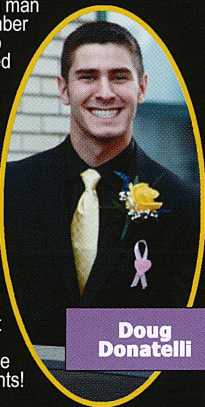

Love,

Mom, Dad, Emilie, and Grandma

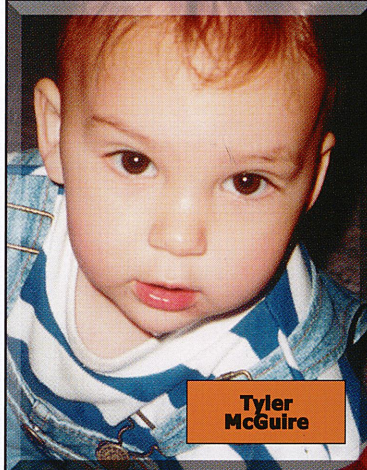

We are very proud of the mature young man you have become. Our hearts remember the sweet and happy little boy who always had a smile on his face, loved to play outside, and made friends wherever he went. Although there was some resistance to starting Kindergarten, once you realized going to school was inevitable, you embraced it and excelled!

We are proud of your academic accomplishments and know that you will reach all the future goals that you set for yourself. We are so excited to see how your bright future unfolds, and we cannot help but to be a little sad to see this part of the journey end. Thank you for all the pride and enjoyment you have brought us. We love being your parents!

The saying "How time flies" is so appropriate right now. Weren't you just a kid not too long ago?

You've grown a lot, but you haven't changed all that much! You still like having fun, goofing around, and making people laugh. The growing you've done these last 18 years has made you one of the strongest, kindest, funniest, and most loyal people we know. You're down to earth but have big dreams... dreams we know will realize because of your tenacity and passion.

Alayna Korchok

Miss Alayna, 18 years have come and gone so fast.

It feels like yesterday we were waiting for the bus to come from your first day of school, the crafts in Brownies, the time you tried to fool the tooth fairy with a pebble, watching you play the snare drum in elementary school, the parades in middle school, and you were still "drumming" Colorguard and winterguard in high school... then off to the "pit" in the marching band as well as the percussion groups. You worked your way to "center" marimba. I will miss all the concerts, football games, and band competitions, but we have all our memories and pictures to remind us.

Thank you for not being embarrassed by your crazy mom screaming the "Kiki chant" at every competition; it was my way to tell you, "Mom is your biggest fan!"

You have grown to become a beautiful young lady both inside and out, and I am so proud to be your Mom. Still, I am even more proud to call you my daughter, Miss Alayneiss.

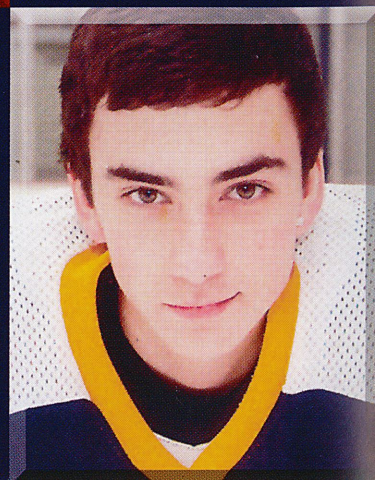

Your next journey will be the hardest and greatest experiences of your life; remember to stop and smell the roses along the way. I know you will give it your all and come out on top... like you always do!

Congratulations! You did it! I love you.

Love, Mom and Chelsea

You never cease to amaze us with your talents and abilities. Words cannot describe how proud we are of you, Tyler. We will always have your back! We wish you the best of luck in your future after graduating from high school.

*Love, Always,
Mom & Dad*

Dear Austin:

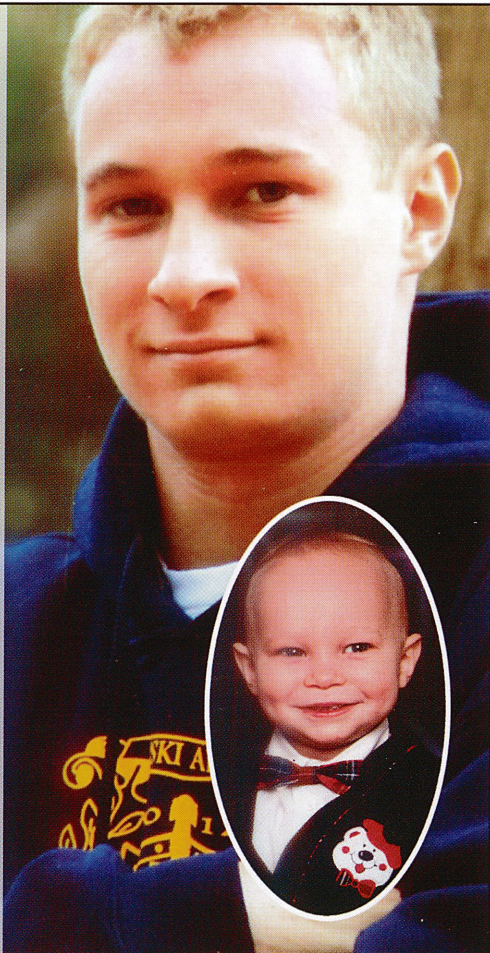

Words alone could never express how proud we are of you. We have watched you grow into such a self-confident, compassionate young man... one whose loyalty is never in question... family or friend. You have a heart of gold, and your fearless personality always shines, whether on a stage or in everyday life. We will never forget the time our family attended a party, and, at the young age of four, you went around to all of the adults introducing yourself and shaking their hands.

As you proceed along your life's journey, know that we will always support you. The world is your stage. Just be yourself and continue to make wise choices. All of your dreams can and will come true.

All Our Love,

Dad, Mom Ian, & Keaton

THE VOICE

There is a voice inside of you
That whispers all day long,

"I feel that this is right for me,

Ryan William,

Our beautiful, special, wonderful son...

What can we say about the fine young man that makes every single day brighter than the one before... who provides us with more pride and joy than we ever imagined possible?

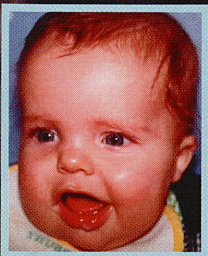

While there truly aren't words available to describe exactly what you mean to your mom and dad...and to your brother...you need to know just how very important you are to all of us...

Your accomplishments in the classroom, at work, and in all that you do on a daily basis give everyone that you come in contact with a reason to smile. We admire the incredible love that you have for your Pittsburgh sports teams, the Kiski Area Cavaliers, and, of course, Notre Dame... the players and coaches should feel honored to have you as a fan!

We look forward to sharing the next step in your education with you...the next important moment in your life with you... the next 'everything' with you...

"Oof Oof"... YOU will always be NUMBER 1!

Ryan Chepkovich

Hannah,

You are amazing. Continue to work hard, dream big, and believe in yourself, and you will find happiness and success in all you do. We are so proud of you!

We can't believe the time has flown by so very quickly! Your senior year is coming to a close. Instead of a fond look back at all that you have accomplished, our fervent wish for you is to look forward with excitement and anticipation of the experiences and possibilities still in store for you. We are so proud of the young woman you have become! The choices you've made have already given you the wisdom and abilities necessary to move into your bright future with confidence and grace. We are positive that the love and passion you pour into everything you do will be the key ingredients to your making your dreams come true.

Someone once wrote that children are like kites and that a parent's job is to slowly unwind the string as they begin to soar. One day, as a parent, you realize that there is no more string to let out, and your child is flying free.

Kaylee, as we hang on to the very end of the string, we want you to know that you have made us so proud and have exceeded our expectations. You are amazing, and we can't wait to see what happens next in your life.

*Love you always,

The world needs dreamers and the world needs doers. Above all, the world needs dreamers who do. Wherever you go, no matter what the weather, always bring your own sunshine.

Don't aim for success; just do what you love and believe in, and it will come naturally.

May the sun shine on you all day long... everything go right... and nothing go wrong...

May those you love bring love back to you... and may all the wishes you wish come true.

And always remember, what we are is God's gift to us; what we become is our gift to God.

Now, go out there and show them what you can do.

Love,

We knew this day would come. Now, it is bittersweet to remember our tiny twins and realize the last 18 years have raced by. The once far off "someday" is now here, and you both are about to graduate. Watching you grow up into intelligent, strong, and capable young adults has been one of our greatest joys. You enrich the lives of others with your fun-loving spirits. You are exceptional athletes and sportsmen. You continue to amaze us with your capacity for learning and steadfast convictions.

Elizabeth Prager

Over the last 4 years, you have managed classes, teachers, homework, papers, tests, projects, endless practices, tryouts, teams, competitions, meets, and friends. You have learned the value of perseverance and have overcome adversity to assure your ultimate success. It is with pride in our hearts, smiles on our faces, and tears in our eyes, that we watch you both go out into the world with your talents and follow your dreams. Whether babies on board or M&M's, the two of you have been together all the way! You are on your way! Anything and everything waits for you to go and grab it.

We love you both forever, Mom and Dad

John

Wow! That was fast. Like it was yesterday, I still remember that first day of kindergarten when you got on the bus. We are so very proud of the man you have become. The respect you have towards others and the love you have in your heart are the qualities that mean the most to us as parents.

You will find that life is lived like a book, in chapters. As you close this chapter of your life and start the next, I hope you realize the importance of building your future so the next chapters in your life can be lived with joy and success. These are the years to build your future. Live them with love, laughter, and respect. I know you will do your best at anything you attempt, and, with determination, you will succeed at all that you do.

We love you more than anything.

It's difficult to put into words how we feel about you... our twins! Faced with adversities for most of your lives, you've overcome hardship and have never accepted failure. For years, we've been by your sides, cheering for t-ball, baseball, basketball, and especially football, where you've both surpassed our greatest expectations! We cannot thank you enough for the unforgettable memories that you have given us! Always the competitive brothers, you've never let that competitiveness come between you. Through good and bad, wins and losses, you've been the best you can be. We've watched you grow from loving and polite little boys to caring, respectful, reliable young men, always ready to help anyone in need. We're so proud of you for making high honor roll and for demonstrating your leadership qualities whenever and wherever needed. As college nears, we want you to know how proud we are of you, and we'll miss both of you every day. The world is waiting for you... so go and get it! No two boys deserve success and happiness more than you! We love you... and always will.

Love you with all of our hearts,

Man... you're getting old. You know what that means, I'm getting even older. It's been a rough life. I'm so proud of everything you've accomplished, be it from music, Vo-tech, or actually applying yourself at school. Just think... it's almost over, so you won't have to skip anymore. Remember that I'll always be there for you whether you need my girly, emotional advice, or some touch love. I've got your back, just like you've got mine. I know you'll do great things with whatever dreams you choose to follow. Good luck!

...Our Pumpkin Pie. We can't believe our baby is graduating! When I found out I was having a girl, I couldn't wait to use all those fancy, frilly dresses I had tucked away... Forget it! You used those clothes for a bonfire and have worn a pair of cowboy boots ever since. That's our Kayla; we wouldn't have it any other way. We have watched you grow from a fragile little baby into a strong, confident, beautiful young woman. We are so proud of you. So, go out with your boots on, study hard, and you will go far. The best is yet to come.

Love always, Mom and Dad

Along with a few other nicknames best left out of print, what a pleasure it continues to be to watch you mature into a lovely and gifted young woman. From the classroom and the soccer field to the stage for dance, plays, and chorus, we have been very proud to watch you make every effort to do your best. As you move on to the next phase of your life, pause to remember the source of true happiness.

Where have the years gone? It seems like it was just yesterday that the journey began when you got on the bus for the first time with your bright "red" hair and your big blue eyes filled with apprehension.

We have been privileged to accompany you along the way... with your gymnastics both at Ultimate and for Kiski... cheerleading... running track... working at Dairy Queen... and now with "Buddies." You have made us very proud with all that you have accomplished.

You have quietly set goals for yourself, that even when they seemed impossible, you one by one achieved them.

So, now that this part of the journey ends, another one is just beginning, and we will again be by your side.

You have grown into a beautiful young woman, both inside and out.

stumbling blocks

give props

to mom and/or dad for all they've done for you to this point...

I have to say thank you so much to my mom, dad, and step-mom for all of their support in my school career so far, and, I am sure, for all the support in the future. I may be really good at procrastinating, but in the end, Mom always keeps me on track. Dad and Lonnie are always proud of my grades, and when they aren't as good as they could be, they are confident in my ability to do better. Thanks again; I couldn't have done it without all of you!

Dean McCroskey [12]

Ryan Ashbaugh [9]

The most difficult time in my life was putting up with my brother. I still put up with him. He and I are always fighting. Things were also bad in elementary school. I always had to sit with him on the bus; he would not let me talk to kids, and that made it hard for me to make friends. He would get upset and fight with me if I did not listen to him. As I got older, I started fighting back when he tried to start something. He barely has any control now. I'm still deciding if I want things to be fixed between us.

Lindsey Caldwell [9]

One day, I was all alone at my house. Suddenly I heard a noise! I thought someone was going to come in and kill me or kidnap me. I was so scared. I called my mom and acted like nothing was wrong. But, in case someone took me, I would be ready. I ran and hid under my bed. I grabbed a sharpened pencil and looked out, but then I realized that it was a windy day and the wind blew sticks and hit them into the house. Everything was good, and I didn't have anything to worry about anymore.

stumbling blocks

Lincoln Clayton [9]

I felt blocked in my life when I couldn't memorize the numbers in French class. It seemed like everyone else was just passing me by, and I was stuck there. I hate studying with a passion, but it was that or having to get help from someone. My Mom helped me out with the problem and started making me flash cards. After a while, I learned all the numbers and everything was back to normal. I am so glad that my Mom helped me out because my grades would be terrible right now.

Matt Hubert [11]

The most difficult period in my life started April 14, 2012. That night, at around 11:30 PM, my friend Tyler Rogers and I were involved in a very serious car wreck. We slipped around a bend going 60 mph and hit head-on into a tree. We both weren't wearing seat belts, and in a second, I saw my life flash right in front of me. I suffered from a fractured knee-cap, a contusion on my femur, a torn meniscus, and had to have 46 stitches in my face. I lost about 40% of my blood. Words cannot describe how happy I am to be alive.

give props

to mom and/or dad for all they've done for you to this point...

To my mother...

Audra Lewis.

Thank you for everything and all the times we have spent together throughout the 18 years. Since

I was born, you have always loved me and took excellent care of me to raise me to be the man that I am today. Even though we've had some arguments in the past, we've been able to forgive each other and put those behind us to move on. I love you very much, mom, and I thank you for all you have done to raised me.

Dear Mommy and Daddy... I just want to thank you.

Nothing would ever be possible without you guys.

I know I've put you through a lot, but you two have stood beside me through everything.

You guys have encouraged me to pursue all my goals, and without your support, I don't know where I'd be. 80 or 90 words will never be enough to thank you or explain how much you two mean to me. I love you to pieces, and I hope that I'll always make you proud.

Matt Cline [10]

Yesterday, I had a bad day because at first, I left my book bag at Vo-tech and people messed with all my stuff. I lost my English book and my math book. I had homework due the next day and I lost it all and lost all the points for that day. Now, in math class, I have a 78 and my mom is going to be really mad at me because of how low it is. So, I got grounded because I lost all of my books. I got them back the next day because I found the person who took them.

Kate Clever [12]

The most difficult time in my life was when I lost my pap in 2011. He had a brain tumor and lung cancer. He was diagnosed and then, a week later, he was gone. He went from being my pap that drank Coors Light every day to not being able to talk in a matter of a week. I still can't believe that a man who had so much life in him ended up like he did. The hardest part was seeing my father cry every day. That's something you don't forget. Although it was hard, it made me stronger.

Not too long ago this year, I was trying to jump over a fence without touching it. My friends wanted me to try, hoping that I would fail. Well, I went to jump and I slipped and fell; my chin hit the bottom of the fence. It was an embarrassing moment because four of my friends were laughing at me. It was a bad experience because on top of being hurt, my friends would not let me live it down. I suppose it's just one of those things that will follow me around for the rest of my life.

Brandon Jackson [11]

The most difficult time in my life was when my youngest step-brother died from leukemia. He died over the summer in June. He was 10 years old. He relapsed twice in three years. The doctors said that there was nothing else they could do for him. He spent about a week in the PICU, and then we decided to take him home. They brought a hospital bed for him and put it in our living room. We got him a cat because he always wanted one. On June 28th, he left this world.

Dalton Strong [11]

The most difficult time in my life was when my parents got divorced. I had to move and change schools. Divorce is a hard thing to go through. I had to keep my head up and keep a positive attitude. Changing schools was also difficult for me. I thought I was going to leave all my friends behind. But, that wasn't the case; I keep in touch with all my old friends and have made many new friends here at Kiski. The only advice I have for someone in this situation is to keep your head up and put on a smile.

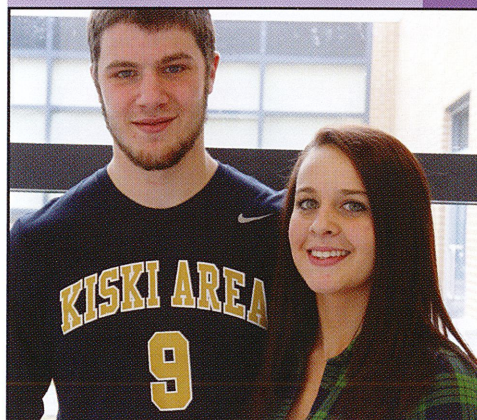

Carly Jernigan [12]

On December 14, 2011, my best friend Nick passed away. He had always made me feel extremely happy, and every time I talked to him, I laughed. When he passed, I was very upset. The people around me, my parents and friends, could all see a difference in me. The really hurtful part about it is that I found out about it on Facebook. My family and friends have been there to support me, but I still felt an empty, loneliness inside. To this day, I still think about him and all of our great talks that we had.

to mom and/or dad for all they've done for you to this point...

Words cannot describe how thankful I am to have the parents I have. I wouldn't change anything growing up under their supervision. My dad was my coach in almost every sport I participated in and taught me how to be a winner. At the time, I might have thought he was pushing me too much, but I know now that it was a life lesson to become successful in life. I don't remember the last time my mom missed any type of sporting event. She is always there for me. I love you guys, and thanks!

Mom and dad, I just wanted to thank you guys so much for everything you have done for me. I think every day of how lucky I am to have amazing, caring parents like you. I appreciate everything you guys do for me. I hope to always try to become the type of person as both of you. You go out of your way for others and have taught me so much about being a genuinely nice person. Thank you again for everything. I love you both so much!.

stumbling blocks

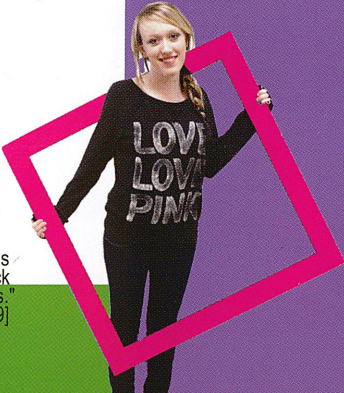

Holly Yamber [10]

Since my uncle passed, it's been tough. One thing I remember fondly was going down to his candy store. I think of him every day that I'm at school. When I go home and see his picture, I cry. He would make me laugh all the time. When I'm sad, he would talk to me. I think that every day, he is looking down on me. He is up in heaven. My uncle would come to the family reunions. We would go to my other uncle's property and we would camp out. The next day, we would get up and fish. This was one of my difficult times in life.

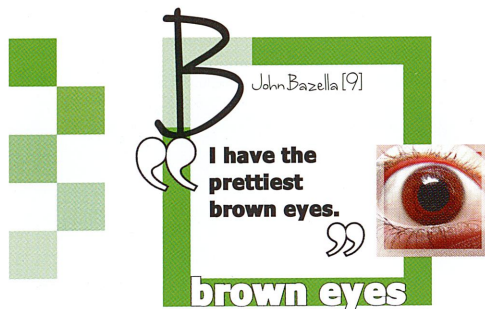

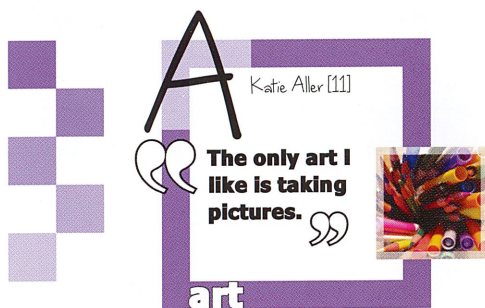

Luke Derriva [12]

The toughest point in my life so far has been when my Pap passed away. He was a huge part of my family in so many ways, but his greatest quality was his ability to give unbiased advice. He helped me through a lot of problems I had and also the issues my family were dealing with. If someone needed help with anything, he would immediately drop everything to steer you in the right direction. He was a huge inspiration to me and my family. Every time a situation arises, I think about what he would do in my shoes.

to mom and/or dad for all they've done for you to this point...

I do not know where I would be today without the love and support that the both of you have shown me during the past 13 years of my life. Because of the two of you, I have been raised a respectful, responsible, well-rounded individual. I am able to make good decisions while keeping my priorities in check. From tying my shoes to parallel parking, I know how to do everything because of you. I love you both dearly with all of my heart, and thank you for being the most understanding and supportive parents a girl could ask for.

stumbling blocks

Chris Smith [11]

I would say that the hardest time in my life was the day that my parents got a divorce. I say that because I loved both parents and wanted to be with both. However, I could only be with one. It was a really hard decision. On one hand, I would like to live with my mom and still be around the friends that I grew up with. On the other hand, I would like to live with my dad and make a whole set of new friends. I did learn one important lesson through it all... in the end, no matter where I went, I was going to be loved.

Maddy Shaffer [11]

I would have to say that the most difficult time in my life was dealing with Jenna Prusia's untimely passing. It is not because I was especially good friends with her but because the sad event brought to light that life could be taken away even from those that had the most right to a full and happy one. Jenna's passing was so sudden and unexpected that it shook the whole school, especially between Christmas and New Years. I just want to thank her for teaching me the value of living.

Every athlete encounters a stalemate at one point or another. I faced mine in golf. I found that I couldn't shoot any scores below a 45 average. This was very frustrating to me. I tried many methods to improve the scores: my swing, my mental approach, and even my equipment. When all of these failed, I almost gave up entirely. Instead of giving up totally, however, I tried something simple; I took a long break and then practiced really hard. Soon, I became a successful golfer, and I exceeded the goals I had set for myself.

Hanna Beaufort [11]

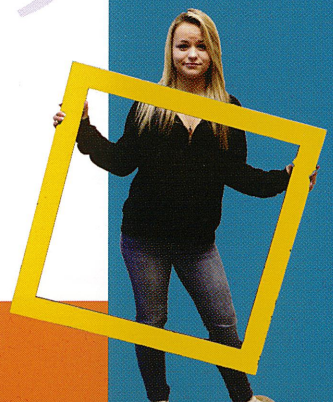

I had a hard time when my Pap passed away a year ago. He was one of my first family members to die after I was old enough to comprehend it. It really hit me hard. When he first got sick, he lived with my aunt, so I got to see him almost every day; we became really close. At around Christmas time, he passed, and even though we were all very upset, we tried to think about the positive things. It's just comforting to me and my whole family to know that he's not in pain any more and he's in a better place.

Mom...
You are the strongest, most beautiful person in the world. The amount of space given to write you this thank you is not nearly enough room to express how thankful I am to have you in my life. Every day, you have taught me so much about being a good person to others and the kind of person everyone needs in his or her life. Thank you for your support and love which without I would not be the person I am today. I love you so much.

Aryan Tahan [12]

There was a point in my life that I lost all hope. I was overweight and got called many names. I used to hide a lot of my anger and depression. I finally did something about it though. I lost all the weight I needed to lose, and I feel great now. If there is something that you do not like about yourself, you need to change it because only you can do it. No one else in this world will do it for you. After all, the person that you owe the most to in life is yourself.

Caitlyn Lockhart [12]

On a rainy day in 10th grade, I was walking into the high school building. My shoes did not have good tread on them, and I ended up slipping and falling on one knee. After I went to my locker, I ended up having a huge wet spot on my favorite pair of jeans. My friends noticed and continually asked me what had happened. They all laughed every time that I told the story. I think that was the most embarrassing moment ever. The rest of the day managed to be pretty good.

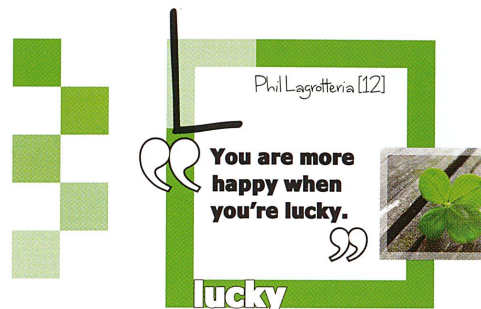

"I have done marching band block way too many times."
Dana Linsenbigler [9]

to mom and/or dad for all they've done for you to this point...

Two of the biggest influences in my life are my mom and dad, without a doubt. You two have helped make me into the person I am today. Even from when I was little, you both stood behind me and helped me overcome every obstacle that life threw my way. You always challenged me to do bigger and better things and strive to reach all my goals. Thank you for always supporting me at my wrestling matches. I appreciate everything you guys have done for me, and I love you a lot.

Breanne Gray [12]

The hardest time in my life was when I was in foster care. I was in foster care for three years, from the time I was 12 to the age of 15. It was difficult for me because I was taken away from my family. While in foster care, I felt as if nobody cared about me. I had a therapist who lied to countless times. I stopped believing what others were saying to me. The people that helped me get through it were my friends. They were always there to remind me that they cared and would always be there for me whenever I need them.

Jacobin Henslik [12]

An awful stumbling block happened to my sister and me this January. On a snowy Monday off, she and I went out to eat at The Burgatory in Fox Chapel. On the way home around four o'clock, it started to snow really badly. We were on Melwood Road going no more than 30 mph when we hit ice, and that was that. It was the scariest moment of my life when we were trapped in the car upside-down on the bank of the road. Luckily, my sister and I walked away with minor injuries and a concussion. I know that our grandparents saved us.

to mom and/or dad for all they've done for you to this point...

I simply must thank my Mom. While we may have our differences, major differences at that, you have always been there for me. I am truly grateful for everything. In going soccer games during my short lived career as a goalie and in driving out to Indianapolis to see me run around a field with a trumpet, you never faltered, and I love that. You also have always pushed me to work harder with my photography. Thank you for getting me my first Nikon when I turned nine. I love you.

Amanda Spaulis [10]

In my freshman year of colorguard, I was really shy. I didn't think I was good enough. When it came time to decide who would make the team, I was really nervous. One of the instructors came over and said, "You don't meet the expectations we had for you. As a result of this, we are making you an alternate." I was so upset. I didn't tell any of my fellow guard members because I thought they'd make fun of me. During band camp, while everyone was on the field, I sat there and watched. I felt so useless.

Tommy McElwain [11]

Late summer, when I was three years old, my brother caught me on fire. There was a bottle with gas in the fire and my brother picked it up and started swinging it around. Then, in a split second, it hit my back and engulfed me in flames. At three years old, I didn't know to stop, drop, and roll, so I just ran around screaming, waving my hands in the air. Before I knew it, I got pushed to the ground, rolled through grass, and was doused in water. From that day on, I have a scar on my back from the incident.

give props

to mom and/or dad for all they've done for you to this point...

To my beautiful mother...
I would like to take the time to thank you for everything you have done for me throughout my years in school. You have been at every school function, cheering and supporting me. Thank you for always taking me to do everything I wanted to do in school and for always encouraging me to do well in school. Even though high school is over, please know that I will always love you for the rest of my life, and know that I mean that with all my heart. I love you mom.

Jose Maine [9]

One time, way back when I wanted to quit colorguard, I was having very bad problems with the work and the people there. I came home crying with my mascara running, just wanting to quit. My friends asked me all night what was wrong, but I didn't want to worry them. My friend Courtney was the one person who actually got me to tell her what was wrong, even though it was after practice. We talked a long time about it, and we both found out that we had a lot in common. She convinced me to stick it out and try harder. I will try to stay in guard.

Zach Wilson [10]

Last year in March, I had a soccer tournament in Virginia. When I had the ball, a kid came from the side and took my knee out. I went to the doctors three days after. I found out that I had dislocated my knee cap and sprained my MCL. They said I was very close to tearing my ACL, but I didn't have to get surgery. I had eight weeks out to recover. I went to therapy every Tuesday and Thursday at a place in Plum. After I was all done, I got a brace to play with. I am off my brace now. My knee feels great and strong now.

"One of the things that I absolutely hate the most is writer's block."
Veronica Krynock [9]

to mom and/or dad for all they've done for you to this point...

Thank you to my wonderful parents! You truly are the reason why I am who I am today. Ever since I was young, you instilled good habits in me and never denied me any opportunity to try something that I wanted to do. I am blessed beyond measure to have two parents as wonderful as you are. My strong family support gives me the peace of mind, confidence, and eagerness to both do the things I love and make it through the things that I don't. Thanks so much for everything!

I cannot believe it's over. I could swear that only last week I filled out the application for a reporting staff position as a lonely freshman going into her sophomore year. Now, here I am. It's 2013, and three years on yearbook staff have dwindled down to their last, precious moments. This experience has been like no other, and I'm struggling to accept that there is life outside our small yearbook room haven... where the lights always glow dimly, the candle warmer burns a yummy scent that everyone can smell in the hall, the white board features personal scribbles, and someone's homework always seems to clutter the tiny table. Still, none of the room's charms would mean anything without the staff that brings it to life.

Since Reporting Staff was the foundation to my yearbook beginnings, I find it fitting to begin with my fellow "reportees"...

Doug: Thank you for always brightening up my mornings with your happy smiles and, of course, your best dressed outfits. I appreciate all of the work and last-minute assignments that you've completed for PF and me.

Megan: Thank you for always completing the duties we assigned with such promptness. There's not a doubt in my mind that you will take over next year to fulfill the duties of a senior reporting staff member.

To the staff for which I could never help out: Literary Staff...

Amber: This book would be meaningless without you. Your talent for creative writing truly amazes me. I could always rely on you to brilliantly knock out a last minute 220 word mini story within an hour. Thank you for taking my concepts and turning them into great writing works. Also, to Taylor, Sammy, Morgan, and our Understaff: I appreciate the time and persistence you have all given to the yearbook and writing. Without you guys, I'd have been lost. Thank you for taking charge of the staff tasks about which I knew the least.

To my Business Staff experts: Alexis, Hannah M., Jessica, and Emma...

Because of you four, I never once had to worry about any business aspects of this book. I know the sales, coupons, senior ads, and senior directory all involved tedious and time-consuming work. All the hours you guys spent after school doing work just reflects your dedication to the program and publication. I send out huge thanks to you all.

To my Photoshop Staff workers: Dom and Court...

I know how much time you both put into the incredibly time-consuming Photoshop tasks in this book. But, without each of you, "Blocked" would have never developed as well as it did. Dom, when I see the book cover sitting on my end table 20 years from now, I will think of all the work you put into it. Court, every time I open the book and see a colored frame, I will think of you. Furthermore, I'm just thankful that we picked you both for the job; nobody else could have fit in to our yearbook family more than you.

To my Photography Staff: Theresa, Cheyenne, and Tatiana...

I would like to thank each of you for your continued work with photography. On the state and national level, Kiski is always noted for incredible shots, and this year proved no differently. The credit for the wonderful photography in the 2013 Campus goes to you all, along with other staff members who stepped in to take pictures. I hope you all continue taking pictures throughout life, even if it's just a hobby.

To Kiski's first ninth grader to ever make the editorial staff: Cass...my favorite freshman, ever.

When PF said we were going to bring a freshman on staff, I was leery; I won't lie. But, when I saw your work and then met you, I knew he had made a wonderful decision. Your straight-forward attitude made me instantly like you. Your phenomenal photography just added sprinkles to the top. You have so much talent, and I'm proud to showcase it throughout my senior book. I'm so glad that PF has three more years to feature your pictures. I know that you're about to grow into the best photographer that KAYB has ever had on staff.

To my second half of the year study hall girls: Hannah H. and Katie...

You girls never ceased to amaze me. Every day, we encountered something new. Between your rants and baked potato obsessions, I never once became bored. I always had to smile during DE. Katie, I'll miss your loud laugh that could be heard down the hall and your incredible willingness to complete every task at hand. Hannah, I'll miss your need for assurance about your poems. You two are strong photographers and hard workers. I can't wait to see where your talents will take you in the future.

To my baby-girl understudy: Kayla...

When you joined two years back, it felt like a mini elementary school reunion. You and I have worked side-by-side so well, and I couldn't have asked for a better sidekick. I've loved every single minute that we've spent together since yearbook brought us back together. The trips to Harrisburg conventions, the Vo-tech excursions, and all of our other fiascos helped to create fantastic memories that I'll never forget. You have a wealth of knowledge, a charisma, and a creativity that will aid in making your senior book spectacular. I can't wait to see the masterpiece that you and the 2014 staff will produce. Take my advice: Don't settle. Push PF to expand his comfort level, set deadlines earlier than needed, and create a book that betters this one. I have full confidence in you, and know that I love you dearly.

To our yearbook rep: Cari Frei...

Sometimes, I just believe that certain people cross paths with you for specific reasons. I just can't thank you enough for the texts, the encouragement, the advice, and the love that you have given to me and to Kiski's yearbook program in general. I hope you realize that part of the reason why we seem to excel in competition is because you keep moving us forward, especially when PF needs a nudge. On a more personal note, let me just say that while I have the best Mom in the world, if I didn't, I'd pick you in an instant. You know I love you...with all my heart. Having said that, when I need a letter of recommendation or a future internship, I'm dialing your number... Mom.

Lastly, but most importantly, to Mr. Fantaski:

You are by far my biggest inspiration. For years, you've put up with me and all my crazy issues. Still, never once did you give up on me. You have taught me everything I know about exemplary yearbook design and production. You have allowed me to explore my talents and creativity and to implement them into the book. You have influenced my life so much, and I can never thank you enough. Your dedication to yearbook is insane. Every staff member knows that you spend countless hours of your life devoted to Kiski yearbooks. We love you dearly for everything you've done for us. Thank you for being my inspiration to pursue my future career in the arts. I hope to always make you proud.

And that's all folks; 2013 Campus is complete. We've experienced many hardships this year, but we've also conquered them without compromise. We were KA-All Day, together. And finally, to all seniors, we are finally "unblocked."

The yearbook staff and the senior photographer conduct an assembly with all prospective seniors in the spring of their junior year to distribute all pertinent information concerning senior pictures. The senior photographer offers various times for individual appointments, as well as a wide variety of packages from which to choose. While we certainly encourage it, students do not have to purchase pictures or packages from the senior photographer. However, each student must pay a sitting fee for the processing and developing of the pictures. This year, Hourglass Photo charged $15. This price may increase from year-to-year due to rising costs involved.

The yearbook staff can guarantee that individual senior pictures will appear in the book only if each student schedules his/her appointment on time, arrives for the shoot on time, and chooses which proof to appear in the book on time. No profile shots will appear in the yearbook. Additionally, the yearbook staff and the senior photographer will define all due dates, and will include these in the information given out at the senior portrait assembly.

By having portraits taken by the same photographer under the same conditions, the yearbook staff can implement uniform quality for all photographs, thereby serving the best interest of all students.

For the 2013-2014 school year, the district will utilize the talents of Ms. Paige Duckworth for all senior portraits. Her establishment, Hourglass Photo, resides at 2 Labelle-Vue Road - Vandergrift, PA - 15690. Telephone: 724-568-3128.

senior specials info

While considered inappropriate in some yearbook judging forums, the Campus staff feels that the Senior Specials represent a Cavalier tradition worth keeping. Sometime after the winter holiday break, the yearbook staff designates one week for all seniors to vote on their favorites in a wide variety of categories. The staff collectively decides which categories to include and which to eliminate. Still, the staff tries to include only categories that reflect positively on the students.

Only the yearbook adviser counts the ballots for each and every category; yearbook staff members play no role in the election.

To maximize the opportunity for each student to receive a Senior Special, no senior may win two categories, with the exception of the "Best Friends" and "Class Couple" categories. Should one student win two or more categories, the yearbook adviser governs the final decision on how to award each category.

senior directory info

Determined by deadlines, the yearbook staff designates a single week, usually in January or February, for seniors to complete a directory sheet that asks for all of the clubs, sports, music ensembles, and future plans for each senior. The yearbook staff includes only directory information submitted by the designated deadline and reserves the right to expunge any entries that include falsified information.

senior parent ads info

On the first day of school, each senior receives a form that defines everything parents need to know about Parent Ads. The form outlines pricing, requirements for the ad, and relative deadlines.

The yearbook staff does its best to personalize each ad, and this takes a considerable amount of time. Furthermore, each year, the staff has only a limited amount of space for Parent Ads. Hence, to guarantee that individual ads will appear in the book, the staff suggests that parents submit them as soon as possible. The Campus staff reserves the right to deny Parent Ads once the designated amount of space has become filled.

client satisfaction info

Because the yearbook represents a student conceived, planned, and produced publication, the staff cannot guarantee complete satisfaction to the purchaser. Hence, the staff will not refund money for poor portrait quality, misspelled names, etc. Books returned for refunds must not have any writing in them and cannot display any obvious damage done by the student. Once returned, the book becomes the property of the staff and may be resold at the current cost.

The yearbook staff will exchange books only for certain reasons. No exchanges will transpire unless the adviser determines that the book has a major flaw such as missing or upside-down pages. All refunds and exchanges happen only at the discretion of the adviser.

Should the yearbook staff have no record of a student ordering a book, the student must produce a cancelled check to demonstrate proof of the purchase. No student may pick up a book for another student.

book pricing info

Students order books during Campus Weeks, the first two full weeks after Labor Day. (Note: Campus Weeks are subject to change depending on when school starts each year.) Each student must fill out a yearbook ordering form, place it in an envelope with the appropriate payment, and drop it in the wooden collection box outside room 106.

Students may pay half during Campus Weeks and half after the December holiday break, if they wish. Still, if the student misses the announced deadline for second payments, a late fee may occur.

After Campus Weeks, students will pay an additional $10 for each book ordered.

The staff also offers the opportunity for students to order books online at balfour.com. Additionally, those students have the opportunity to purchase various other items, but only when ordering online.

If there are books available at the end of the year, the yearbook staff will sell them on a first-come-first-serve basis.

Consider these...

Graduation is finally here. You're home free, except for one thing. You've got one last speech to give—your final farewell to the past four years of your life. You grab your laptop and take a seat, ready to write. As soon as you're ready to begin, your mind goes blank. The blinking cursor mocks you as you stare at the white page. No brilliant soliloquy flows from your fingertips. Guess what?

You sent in your application months ago, but you haven't heard anything yet. Did you forget a part of the application? Was your essay grammatically incorrect? Did you botch your address and they sent the letter to the wrong house? Every day after school, you eagerly check the mail for that acceptance letter. This is your first choice school; an acceptance letter would mean everything. You've been blocked for months, obsessing over the letter. It's been the sole occupant of your mind... morning, noon, and night. Each day, you grow more blocked and less hopeful that you actually got in. On a dreary Monday afternoon, you halfheartedly check the mail, and there it is. Guess what?

you were accepted.

Decisions are not your thing, but now a big one is here. What will you major in at college? You love English, but you love Science also. Still, you're best at math. What are you supposed to do with that? Your parents want you to do one thing, and each teacher thinks you should do another. Ultimately, it's your decision. It's up to you. No matter how much you think about it, you still have no idea though. Guess what?

undecided is a valid

Oh, the places we'll go... To celebrate Dr. Seuss's birthday, Nate Kiebler [11] delivers his lesson to a Mamont student. "I had the students work on a crossword puzzle block after reading my book," Kiebler said.

Recching ball... Overpowered by his opponent, Liz Recchia [10] blocks Brandon Smail [11] and drives him into the ground. Recchia said, "The Turkey Bowl at the Wilson's house was fun. I enjoyed playing and knocking the daylights out of wimpy boys."

Steph in wonderland...
At the home winterguard competition, Stephanie Marchwinski [11] performs for the filled gymnasium. "Our uniform for the Alice show featured blocks of black, white, and silver."

Home Sweet Home?

Just after the police returned Annie, played by Maddy Costanza [11], back to the orphanage, Miss Hannigan, played by Erin Bruce [11], pretends to welcome her. Bruce said, "The blocking had to be very specific in this scene so that I could squeeze her neck but still let the audience see her face." Nearly 100 cast members performed Annie from March 13-16.

Fashion trends in TRWEA...

In her color-blocked winterguard uniform, Megan Beer [11] swivels around before a quad toss. Beer said, "Before we start the huge rifle section, we pull out strips that form a blocked checkerboard on the floor." Choreographer Jim Schaeffer [fac.] designed the 13-member guard's show entitled Alice. The show reflected the intrigue of Alice in Wonderland.

It's simple. Life will always present blocks, some more challenging to face than others. Still, it's not the blocks that make us who we are. It's how we choose to overcome them to unblock ourselves.

The 2012-2013 Campus Yearbook represents the 51st for Kiski Area High School - 200 Poplar Street - Vandergrift, PA - 15690. Telephone: 724-845-8181. The staff ordered 810 copies from Balfour Publishing Company - 1550 W. Mockingbird Lane - Dallas, TX 75235. Cari Frei represented the book locally, and Cathy Simoneaux served as the Account Executive in the plant.

book specifics

This book employed a Smyth type binding with 100# dull enamel paper for all 264 pages inside. The Campus staff utilized Adobe InDesign and Photoshop from its CS4 suite to create the publication. The staff utilized three font families in the book: Fava, where stars shine the brightest, and Arial. On the matte-finish cover, Balfour printed the four-color lithocote material with embossing on the white ghosted squares, debossing of "blocked," and a silkscreen UV Clear Varnish on the empty colored squares. The staff also utilized silkscreen UV Clear Varnish on pages 1,2-3,4-5,38-39,96-97,126-127,176-177,204-205, and the closing spread. The staff created different front and back four-color endsheets that employed a silkscreen UV Clear Varnish on CS1 White paper.

campus pricing

Parent Ads: $45 for 1/8 page and $80 for 1/4 page.

photography & pictures

Paige Duckworth - Hourglass Studio - 2 LaBelle Road - Vandergrift, PA - 15690 - 724-568-3128 - provided all senior and underclass pictures. She also shot all club group shots and sports team shots. The photography staff shot all candids using two school-owned Canon 60D cameras. The staff created photo credit spaces to recognize the photographers' candids.

professional organizations

The 2013 Campus Yearbook Staff belonged to various professional organizations that included PSPA, NSPA, and CSPA. Adobe, Inc. chose a spread in the 2012 Campus as the third best designed spread in the country. Along with one other PA school, the 2012 Campus won the state's highest achievement award, The Clyde P. Lytle All-State Keystone Award for journalistic excellence. Additionally, the book earned All-American status in NSPA and a gold ranking in CSPA. Also, Balfour Publishing chose the 2013 Campus as a national sample and featured the book in their nationally coveted compilation book, The Yearbook Yearbook.
